

Listen!

over REDIFFUSION —

"THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES"

9.15 — 9.30 p.m.

MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, FRIDAYS

Sponsored by

THE AUTHORIZED BOTTLERS OF

Coca-Cola

VOL. V NO. 82

The Hongkong Telegraph.

Dine
At the

P.G.

For Reservations

Tel: 27880

FRENCH GENERAL STAFF CALLS ON AMERICA URGENTLY FOR AID

Intensified Activity By Vietminh Forces

Saigon, Apr. 7.—Faced with intensified activity by the Vietminh Communist forces, the French General Staff in war-torn Indo-China has sent an urgent demand to Britain and the United States for military equipment, a usually reliable diplomatic source said here tonight.

The General Staff indicated, according to this source, that unless aid arrived swiftly France would be compelled to revise her military dispositions in Indo-China.

RIO TRAIN DISASTER

FORTY KILLED IN PLUNGE OVER BRIDGE

Rio de Janeiro, Apr. 7.—Forty-one people are so far known to have been killed when a train from Rio to Victoria plunged over a river bridge 90 miles north of here yesterday, a spokesman of the British-owned Leopoldina Railway said today.

He denied earlier reports that 120 people had lost their lives but said that some bodies had not yet been recovered from the wreckage.

Rescue work was continuing today and all traffic from the capital to Rio de Janeiro State was still suspended.

The police at Tanguara, where the accident occurred, last night said that 120 people were killed and 100 others injured.

Survivors reaching Rio said that the train was crowded with about 1,000 holiday makers in its 12 coaches. Many of them were sleeping when the train, travelling at high speed, was wrecked, they added.—Reuter.

Armed Robbery

A gang of four robbers armed with cutters broke into an unnumbered hut at Caucava, Bay at 7 a.m. yesterday and robbed the inmates of gold jewellery and cash to the value of $200.

EDITORIAL

The Belgian Crisis

THE decision of M. Van Zeeland to attempt to form a Government which is ready to back the return of King Leopold to the Belgian throne promises little to solve the crisis. The earlier position was this: the seventeen-member Cabinet contained nine Social Christians (Catholic party), headed by the Premier M. Eyskens, and eight Liberals. The Liberals held this many posts—far out of proportion to their numerical strength—because their support was necessary in the lower house of Parliament, where the Catholics lack two votes of a majority. On the crucial question of King Leopold, the Catholic party has favoured his restoration; the Socialists, led by M. Paul-Henri Spaak, have been opposed to it; and the Liberals stated they would approve his return if it was endorsed by a majority of the people—not in Belgium as a whole, but in each of the three general areas of the country. As it turned out, Leopold received a majority only in Flemish-speaking Flanders (which was heavy enough to give him a country-wide majority of 57.68 percent) but not in Brussels or in French-speaking Wallonia. After much hesitation, the Liberals apparently decided to stick to their position. The result is that the Eyskens Government, unable to control the lower house without Liberal support, resigned. Leopold cannot return until he is summoned by both houses of Parliament in

Nehru And Ali Khan

Expected To Clinch Agreement

New Delhi, Apr. 7.—The six-day old talks between the India and Pakistan Prime Ministers, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and Liaquat Ali Khan, to find a solution to the problem created by recent disorders in the two Bengals were, according to informed quarters, near completion today when the draft agreement was further examined.

The Prime Ministers will meet again in tomorrow morning.

The joint talks would appear to have long been beyond earlier anticipations because, in considering what may be called the operative portion of the "preliminary" like the scope and functions of minorities, the Commissions to be set up in the affected provinces and the directives to be issued to the respective Governments for the implementation of the agreement, certain adjustments have been found to be necessary.

The Prime Ministers are also understood to have reviewed the position of minorities in two countries as a whole, although the general situation has been the immediate "target" of the conversations.

Pandit Nehru had two meetings with Liaquat Ali Khan to

Princess Margaret In Manchester

Princess Margaret in peeling the Guard of Honour of the Manchester Regiment (TA) at the beginning of her Lancashire tour. The Princess laid the foundation stone of Manchester's new Free Trade Hall.

N.Z. Closing Moscow Legation

Wellington, Apr. 7.—New Zealand announced on Friday that it is closing its legation in Moscow.

Russia's recent abolition of the special diplomatic exchange rate for the ruble had made it too difficult for small countries such as New Zealand to maintain diplomatic missions in Moscow.—United Press.

Cold War Heating

San Francisco, Apr. 7.—General Ira Eaker, one of the top airmen of the last war, said today that in a sense Russia "has declared war."

He urged that the United States adopt universal military training to "convince the Russians that we mean to fight."

Gen. Eaker, addressing a Commonwealth Club luncheon, said: "The cold war" is a diplomatic pence of hostilities and "is now in full swing."

The former deputy Commander of the wartime Army Air Forces said Russia could follow these three courses: A. She can move westward country by country as Germany did. B. She can take over Asia. C. She can launch an attack on the United States.

He said that Russia could mount an attack against the United States by organizing a successful fifth column, by military assault, probably bombardment by guided missiles and atom bombers followed by airborne invasion, or by drawing the United States into retreating to her moves in Europe and Asia as Hitler led England to declare war against Germany.

Gen. Eaker said the United States must oppose Russian expansion through the Marshall plan and concentrate on scientific research to get the best weapons, the first stockpiles of atom bombs and facilities to deliver them.

He said that as an essential part of the defence plan we should "solve our labour problems and eliminate strikes."

He said the United States should fight the war "in Russia with bombs, not in Turkey or Iran on the ground." He said it should destroy Russia's industry without occupation.—United Press.

Fire Destroys Motorboat

A fire which broke out in the engine room of the large-sized motor boat Stevco resulted in the loss of the boat at Causway Bay Typhoon Shelter at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

At about 7.30 a.m. the crew of the boat were going to cross the harbour and when they started the engine an explosion suddenly occurred in the room and later the kerosene caught fire. The fire was so furious that the crew had to leave the boat and swim ashore.

No 2 fireboat was called for together with several fire engines but their efforts could not lessen the ferocity of the fire and the boat finally sank half an hour later.

No casualty was reported.

Preparations made in the last few days to evacuate Shanghai foreigners by sea are still held up because the Chinese Communist authorities have still not signified definite agreement.

The 6,000-ton Anking, which was to have sailed north yesterday in help in the evacuation was still in port this morning.

Whether or not assistance is given by the Australian Government, it is evident that a

Gamman Vigorously Attacks Government On Malaya

Racing Tips.

By "The Turf"

RACE 1
Ame. Clipper
Emperors Gate
Condor
Outsider—Kolinsky.

RACE 2
Good News Barely
Happy Boy
Outsider—Coogee.

RACE 3
Wonderful Mare

Kitty
Henrietta

Outsider—Flag Day.

RACE 4
True Love
Robin Hood
Speed Bird

Outsider—Pure Gold.

RACE 5
Sparkling Eyes
Oakland Bridge
Shun Fling

Outsider—Anyway.

RACE 6
Kentucky Lady

Bambi

Tiny Grey

Outsider—Confide.

RACE 7
Fillbuster
Reuter

A Grand Time

Outsider—Epinard.

RACE 8
Panda

Flat Speed

Vagabond King

Outsider—Jeep Hee.

RACE 9
Constant Star

Jeep Hing

Flying Jib

Outsider—Windermere.

RACE 10
Harmony

Rowngaten

Spanish Onion

Outsider—The Stranger.

RACE 11
Busted Straight

Sulphur

Happy Farmers

Outsider—Mahuhay.

RACE 12
Seafire

Lily

Jeep Lee

Outsider—Pearl Diver.

INVITATION TO AID IN MALAYA

Menzies Declines To Comment

Melbourne, Apr. 7.—The Prime Minister, Mr Robert Menzies, refused to comment today on suggestions in the British House of Commons that Australian help should be sought in the battle against the Communist guerillas in Malaya.

Mr Menzies, who is on holiday in Tasmania, said that he had not heard of the Commons' debate, nor was he interested in the details. He said that all he wanted to do was to rest during the holidays.

Gen. Eaker said the United States must oppose Russian expansion through the Marshall plan and concentrate on scientific research to get the best weapons, the first stockpiles of atom bombs and facilities to deliver them.

He said that as an essential part of the defence plan we should "solve our labour problems and eliminate strikes."

He said the United States should fight the war "in Russia with bombs, not in Turkey or Iran on the ground." He said it should destroy Russia's industry without occupation.—United Press.

new and more vigorous approach to the Malayan problem is needed," the Herald said.—Reuter.

WATSON'S

A Pure Sparkling Mineral Water, possessing all the qualities of famous continental Spa.

The Perfect Counterpart to Good Whisky!

Produced by—

A. S. WATSON & CO. LTD.

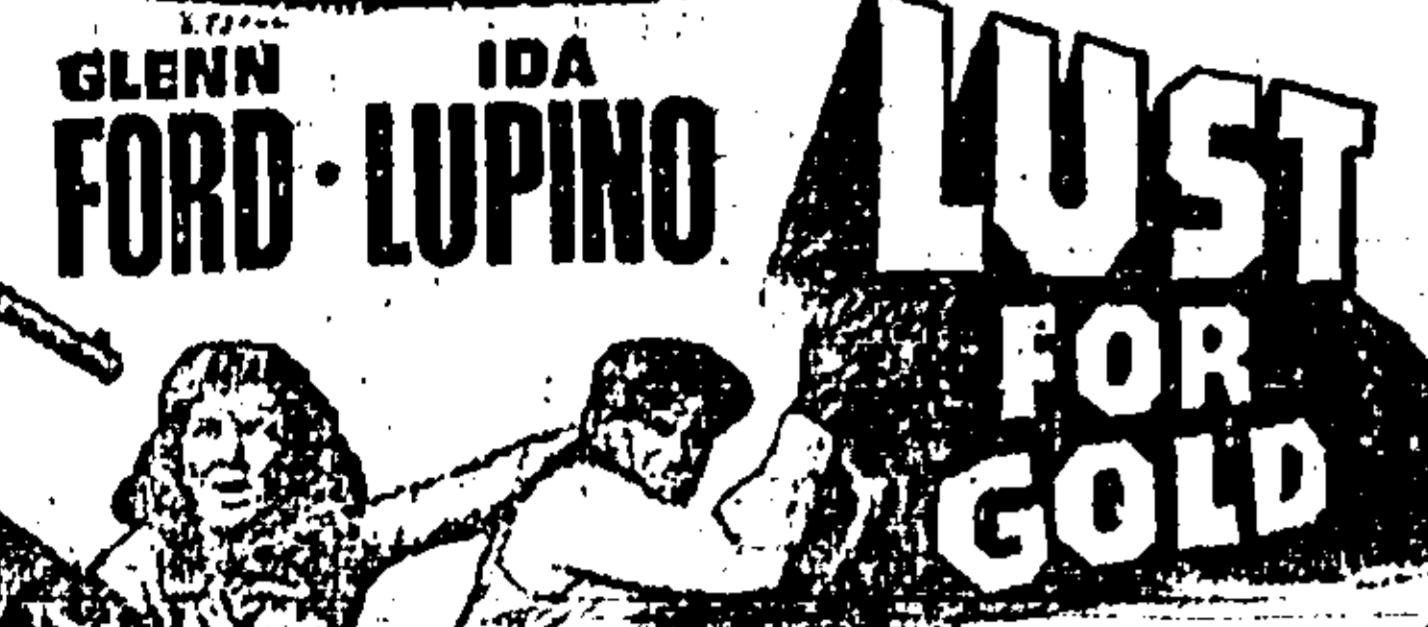

ROXY
AIR-CONDITIONED

BROADWAY
Theatre
AIR-CONDITIONED

4 SHOWS TO-DAY

AT 2.30, 5.30,
7.30 & 9.30 p.m.

TRUE STORY OF $20,000,000 IN GOLD
... yours for the taking...
if you can find it!

Produced and Directed by S. Sylvan Simon • A COLUMBIA PICTURE

BROADWAY ADDED: Latest Fox Movietone Now!

ROXY ADDED: THE MARCH OF TIME'S

light, entertaining film about vacations

"WISH YOU WERE HERE"

SUNDAY MORNING SHOW

ROXY at 11.30 a.m. Broadway at 12 noon

Columbia Films presents A Brand New PARAMOUNT

Programme "TECHNICOLOR CARTOONS, ETC."

EXCLUSIVE First Showing in HONGKONG

At Reduced Prices.

TO-DAY ONLY MAJESTIC At 2.30, 5.20,
7.20 & 9.20 p.m.

Holiday Extra Show At 12.00 Noon

To-day, 8th: Johnny Weissmuller "Tarzan and His Mate" in

Sunday, 9th: "The Kissing Bandit" Frank Sinatra in

Monday, 10th: "Luxury Liner" Jane Powell in

COMMENCING TO-MORROW

SAMUEL GOLDWYN presents
"ROSEANNA McCLOY"

Starring: Farley GRANGER • Charles BICKFORD

CENTRAL
Theatre

270, QUEEN'S RD. CENTRAL. PHONE 25720

5 SHOWS DAILY
AT 12.30, 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.
FINAL EPISODE

A COLUMBIA CHAPTER PLAY
ROBERT PAIGE • RICHARD FISKE
JAMES CRAIG • LORNA GRAY

WALT DISNEY CAN'T HELP LOVING MICE

Introduction of a new group of irresistible animal characters in Walt Disney's all-cartoon animation feature, "Cinderella," once more will stir audience speculation as to how and why he selects these little folk which form such a large proportion of his creative output.

Gus-Gus and Jaq are cronies who dwell in the great chateau where Cinderella is an abused servant of her cruel kind-women are certain to be rated surprising action and laughter among Disney's most comical and endearing creatures. They

SPECIAL DESIGN

Walt's preference for mouse characters links right up with his special design of cartoon comedy—with his whole scheme of popular entertainment in the medium where he stands supreme. In his recipe for movie fun, the timid, browbeaten, oppressed little creatures always eventually defeat the big, bad, oppressive bullies in a gale of surprising action and laughter. Remember? The pudgy pigs and the big, bad wolf, come from the mouse clan, Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox, although like all other Disneyable folk, they are not strictly animal.

Mickey Mouse is perhaps the most potent reason for Walt's election of mouse heroes in so many of his productions—Mickey himself first made the Disney name celebrated as a creative showman and entertainment genius.

Walt doesn't forget the "luck" Mickey brought him, since the time when, in a critical hour in his career, the little fellow was created from the image of a timid mouse who made himself at home in Walt's Hollywood garage studio.

CREDIT TO THE CLAN

Gus-Gus and Jaq do credit to the clan as the knightly little heroes in the "Cinderella" tale where they battle and outwit one of Disney's most sinister villains, Lucifer, the big fat house cat who reflects the meanness of the girl's cruel step-mother.

In the mouse clan too, are other helpful characters and their coy little girl friends. The feminine contingent help make a gorgeous dress for ragged Cinderella before her fortunes and provides the glass slipper and the golden pumpkin coach for the palace ball and the meeting with Prince Charming.

The song they sing and their cheery, excited chatter will long be a happy memory of the fabled mice in the romantic musical version of the timeless legend and the wondrous love story to be released.

RKO Radio distributes the elaborate, music-saturated feature, in colour by Technicolor.

FORGOTTEN SCIENCE

Today, according to the little maestro of the blade, France, Belgium and Italy are the only countries where fencing remains a real art.

Too dangerous to be faked by doubles

The singing cry of steel on steel is heard the length and breadth of Hollywood. Rapier flash and clash. Romantic heroes shout, "En garde," and thrust. Villains who have lived by the sword, died by the sword.

And wherever the bright blades flash, whether in "The Sons of the Musketeers," "Prince of Foxes," "Black Rose" or "Buccaneer's Girl," there flashes also the graceful, agile figure of Fred Cavens, one of the greatest swordsmen America ever has known.

A brilliant fencer since the age of 12, an honour graduate of the Royal Fencing College of Brussels, Fred Cavens has been teaching swordplay to the great and the near-great of Hollywood for a quarter of a century. Numbered among his noted pupils have been Cornel Wilde, Douglas Fairbanks (senior and junior), John Barrymore, John Gilbert, Milton Sills, Ian Keith, Rod LaRocque, Leslie Howard, Reginald Denay, Ralph Forbes, Basil Rathbone, Tyrone Power, Errol Flynn and a great host of other swashbuckling luminaries.

THEY HAVE TO LEARN

They have had to learn because...

Duelling with rapier or sword is the only dangerous thing transmitted to the screen that cannot be faked by doubles. Let Cavens explain:

"Skilled fencers have certain reflexes, the result of years of training. They cannot be told what to do. Their reflexes and fencing instinct tell them that. Their work also, is too lightning fast to register. Actions are not subject to such reflexes, and they can remember to act. A movie duel is slower, broader, than a real encounter, and this 'broadness' permits the opponents to register dramatic reactions."

At this writing Fred Cavens is teaching the art of puncturing hearts and drilling holes in gibbons to Cornell Wilde, Maureen O'Hara, Robert Douglas, Dan O'Hearn and Alan Hale, Jr., for spectacular fighting sequences in "The Sons of the Musketeers."

Technicolour, is set in France some 20 years after the era in which Alexandre Dumas placed the characters of his original great adventure story, "The Three Musketeers."

It will bring to the screen the sons of D'Artagnan, Porthos and Aramis, and the daughter of Athos. Playing the last-named role, Miss O'Hara will be seen often in men's clothes, swaggering, romancing and laughing at danger with her three male companions—which accounts for "The Glass Menagerie."

The picture, she believes, ought to do justice to the play, particularly since Tennessee Williams, the author, adapted it to the screen.

Even her famous comments on "gay deceivers" were "filmed added to the total effect of the photoplay.

"I would hate to have anyone think it was inserted just to give Lawrence a chance to do something," she said.

THEY WON OSCARS

British-born Olivia de Havilland has won Hollywood's most coveted award—an "Oscar"—for the second time.

The award, given by the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences, was made to her for the best acting by a woman in 1949—for her performance in "The Heiress."

She won the 1946 "Oscar" for the film "To Each His Own."

The award for the best film of 1949 was made to "All the King's Men," a film about the rise and fall of an American politician.

The song they sing and their cheery, excited chatter will long be a happy memory of the fabled mice in the romantic musical version of the timeless legend and the wondrous love story to be released.

RKO Radio distributes the elaborate, music-saturated feature, in colour by Technicolor.

QUEENS & ALHAMBRA

AIR-CONDITIONED AIR-FRESHENED

SHOWING TO-DAY AT 2.30, 5.15, 7.20 & 9.30 P.M.

ALHAMBRA: TO-DAY, TO-MORROW & MONDAY

EXTRA SHOWS AT 12.00 NOON

Want to know what the Inspector General inspects?

DANNY KAYE

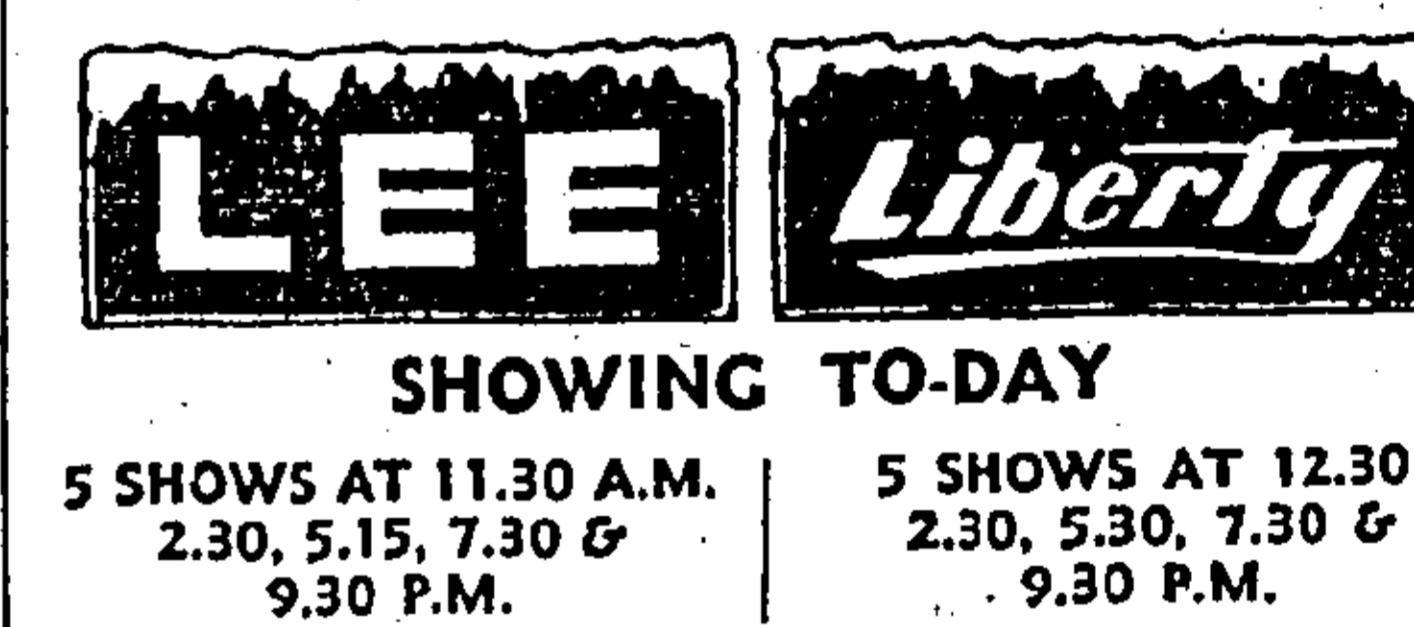

is the
Inspector General

The All-time Comedy Kaye from WARNER BROS.

QUEEN'S
TO-MORROW MORNING SHOW
AT 11.30 A.M. ONLY

VARIETY PROGRAM
(From RKO & MGM)

AT REDUCED PRICES

SHOWING TO-DAY
5 SHOWS AT 11.30 A.M.
2.30, 5.15, 7.30 &
9.30 P.M.

PEAK FILM PRESENTS

"ADVENTURES OF
THE BOY
WITH THREE HAIR"

DIALOGUE IN MANDARIN

ORIENTAL
AIR CONDITIONED

Take Any Eastern Tram Car or Happy Valley Bus

POSITIVELY LAST FOUR TIMES TO-DAY!

Final Showing: 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

ONE OF THE MOST AMAZING SPECTACLES OF BEAST AGAINST MAN IN ALL JUNGLE LOVE!

Open To-Morrow: Universal's Exciting Film

"Bud & Lou Meet the Killer Boris Karloff"

SPECIAL MORNING SHOW TO-MORROW AT 12.30

A Complete New Programme of Cartoons

5 SHOWS TO-DAY

Cathay At 12.30, 2.30,
5.30, 7.30, &
9.30 P.M.

ANOTHER MAN HWA SUPER PRODUCTION!

"MISS FENG'S LOVE ADVENTURE"

DIALOGUE IN MANDARIN

Starring: Miss PAT KWONG, SHECK YAI

Gigi's on the go

Gigi Perreau, seven-year-old actress who won fame in "Enchantment" and "Roseanna McCoy," is the busiest little tyke in Hollywood. Just as soon as she finishes her present role of Susan Hayward's daughter in Samuel Goldwyn's "My Foolish Heart," she'll jump to RKO Radio for a big supporting role in "The Man in the Moon" and "Fred MacMurray in 'Come Share My Love'."

The picture, she believes,

YOUR RADIO LISTENING FOR NEXT WEEK IN DETAIL - A "TELEGRAPH" FEATURE

All-Day Easter Holiday Programmes Over Radio Hongkong

Radio Hongkong will have all-day programmes over the Easter Holidays. Tomorrow morning, from 11 a.m., the Easter Sunday Service will be relayed from St John's Cathedral. The Easter Sunday service from St Paul's Cathedral, London, will also be relayed from 6.30 p.m. on Sunday.

Tomorrow, from 9.15 a.m., Easter Carols by the BBC Singers will be the feature with Maurice Vinden at the Organ. In this programme, the BBC Singers, under their conductor, Leslie Woodgate, will sing a group of Easter Carols from many European countries—from Sweden, France, Russia, Holland, Belgium, Germany and England.

From 8.30 p.m. tomorrow, there will be broadcast an Easter Anthology, which will be a programme of poetry, prose and unaccompanied singing. This is compiled and produced by Noel Huff.

MONDAY

(Morning)—Ambrose and His Orchestra: Vocal: Anne Shelton: Someday (You'll want me to want you)—Foxrot (Hedger)—Tommy Tucker (Tune: Vocal: Eddie Braine and His Orchestra: Tunes): The Boys (Holt)—Lulu (Hutchinson (Hutch) (vocal) with Orch): Ave La Luit (Unitarian Service)—Tango (Ernesto—Mello & Friends): Foxrot (Hedger) & His Orch: Vocal: Bob Allen: Who? Me? (Williams): The Perfect Food (Hoffman): Benevolent Cellini—Mantovani & His Orch: Vocal: Al Merrall.

10.00 RADIOS NEWSPAPER (LONDON RELAY)

10.15 WEATHER REPORT, WORLD NEWS AND HOME NEWS FROM BRITAIN (RECORDED RELAY)

11.30 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA

12.30 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.32 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

12.45 POPULAR VARIETY

12.50 "AMBROSE & HIS ORCHESTRA": Vocal: Dream Kites (Yelton): Anne Vincent (Vocal): Carry me back to the old Virginny (Foster): Frankie Laine (Vocal—Selection): You are my Love (Hoffman): Dearie, I love you: Noel brings the swing (Grapelli).

12.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.57 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

13.00 "GOD SAVE THE KING" CLOSE DOWN

TUESDAY

7.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" NEWS (LONDON RELAY)

8.00 SPORTS RESULTS (FROM THE STUDIO) BY BILL PHILIPS

8.10 MORNING MELODY

8.15 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA WITH Lulu (Hutch) (Hutch) & His Orch: Vocal: Eddie Braine and His Orchestra: Tunes: The Boys (Holt)—Lulu (Hutchinson (Hutch) (vocal) with Orch): Ave La Luit (Unitarian Service)—Tango (Ernesto—Mello & Friends): Foxrot (Hedger) & His Orch: Vocal: Bob Allen: Who? Me? (Williams): The Perfect Food (Hoffman): Benevolent Cellini—Mantovani & His Orch: Vocal: Al Merrall.

10.00 RADIOS NEWSPAPER (LONDON RELAY)

10.15 WEATHER REPORT, WORLD NEWS AND HOME NEWS FROM BRITAIN (RECORDED RELAY)

11.30 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA

12.30 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.32 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

12.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.57 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

13.00 "GOD SAVE THE KING" CLOSE DOWN

WEDNESDAY

7.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" NEWS (LONDON RELAY)

8.00 SPORTS RESULTS (FROM THE STUDIO) BY BILL PHILIPS

8.10 MORNING MELODY

8.15 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA WITH Lulu (Hutch) (Hutch) & His Orch: Vocal: Eddie Braine and His Orchestra: Tunes: The Boys (Holt)—Lulu (Hutchinson (Hutch) (vocal) with Orch): Ave La Luit (Unitarian Service)—Tango (Ernesto—Mello & Friends): Foxrot (Hedger) & His Orch: Vocal: Bob Allen: Who? Me? (Williams): The Perfect Food (Hoffman): Benevolent Cellini—Mantovani & His Orch: Vocal: Al Merrall.

10.00 RADIOS NEWSPAPER (LONDON RELAY)

10.15 WEATHER REPORT, WORLD NEWS AND HOME NEWS FROM BRITAIN (RECORDED RELAY)

11.30 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA

12.30 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.32 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

12.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.57 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

13.00 "GOD SAVE THE KING" CLOSE DOWN

THURSDAY

7.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" NEWS (LONDON RELAY)

8.00 SPORTS RESULTS (FROM THE STUDIO) BY BILL PHILIPS

8.10 MORNING MELODY

8.15 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA WITH Lulu (Hutch) (Hutch) & His Orch: Vocal: Eddie Braine and His Orchestra: Tunes: The Boys (Holt)—Lulu (Hutchinson (Hutch) (vocal) with Orch): Ave La Luit (Unitarian Service)—Tango (Ernesto—Mello & Friends): Foxrot (Hedger) & His Orch: Vocal: Bob Allen: Who? Me? (Williams): The Perfect Food (Hoffman): Benevolent Cellini—Mantovani & His Orch: Vocal: Al Merrall.

10.00 RADIOS NEWSPAPER (LONDON RELAY)

10.15 WEATHER REPORT, WORLD NEWS AND HOME NEWS FROM BRITAIN (RECORDED RELAY)

11.30 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA

12.30 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.32 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

12.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" PROGRAMME SUMMARY

12.57 STEPHANE GRAPPELLY AND HIS MUSICIANS (Selection): The Land of Smiles—Selection (Lehar): Revueville—Memories of the Wind (Lehar): The Chocolate Soldier—Selection (Oscar Strauss): Selection (Vienna—Waltz) (Selection): The Swing (Grapelli).

13.00 "GOD SAVE THE KING" CLOSE DOWN

FRIDAY

7.55 "HONGKONG CALLING" NEWS (LONDON RELAY)

8.00 SPORTS RESULTS (FROM THE STUDIO) BY BILL PHILIPS

8.10 MORNING MELODY

8.15 BROADCAST THEATRE ORCHESTRA WITH Lulu (Hutch) (Hutch) & His Orch: Vocal: Eddie Braine and His Orchestra: Tunes: The Boys (Holt)—Lulu (Hutchinson (Hutch) (vocal) with Orch): Ave La Luit (Unitarian Service)—Tango (Ernesto—Mello & Friends): Foxrot (Hedger) & His Orch: Vocal: Bob Allen: Who? Me? (Williams): The Perfect Food (Hoffman): Benevolent Cellini—Mantovani & His Orch: Vocal: Al Merrall.

10.00 RADIOS NEWSPAPER (LONDON RELAY)

10.15 "SATURDAY ROUND-UP"

10.30 "TIME FOR MUSIC"

10.45 THE BBC MIDLAND LIGHT ORCHESTRA CONDUCTED BY GILBERT VINTER

10.50 "THE CANTERBURY TALES" (LONDON RELAY)

11.00 WEATHER REPORT

11.15 "GEORGE MITCHELL CHOIR"

Lay my head beneath a rose (Madison): Will the Angels play their Harp for me (Hoffman): The song is performed (Berlin).

11.20 "CARABET" AND DANCE MUSIC

11.25 "QUICKSTEP" (Weldon—Thurber): The Canaries—Cinderella Waltz—Piccolo Polka: The Come-dians—South African Dancers: 12.00 "FROM THE EDITORIALS" (LONDON RELAY)

12.10 WEATHER REPORT

12.25 "JOHN GIBSON'S STUDIO"

12.30 "THE DEBATE CONTINUES"

12.35 "MILITARY BAND"

12.40 "THE NEWS ANALYSIS"

12.45 "PLACER OF INTEREST" WITH JOY NICHOLS, DICK BENTLEY AND JIMMY EDWARDS

12.50 "THE JAZZ HALF HOUR" (STUDIO)

12.55 "HOTEL REQUESTS" (LONDON RELAY)

13.00 "WORLD NEWS" (LONDON RELAY)

13.15 "PROGRAMME OF THE WEEK"

13.20 "THE JAZZ CLUB" (LONDON RELAY)

13.25 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

13.30 "THE WOMEN'S PROGRAMME" (LONDON RELAY)

13.35 "THE JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

13.40 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

13.45 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

13.50 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

13.55 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.00 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.05 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.10 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.15 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.20 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.25 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.30 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.35 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.40 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.45 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.50 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

14.55 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.00 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.05 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.10 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.15 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.20 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.25 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.30 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.35 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.40 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.45 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.50 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

15.55 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.00 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.05 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.10 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.15 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.20 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.25 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.30 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.35 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.40 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.45 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.50 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

16.55 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.00 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.05 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.10 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.15 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.20 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.25 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.30 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.35 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.40 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.45 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.50 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

17.55 "THE SUMMER JAZZ HALL" (LONDON RELAY)

BILLY ROSE'S
SATURDAY AT THE
DIAMOND HORSESHOE

The lady saw stars & stripes

BEFORE the war—World War II, that is—the cushiest peace-time assignment the Army had to offer a West Point graduate was at one of its cavalry posts. Because, where there's cavalry there are bound to be horses, and where there are horses there is frequently polo—the sport of kings and second lieutenants.

Which brings me to the story of Lieutenant Larry Benson's revenge and, if you'll pardon a frightful pun, his mallets afterthought....

In 1938, while playing No. 2 on his post's polo team, Larry's right eye got in the way of an opponent's mallet, and when he came to in the hospital an hour later, he was minus the eye.

The following week, in accordance with standard operating procedure, the Army presented him with a handsome glass substitute and reassigned him to command a battery of mine-clearing graphs in the post's supply centre.

WHEN Larry realised he would never again chase a small white ball around a big green field he became well-nigh inconsolable and, like so many others, he began to console himself with a bottle.

But, as luck would have it, the Colonel in charge of the post was a teetotaller—not the live-and-let-live type, but the other kind. And, as for the Colonel's lady—well...she was every bit as tight-minded as he.

One morning when Larry reported for duty after a night of bar-flying, the colonel fixed him with a baleful eye. "Benson," he said in the tone of voice one usually reserves for a tarantula crawling up one's leg. "You are—drunk!"

Larry, who quite prided himself on being able to drink like a gentleman, couldn't imagine how the Colonel had diagnosed his condition until he groped his way to the men's room and examined himself in the mirror.

And there was the answer. His good eye looked as if it had been spattered with ketchup, while the other was as clear as the crystal it was made of.

Well, Benson was what you might call a resourceful man, and so he went to a glass-eye artist and ordered two more eyes—one milky bloodshot, the other the colour of borsch.

AND after that, on mornings after, he raw to it that his false eye matched the true one, shifting in easy stages from very bloodshot to medium bloodshot to clear.

From then on his drinking caused no comment, and the ex-polo player might have shunned for years between martinis and mimographs if his hankering for horseflesh hadn't led him to apply for an assignment which would get him back in the saddle.

"Request denied," said the Colonel. "Furthermore, when I order a man to do a particular job, I expect him to stick to it. Remember, Lieutenant, we are all in the service of the United States of America."

Naturally, this kind of talk didn't sit well with Larry, and determined to get his own back he went back to the orb specialist and ordered a very special kind of eye: smuck-dab in the centre where the eyeball should have been, his specifications called for an American flag fluttering in the breeze.

The day of vengeance came a week later, when the Colonel and his wife held their annual reception for the junior officers of the post. As the bored lieutenants and captains were mummeling their thanks to their hostess and filling out, Larry stepped forward, bowed, and then straightened up, his eyes half closed. "Madam," he said solemnly, "we must never forget that we are all in the service of the United States of America." And with that he popped his right eye open.

A GOOD 15 minutes later, when the woman was finally brought to with smelling salts and much rubbing of the wrists, she told her husband, as best she could, about the fluttering flag in Larry's eye....

And that's the story of Lieutenant Benson's revenge. For, to hear the cavalry boys tell it, the Colonel is still wondering whether he's married to a do-gooder or to a dame who hits the bottle on the quiet.

"Reckon Buck Pern ain't goin' to forget the holes in his hat when two-gun Webb calls for the meat."

London Express Service

Sefton Delmer's Flying Briefcase

A FRIEND was driving me to his club in Calcutta when suddenly a procession of demonstrators flooded out of a side street, and we had to stop.

They were all dressed in white Gandhi winding-sheets and were half running, half walking, screwing themselves up in a kind of epileptic ecstasy.

As they leaped along the hot street they waved banners and shouted slogans in time with a sunspectacled cheer leader.

What they wanted was simple and straightforward "Revenge for our murdered brethren." They shouted, "We want war."

India's leader, Pandit Nehru, had arrived in town that morning, and these lads were on their way to salute him when he drove in triumph through the streets. When we met them they were just getting themselves into the right mood.

And there was the answer. His good eye looked as if it had been spattered with ketchup, while the other was as clear as the crystal it was made of.

Well, Benson was what you might call a resourceful man, and so he went to a glass-eye artist and ordered two more eyes—one milky bloodshot, the other the colour of borsch.

AND after that, on mornings after, he raw to it that his false eye matched the true one, shifting in easy stages from very bloodshot to medium bloodshot to clear.

From then on his drinking caused no comment, and the ex-polo player might have shunned for years between martinis and mimographs if his hankering for horseflesh hadn't led him to apply for an assignment which would get him back in the saddle.

"Request denied," said the Colonel. "Furthermore, when I order a man to do a particular job, I expect him to stick to it. Remember, Lieutenant, we are all in the service of the United States of America."

Naturally, this kind of talk didn't sit well with Larry, and determined to get his own back he went back to the orb specialist and ordered a very special kind of eye: smuck-dab in the centre where the eyeball should have been, his specifications called for an American flag fluttering in the breeze.

The day of vengeance came a week later, when the Colonel and his wife held their annual reception for the junior officers of the post. As the bored lieutenants and captains were mummeling their thanks to their hostess and filling out, Larry stepped forward, bowed, and then straightened up, his eyes half closed. "Madam," he said solemnly, "we must never forget that we are all in the service of the United States of America." And with that he popped his right eye open.

A GOOD 15 minutes later, when the woman was finally brought to with smelling salts and much rubbing of the wrists, she told her husband, as best she could, about the fluttering flag in Larry's eye....

And that's the story of Lieutenant Benson's revenge. For, to hear the cavalry boys tell it, the Colonel is still wondering whether he's married to a do-gooder or to a dame who hits the bottle on the quiet.

I saw the cheer leader whip up fury

CONTINUING the notebooks of an expert eye on a flying tour across the world

Warsaw's General Grosz — this little party looked very much as though it had to be careful than sorry."

My fellow travellers were all Indians—many of them women in veils and sarees. Their golden anklets made a pretty tinkling noise as they tripped across the tarmac to the aircraft.

The Indian Customs gave them all an extremely careful going-over. Every item of jewellery the women were taking with them had to be checked against lists, made out in advance and sanctioned by the Currency Control.

The odd thing was that the officials, all of them Indians, conducted all their business in English. It sounded most intriguing: "One nose ring gold and pearl..."

Let us face it: there is nothing like supplying idealists with a little material incentive.

Nose Ring Check

The Hindu pilot of the Indian National Airways plane which flew me from Calcutta to Rangoon wore a huge R.A.F. moustache. And he spoke R.A.F. English. When I showed impatience

Wool has been shooting up to unheard of prices. The result is that Australian sheep farmers are almost all changing over to breeding sheep for wool rather than for meat.

The effects of this, I am told, will make themselves felt soon.

Double Dose

If you suffer from hay fever, as I do, do not fly across the world, as I did. For I have only succeeded in ensuring that I shall get hay fever twice—once in the Australian summer and again later in the British summer.

Vote Saving

One reason why the Socialists lost in Australia is that they have the system of preferential voting out there.

With preferential voting a minority group, like the Attlee Socialists in Britain, would never be able to defeat an anti-Socialist majority of the electorate. Just because the majority vote is split.

For no votes are lost. All count for the final result.

Suppose there is a three-cornered election with a Socialist, a Conservative, and a Liberal candidate.

The voter puts one, two, and three against the candidate's name for his first, second, and third choice. Thus a Socialist would probably put Socialist 1, Liberal 2, Conservative 3.

If, when the first preferences are counted there is no majority for any one candidate, they knock out the candidate with the lowest first preference vote, count up the second preferences of his supporters and add them to the votes of the first two candidates.

In a three-cornered election this would be certain to produce an overall majority, and a much fairer one than the majority won by our British "first past the post" system.

He Trusted...

First thing I find on returning to England is a letter from Erwin Muller, of Dortmund, Germany. Remember Erwin? He was the German dismantler who, relying on the protection of British General Bishop and the British Military Government, took his men last July to dismantle a paraffin works in Dortmund belonging to the Hoesch concern. He was beaten up by an organised mob.

Ringleaders of the mob, who later appeared before a British Military Government Tribunal, were sentenced to almost nominal terms of imprisonment. Erwin's fate is just what I expected it to be.

... I am being boycotted by all German authorities. I have been forced to dismiss most of my workmen. I shall be forced to give notice to the rest of my workers any day now. I don't know what to do after that.

That is what comes of relying on British protection in Germany.

London Express Service

The WICKSTEED DIAMOND

By BERNARD WICKSTEED

SHINYANGA, Tanganyika,

I'VE found a diamond. I have to admit that from a jeweller's point of view it is not in the same class as the Hope Diamond, the Cullinan, or the Koh-i-noor.

In fact, it is only about the size of a split pea and in its present uncut state is worth no more than a mere £10.

But it is a real diamond, even if it's a rough one, and some day, somewhere I hope a woman will wear it in a ring on her finger and be mighty proud of it.

So in case it should be you, or someone you know, who acquires the Wicksteed Diamond I will tell you its history.

It was found at 10.45 a.m. on March 16, 1950, by Bernard Wicksteed (described as a journalist). He picked it out from a small pile of gravel that had been given to him to look through during a professional visit to Dr Williamson's diamond mine at Shinyanga.

Neither the pipe nor the Wicksteed Diamond that entered it right have ever been found. If it hadn't been for a Canadian geology lecturer from McGill.

His name was Dr John Thompson Williamson, B.A., M.Sc., Ph.D., and just when he was getting along fine at the university and looked like being a journalist some day, he checked up his academic career and went looking for diamonds in Africa.

Then I'd do just what he does, I'd give all my staff lovely houses, I'd throw wonderful parties for them with a band brought from Kenya by air. I'd build the finest hospital in Tanganyika, and if the sentry at the entrance to the mine didn't recognise me I'd dash down the gates with my car.

There are diamonds everywhere and they all belong to the little ex-doi who cocked his snook at the world.

You walk over diamonds, drive over them, sleep on them and everyone on the mine is mad on gardening because...well, you never know.

You mustn't imagine from this that you can just walk around filling up your pockets.

Getting inside one haystack is easy. You just use a magnet. But each haystack—about one to every ton of gravel—has to be spotted by eye and picked out by hand as the Wicksteed Diamond was.

Bottled jewels

EVERY day 1,500 tons of gravel are washed and sifted, and an average yield is about half a cigarette full of diamonds, numbering about 1,500, weighing 2½ ounces and worth £4,000.

At the end of the day they are all taken up to Williamson's house, where he puts them into jam jars and sweet bottles. For Wicksteed's benefit he emptied out one of these bottles on the desk in his study.

Then he went out to fetch a drink, and Wicksteed went alone in a room with a pile of diamonds worth £10,000. They were worth only a few hundred pounds and when he tried to raise money for better equipment the bank manager merely laughed at him.

So back to the bush he went, and next time he came to town he had £30,000 worth of diamonds in a barley-sugar bottle. That made the banks change.

—(London Express Service)

GIRARD PERREGAUX

Fine Watches since 1791

GIRARD
GP
SWISS
PERREGAUX

Fight 'Baby Blackmail'

CANON HUGH WARNER
the Church of England's marriage adviser writes his weekly column HUSBANDS and WIVES

THE WOMAN deliberately had a child by him before I divorced him. My little boy pined so much for his father that I took him to a doctor, who said he would soon get over it; it was no worse than losing his father in the war. What should I do?

YOU fell into the trap, like so many other wives. Your husband's mistress knew she would "get her man" by baby blackmail, for most women can be counted on to sympathise with a baby "without a name."

AN illegitimate child suffers from what is not his fault, then the remedy is: "Change public opinion." The remedy is certainly not: "Divorce your husband." If you do, you strengthen the hands of women like the one you mention.

TRY not to show any resentment towards your husband in front of your boy, or you will disillusion him unnecessarily just at the time when he needs a father-attachment of some kind. In a few years he will outgrow this psychological stage of emotional development, and can gradually learn the truth. Let your son become independent, self-reliant. You will then do much to right what has already gone wrong.

TELL her the truth. When you and she were married the registrar said these words to you: "Before you are joined in matrimony it is my duty to remind you of the solemn character of the vows you are about to make. Marriage, according to the laws of this country, is the union of one man with one woman, voluntarily entered into for life, to the exclusion of all other."

The registrar then witnessed your marriage to each other before other witnesses. In other words, a register office wedding is as binding as that for a couple married in church who say: "I take thee for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer; in sickness and in health . . . until death us do part."

Such friendships, however, are only safe when couple agree in regarding their marriage vows in every way as lifelong.

When you talk things over with her, suggest to her that you may be partly to blame. Have you taken her love too much for granted? Do you let business occupy too much of your time, so that you have little leisure in which to go about with her? She may be able to tell you of things about you that irritate her.

There is no reason why this whole trouble may not be just the incentive you both need to take stock of your relations with each other.

What your doctor says is nonsense. When a father is killed, the child recognises that it is final, as far as this life is concerned. So the child adjusts itself to his father's absence.

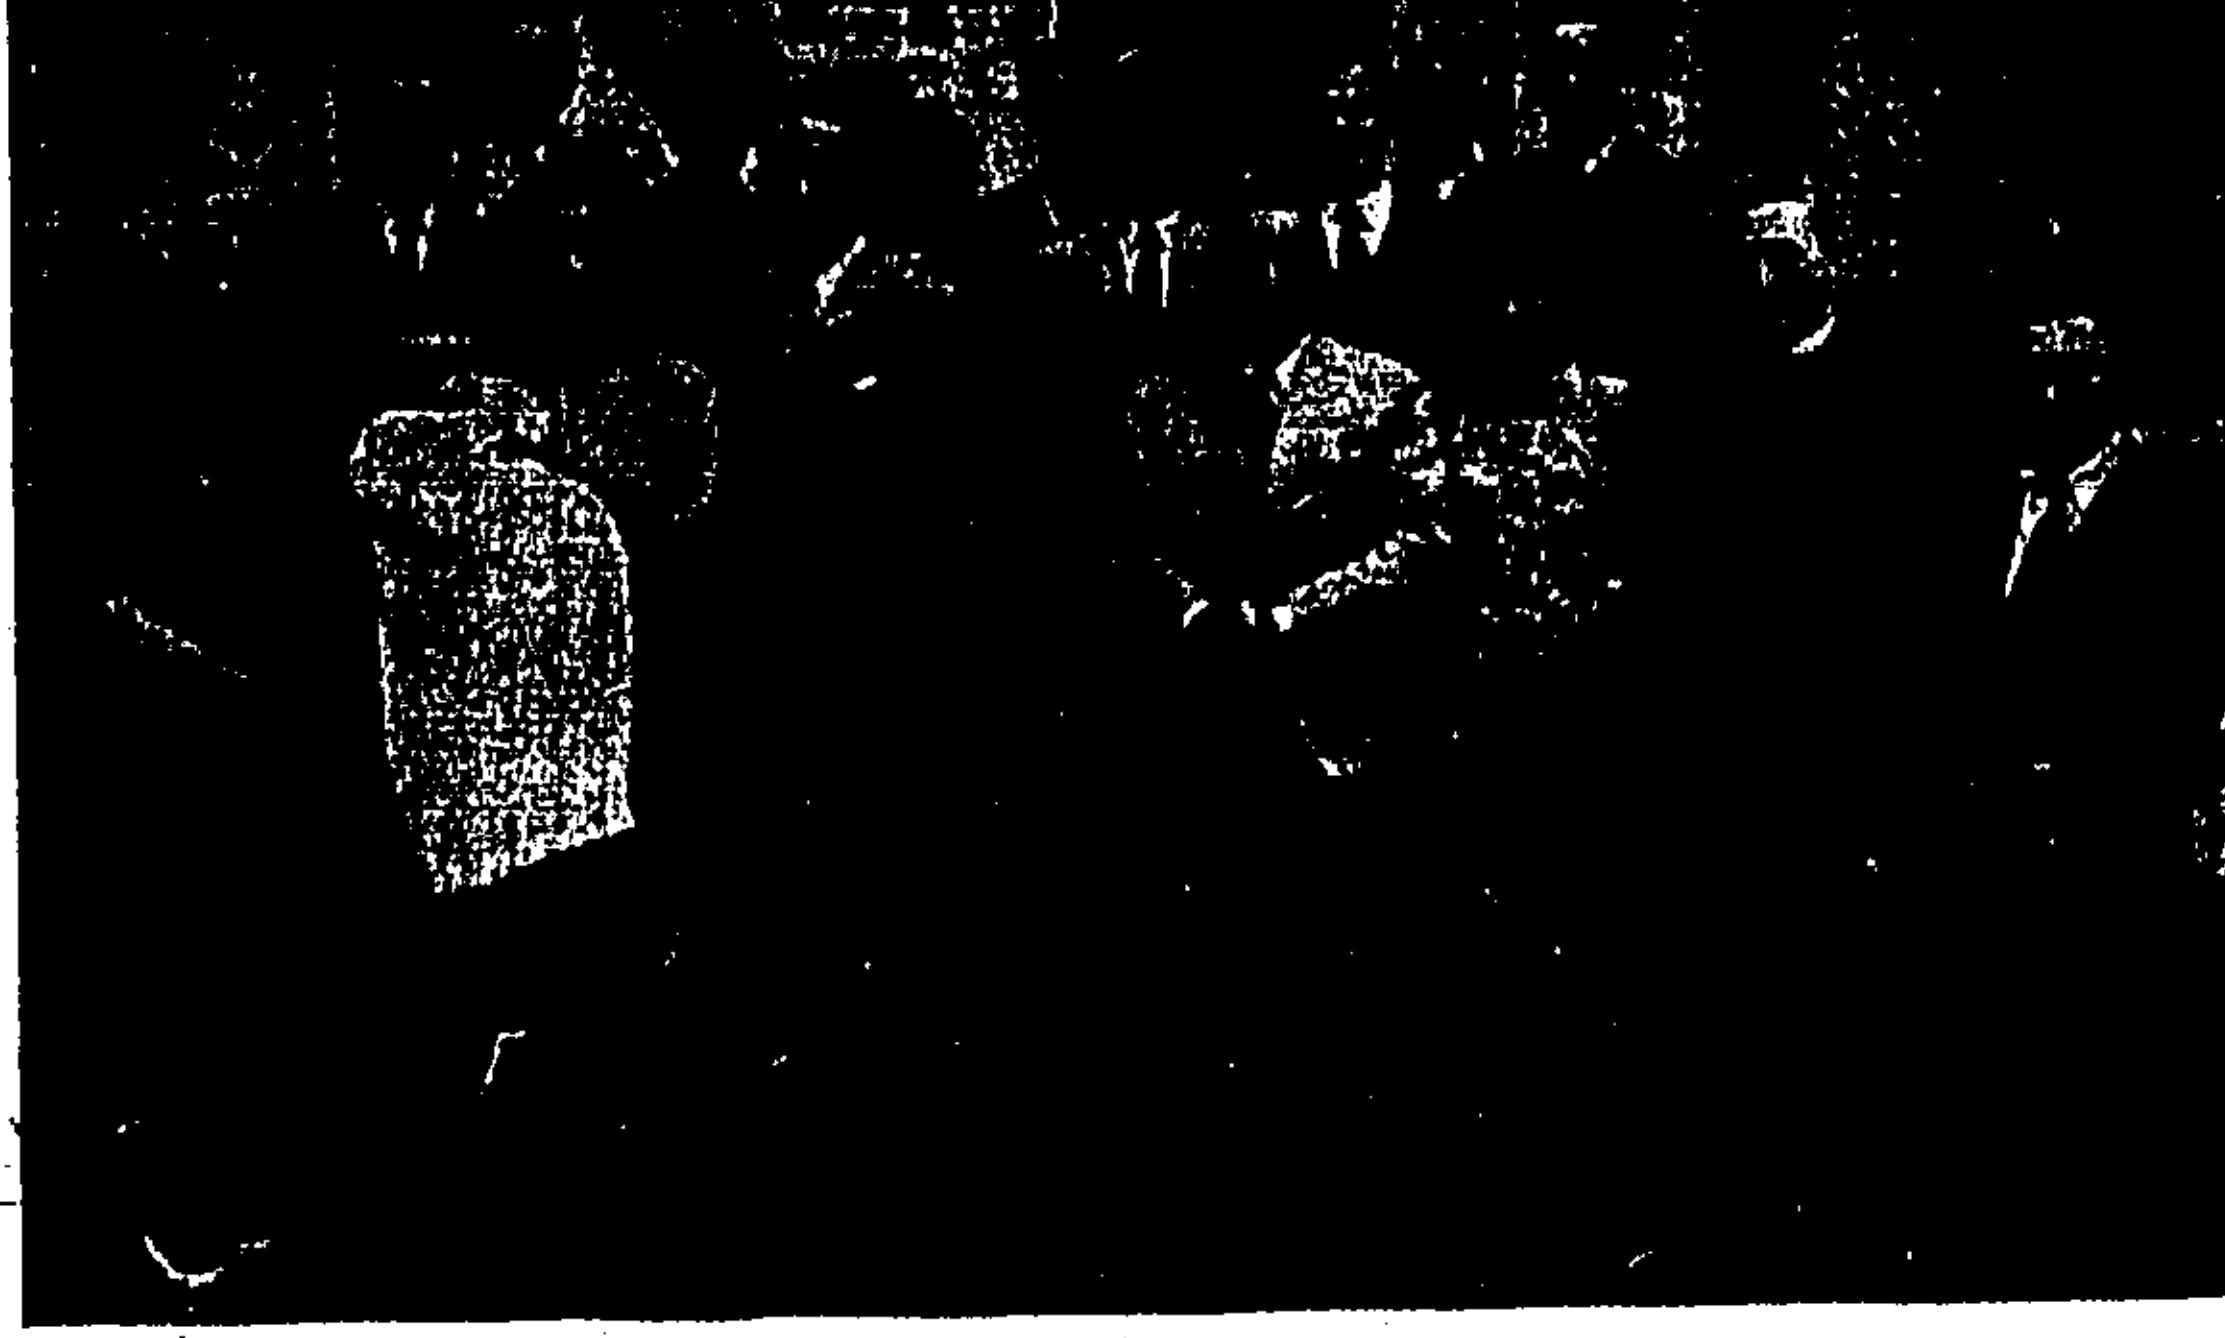

—London Express Service

AT the annual Boat Race dinner of the Oxford and Cambridge Society. Upper picture: His Excellency the Governor, Sir Alexander Grantham, with the Hon. D. F. Landale. Lower picture: The Hon. Loo D'Almada, KC, with the Acting Colonial Secretary, the Hon. R. R. Todd. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

A wedding of much interest to military circles was that between Sergeant R. A. Cowley, of the 3rd Commando Brigade, and Miss Agnes Wyllie, of the Women's Royal Army Corps, which took place last Saturday at St Andrew's Church. Here are two pictures taken at the Church and at the reception held later at the Servants' Mess, Whitfield Barracks. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

PICTURE taken at St John's Cathedral last Sunday on the occasion of the christening of Caroline, daughter of Mr and Mrs R. H. Sutton. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Timothy Koh-ming Liu and his bride, formerly Miss Vivien Yin-man Au. They were married recently at St John's Cathedral. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

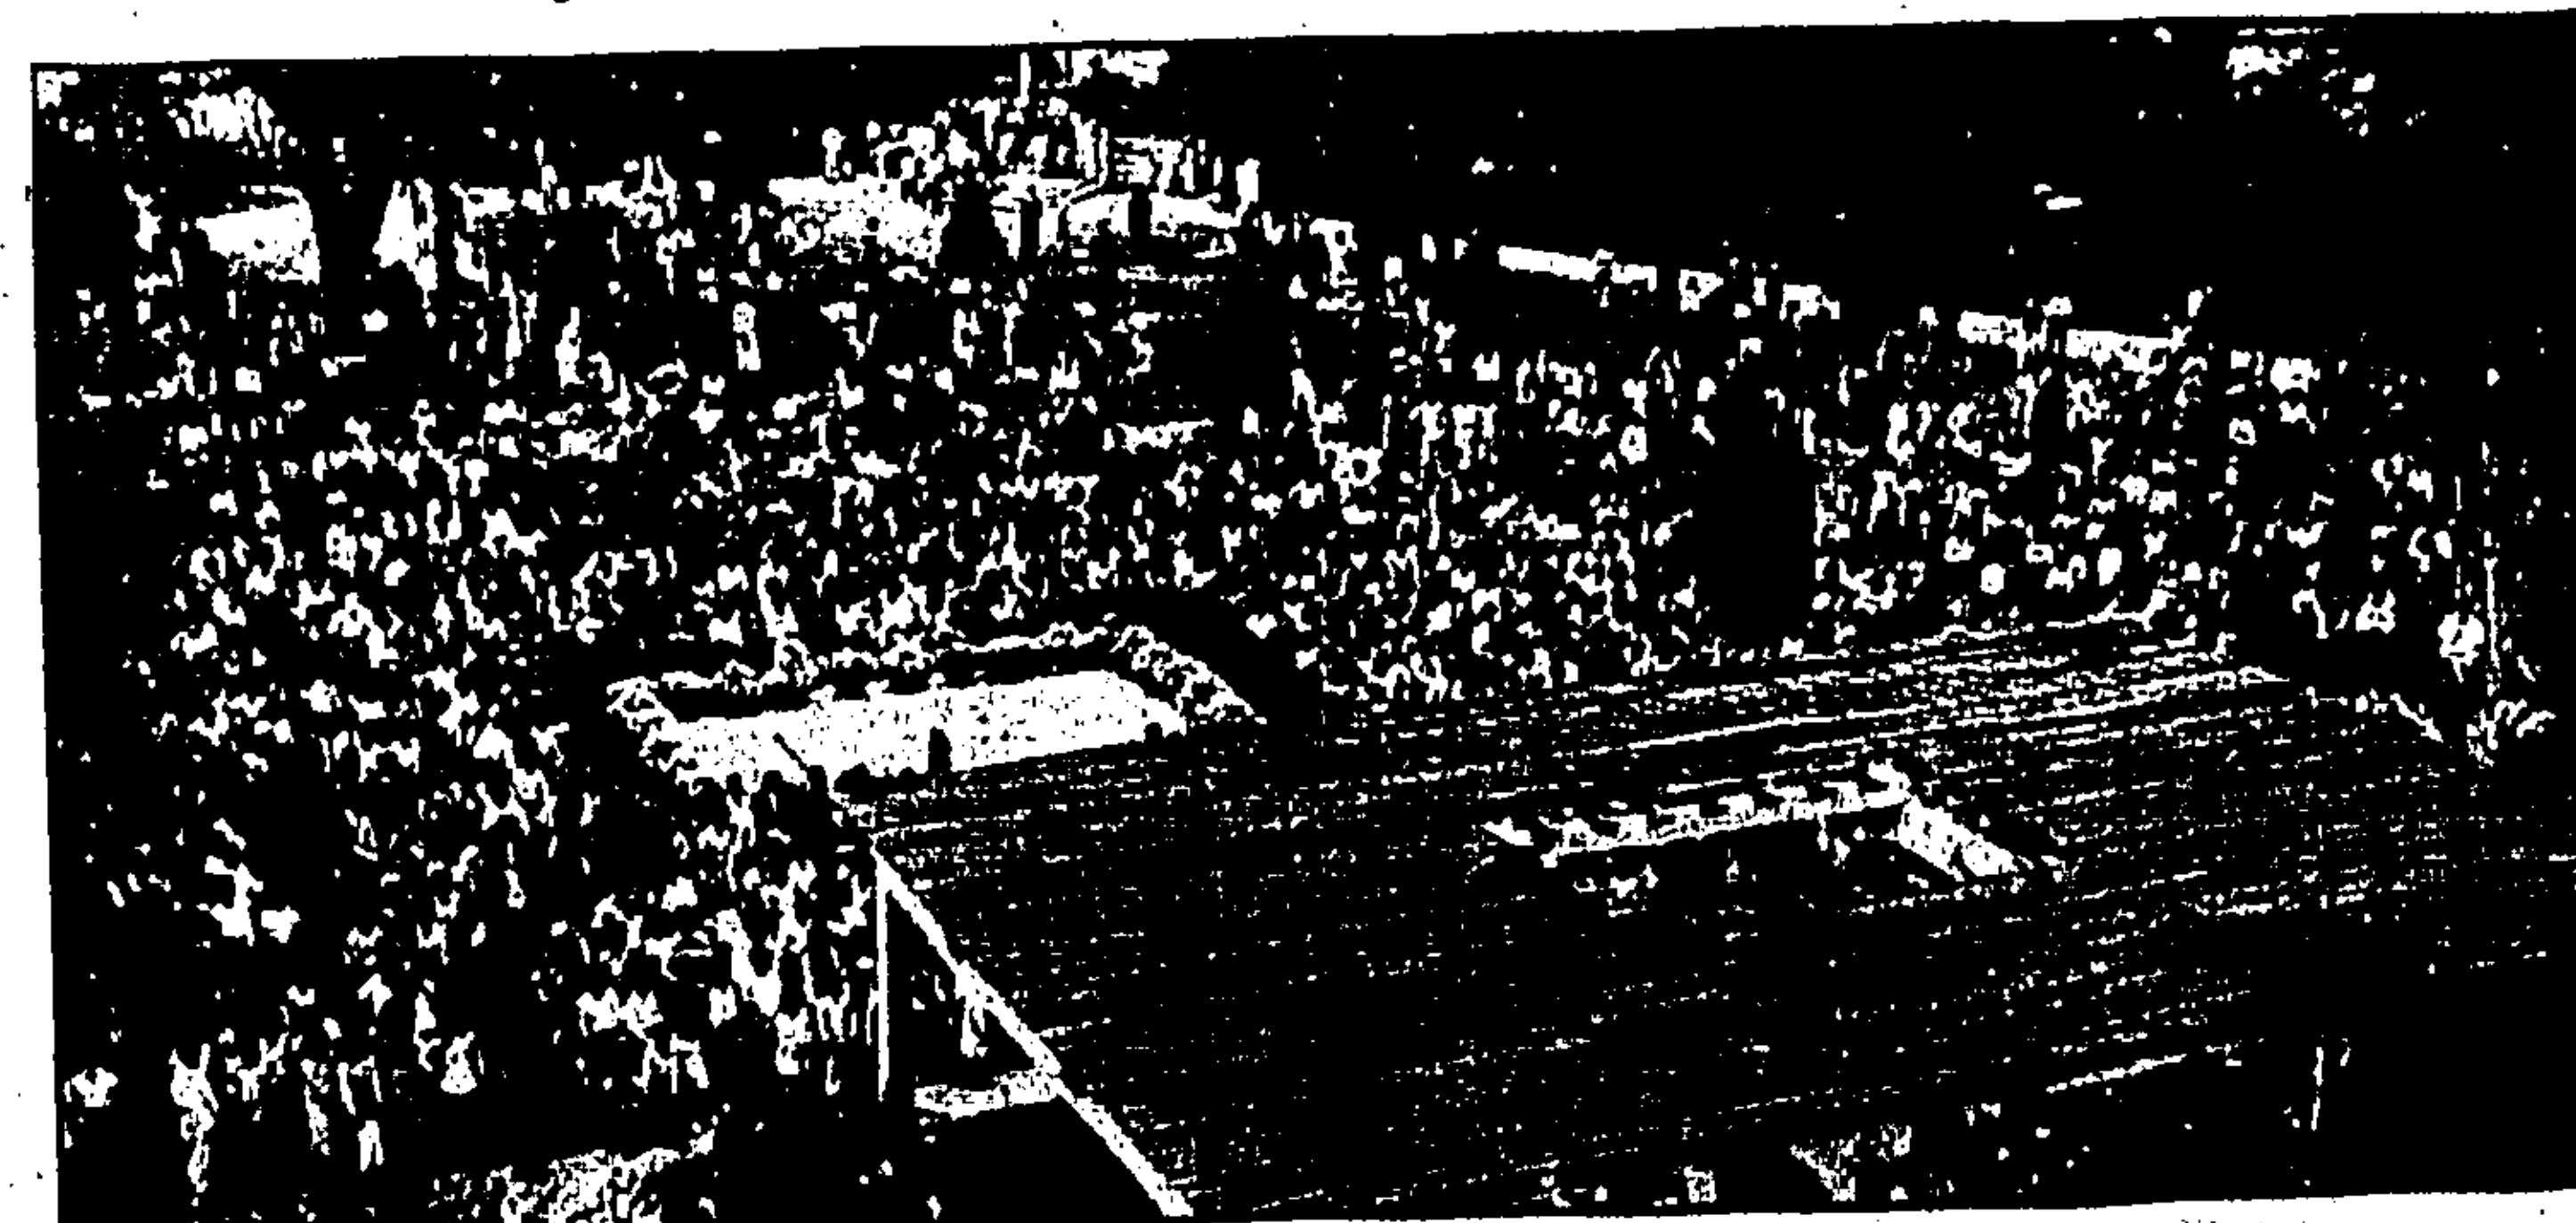

RARE Chinese banknotes dating back one thousand years to the Sung Dynasty were on view earlier this week at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce. One interesting specimen was a cloth note issued by the Chinese Communists during their famous "Long March" to Yenan in 1934. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

GOING to the wicket to open the Scorpions' innings last Saturday at Chater Road are L. F. Stokes (left) and O. J. Kerr. Stokes made 118, highest score this season. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

THREE pictures taken at the dance given last Saturday at the Indian Recreation Club. There was a large attendance, and the function was a big success. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

AN idea of the very large crowds which are attracted to the fortnightly afternoon band concerts at the Botanical Gardens may be drawn from this picture taken last Sunday, when the Band of the King's Own Scottish Borderers played. Highland dances were also given by KOSB dancers. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

Evening Dresses

made up in exclusive cottons by

Ascher

only at

Paquerette Ltd.
Gloucester Bldg, Des Voeux Rd.

Let GILMAN'S
service it regularly!

Gilman's Radio Dept. makes sick radios better again—quickly, with experts who know the insides of all radios at a glance. Call 27017 for real Radio Service!

GILMAN & COMPANY LTD.
Gloucester Arcade RADIO DEPT. Tel. 27017

WEEK-END WOMANSENSE

K shoes

Our recent shipment of these famous British shoes includes two styles specially suitable for summer wear. The more dressy one is lightly built and has perforated suede forepart and leather soles; the other is more of a sports shoe with crepe rubber soles and interlaced calf uppers.

Both are on show in the window, whilst inside our bright modern store you will find a full range of "K" shoes for everyday use.

MACKINTOSH'S

13, CHATER ROAD

(Between Mouttrie's and Kelly & Walsh's)

BEAUTY ARMED

By HELEN FOLLETT

SLEEVELESS frocks are not for those whose arms are too fat or too thin. More than unsightly are the over-developed, slabby upper arms of the older woman who has not minded her eating habits and has taken on weight. Sharp elbows, also are no beauty bargain. The plump woman can get down to normal weight if she will make the effort. Miss Skinny, if in good health, can put on curves by eating hot cereals for breakfast, drinking a quart of rich milk a day, cutting down on activities, getting to bed at a respectable hour.

Arms seldom get beauty attention and they are subject to good-looks defects, the same as the complexion, the hands and the figure. Goose flesh is one affliction; to overcome use a heavy brush when bathing, dry well, apply a semi-liquid hand lotion that will prove soothing.

Reducing Arms

Elbows that are a dingy grey can spoil the picture of the wearer of the formal. They, too, need the stimulating effect of a strong-bristled bath brush, after which the arm binges should be massaged with toilet lanoline or cocoon-butter. A simple bleach made by combining equal parts of peroxide and strained lemon juice should be applied twice a week, allowed to dry on.

Too stout arms can be reduced by means of exercise. Swinging Indian clubs is one way to turn the trick. This practice not only brings the arms to normal, but the lifting of the arms has a favourable effect upon an over-developed bust.

Wonderful, NEW TYPE WHIPPING CREAM adds glamour to desserts!

Everything about AVOSSET is new—exciting! It keeps until you need it. It whips easily—surely. And stays firmly whipped for hours. AVOSSET is pure dairy cream—thick, luscious, healthful. Gives glamour to pies, cakes, puddings.

FRUIT-NUT TOPPING! Whip ½ cup AVOSSET. Fold in ½ cup chopped nuts, citron, orange or lemon peel, candied fruit. Serve on top of hot gingerbread, spiced or plain cake.

Also try AVOSSET Table Grade for coffee, cereals, fruits.

AVOSSET
STERILIZED CREAM
Whipping

Sole Agents: H. CORRA LTD.

DINNER DANCE

UNDER THE DISTINGUISHED PATRONAGE OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR AND LADY GRANTHAM, AND ORGANISED BY THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY OF

The Hong Kong Society For The Protection Of Children,

AT THE

SKY ROOM
LUNA PARK

FRIDAY, APRIL 28

At 8 p.m. To 1 a.m.

NOVEL FLOOR SHOW

Tickets $25 (Including Dinner) On Sale Each Day in The Hongkong Hotel Lobby, Between The Hours Of 11.30 A.M. — 1.30 P.M.

Book Your Table From The Floor Plan Which Will Be Available During These Hours.

TAI HANG JEWELLERY
Wholesalers of CUT-DIAMONDS

and
Sole Agents for

Liberty Diamond Cutting Works (Pty) Ltd.

Johannesburg, South Africa.

Bank of East Asia Bldg.,
7th Floor, Room 707,
Hong Kong.

Telephone 21386.

Spring hats are gay—and made in straw

SUSAN DEACON

Above: Black 'cartwheel' straw showing the return of the crinoline edge.

Left: The American "apple hat" in navy blue and pink straw.

Below: White straw Dutch bonnet with feather plumes.

I have seen some ordinary garden vegetable baskets with bright painted bases. The smaller size looks attractive. Another idea is to paint an ordinary garden wheelbarrow white, fill it with mould and grow geraniums in it. It looks attractive standing in a large hall and, in the summer, in a big open fireplace.

From New York I hear that men's pyjamas are being made with short sleeves and long legs—short sleeves and short legs—the man can buy the bottoms only—or tops only.

For children

Do you think that children should be free to read what they like? I do, provided they are offered a well-prepared choice.

I have just seen an excellent little volume called "Four to Fourteen" which gives particulars of 1,200 books suitable for children between those ages, compiled by Kathleen Lines, under such headings as Nursery Rhymes, Fairy Tales, Famous People, History, Science, Things to Do, Pony Books, Art, Music, Natural History, etc.

—London Express Service.

THE housewife's headache—spring-cleaning time—is here. Beating removes the dust from carpets, but does not get rid of the grime. Damson leaves—which many women use for carpet cleaning, absorb the dust, but do not cleanse. Salt is a better cleaner than tea-leaves, and it also freshens the colours. When you sweep your carpet dip the brush first in warm salt water.

Makers of Persian carpets often use potato water to bring up the colours. Scrape raw potatoes very fine. Pour hot water over them, let it stand—strain, and wash the carpet, a small piece at a time, with the water. Don't make it too wet.

Tapestry curtains and upholstery also brighten up considerably with a little salt and water. Brush well, lay fabric flat, and over it lay a damp sheet, then beat with a cane.

Go over the material first with a duster well wrung out in cold, salt water. Then with a duster wrung out in warm, savory water. Wipe finally with warm salt water.

If you need to buy carpets or curtaining, remember that black is becoming fashionable, for the house again. Black printed linen with a colourful floral design on it sells for 8s. 1d. a yard.

Similar black stair carpet, with a floral pattern, is also in the shops. Black patterned curtains and carpets are most effective if you have off-white walls and paintwork.

Plants are being used again for home decoration as well as cut flowers—and they last much longer. Be original in your choice of containers.

—London Express Service.

WHEN MR. AND MRS. GO SHOPPING.

A pretty face wins his approval

by ANNE EDWARDS

with sketches by ROBB

ASK a woman to pick out a suit from a parade and she will always name it by colour: "I like the pale blue" she'll say—because her first thought in choosing clothes is the colour.

If you ask a man to pick out which one he likes best he usually replies: "Oh, the little blonde." That's because a man always looks first at the girl and secondly at what she's wearing.

If a man and a woman were asked to pick the best suit from the four drawn above they would each make different choices.

A woman would argue like this:

"I like No. 3 because it's the latest Dior line. I wonder if they've got it in my size and colour?"

If she finds they have it in the right size—she will, after much thought, pass up her first colour favourite for a second choice.

But nothing will make her buy it in the wrong colour.

Her mind definitely made up, she hunts around for practical reasons to bolster her choice.

She conducts a hopeless battle with herself along these lines:

"It is much more than I meant to pay—but then I shall get two items and I'll be able to change them around with my other suits."

"It is rather short and perhaps I haven't really got the legs for it—but then it doesn't need a wasp waist."

The tartan skirt I like because it's gay, it's feminine. It's not too tight at the hips, and it's long enough to cover the backs of the knees."

"Of course, pale blue takes a lot of cleaning—but cleaning is so much easier these days anyway. And it will definitely need a new hat to go with it—but then it is high time I had one—my old one is out of date."

If she's a bit older I like to see a woman in a good plain tailored suit like No. 2. But it must be well tailored, because that's something I know all about.

If she's a little older or fatter or a tiny bit more practical she may sell herself No. 4 instead. But it's only a rather less-starting, less-extreme version of No. 3.

A man would argue like this:

"I like No. 1 because it shows off a girl's figure. In that jacket you KNOW she's got a small waist—but in those loose coats she might be any size underneath all that material."

I'm just getting used to this New Look—I like it because it's feminine. I can't see why women want to give up just because some designer in Paris has thought up something new."

The tartan skirt I like because it's gay, it's feminine. It's not too tight at the hips, and it's long enough to cover the backs of the knees."

Add A Lock To Your Watch

A HUNDRED percent safety device is the claim of a London firm for a Vanguard lock which is attached to watch straps. The lock is constructed in such a way that there is no risk that the watch-strap will open or drop, thus preventing loss or breakage. Furthermore, the lock is adjustable so that it can be fixed to any leather or metal strap and can fit any size of wrist.

For women, this firm has also produced an adjustable interlock for watch-straps in 18 gauge metal, either brass or copper, in gilt or chrome finish. It has either pinch-on or loop-end fittings.

Another of the firm's products is a flexible ladies' watch-strap made in hexagon squares, in gilt and chrome. A similar pattern is available in necklaces, bracelets and ear-rings. For men, the firm

Duster Check Tweed

FREDERICK STARKE, wholesale designer, here illustrates a typical London line. The jacket-dress with bloused top in black and pink duster check crepe tweed has a tight-fitting skirt in black.

A NECKTIE FOR YOU, MADAME!

By Elizabeth Toomey

NEW YORK, If a sleepy-eyed husband shows up at the office this spring wearing a gold necktie sprinkled with plush violets, he must have reached for the wrong tie rack.

With all the female adaptations of male neckties on scarf counters, his wife can have a tie rack of her own this spring. One scarf, designed by Irina Kligore, is a four-in-hand of gold silk with a spray of plush caught diagonally across the front.

They have to look strictly feminine, even though they're tied like a man's necktie," Miss Kligore explained.

She designed a white pique bow tie, sprinkled with rhinestones, to wear with a suit or a high, round-necked dress. Actually the tiny ascot is made just long enough to tie in a knot at the throat. But the rounded ends, sprinkled with rhinestones, are cut to resemble a bow tie.

MAN'S SHIRT

Another white pique necktie to be tied in a four-in-hand has a cuffed end and design of rhinestones.

Lifting ideas from male wardrobes is getting to be a habit with women. Men's shirts have been the inspiration for many spring styles. The collar is usually softened and modified, and the sleeves are cut slightly fuller than a man's but the shirts are still easily recognizable as a copy of hubby's.

The "little" boy look has been copied for younger figures. Round white pique collars on straight cut jackets and flowing ties on the neck are favourites with such sophisticated designers as Christian Dior.

A tailor and shirtmaker in New York, in London and Paris, succumbed to the trend and introduced a summer suiting fabric in women's suits "sacked up to now to the summer wardrobes of men." Called Popaline, the fabric is a lustre weave of Turkish mohair and wool.

HIS & HERS

Even accessory designers are making the most of the obvious feminine interest in men's apparel.

"His" and "hers" sets of cigarette lighters and compacts are being made. In one set, a pocket cigarette lighter is put on the end of man's key chain. A matching cigarette lighter, with jewelled decorations, is hung on a bracelet chain for a woman to wear on her wrist.

Strictly male designs, including a bird dog's head and a fishing fly, are done on the

FORWARD AND BACKWORD

By VERA WINSTON

A DOUBLE row of black buttons parades down the back of this dress to give a fashionable and important accent to a forward-looking frock. The fabric is royal blue crepe and there is a black bow at the front of the high neck. The buttons start at the flared pointed collar and continue down either side of the inserted, pleated fullness at the centre of the skirt. The pockets at the hips are flapped making for a rounded hipline. The sleeves are winged and cuffed.

manufactures an expanding bracelet made in rolled gold, stainless steel, gilt or chrome. This is designed in a "scissors" pattern.

A hand riveted bracelet with a thirty-second adjustment and an original compact perfume sprayer in the shape of a lighter or lipstick, are among the other products to be shown by this firm in the Jewellery Section, at Olympia, of the British Industries Fair in May.

PRACTICAL HOMECRAFT

HAVE THAT LUXURY TOUCH

By Alice Denhoff

YOU can't bypass meat very often when there are hard-working men to be fed. So best thing is to be a careful buyer and a good cook, giving the thrifty cuts the same pampering and loving care that is bestowed on luxury cuts. Lamb shanks in a good recipe can be something quite special, as you'll see if you tackle this one. Fanchonette of Lamb for 6, takes 3 lamb shanks. Roll them with 3 cloves, top, celery seed, 1/2 bay leaf, top, ground thyme and 1/4 tsp. ground mace. When meat is tender, remove it from the shank joints, and cut in cubes. Line individual moulds with seasoned mashed potatoes. Fill with the lamb shank meat, one c. small kidney beans, one c. coarsely chopped, cooked cabbage and one c. cooked carrots. Moulden with the lamb stock. Top with mashed potatoes, using 3 c. mashed potatoes in all. Brush over with beaten egg or milk, and brown in 425 F. oven.

Something Special

For something special serve curry of chicken, real party fare. Clean, singe and cut up a 1 1/2 to 2 lb. chicken. Place in saucepan and cover with hot water. Add 4 black peppercorns, 2 whole cloves, one bay leaf, to taste and one chili pepper from mixed pickle spice. Simmer until chicken is tender. Sauté 2 sliced onions in fat, then skim out and brown the chicken. Sprinkle with tsp. curry powder, add the chicken liquor, stew for 3 min. Make a paste of 3 tbsp. flour with 3 tbsp. water; add, stir until thickened. Add a beaten egg yolk. Serve with a border of hot rice.

Emergency Job

A casserole of sausages and baked beans is a good emergency job that is hearty and satisfying. Mix thoroughly one can each baked beans and tomato soup; pour into casserole. Dot 10 whole cloves through the mixture; lay 1 lb. pork sausages on top, and bake in hot oven until sausages are done. The entire process can be speeded further by warming the beans and soup mixture on top of the stove, and parboiling the sausages before putting all the ingredients into the casserole for 10 min. of baking.

AT THE IDEAL
HOME EXHIBITION
Points Of Interest

THE Ideal Home Exhibition held in March at Olympia has many points of interest for women. Apart from the more obvious displays of fabrics, furniture, and fashions, there was a complete modern laundry, a bakery, a village of ideal homes and an Old English Pot Pourri stand.

The latter, occupying a small corner, represented the front of an old thatched cottage. There was the faint, slightly musty scent of pressed flowers, as you approached. "The Judge's Choice" is the name of one type. It is made from genuine 16th and 17th century recipes, and is the type used by the notorious "Judge Jeffreys" in 1685—to ward off gaol fever.

This little piece of Dorchester transplanted to London, showed beautifully turned wooden jars of all shapes and sizes, made by the villagers from wood salvaged from old ships and mostly taken from Dead Man's Bay, and no two are exactly alike. An export trade is carried on, and so far the most interested countries appear to be Antigua and Australia.

Catering for modern tastes, there were varieties of flower brooches, from which a faint sweet smell came. If you became tired of the flower design in your brooch, it can be easily changed for another to match a different colour scheme.

An idea for your walls came from a firm of map specialists. Genuine 17th and 18th century county maps, beautifully illuminated, are made into pictures for your walls. Any county in which you are particularly interested can be framed for you.

MODERN LAUNDRY

The modern laundry had the largest audience. One machine finished collars so that not only the top edge is smoothed for the wearer's comfort, but space was provided for the tie to slide around between the folds. The greatest improvement was in the marking system. An invisible identification sign can show in an instant when the garment is passed before a small cabinet which emits ultra violet rays.

ELECTRIC CHEF

On the more practical side of life there was the ELECTRIC CHEF, which heats, whisks, kneads, mixes, minces, mashes, extracts juice, and grates and grinds food of all type. There was no information available as to whether it washed up afterwards.

PLINTH LIGHT was a circular flood lighting plate upon which you can stand a glass aquarium, flower-bowl or other decoration to give a soft radiance to table.

And lastly, for tired and aching feet, were the cool, cloistered gardens of music. This year they had an impressive four-court and entrance in Elizabethan style, a crescent-shaped wall of old red brick pierced by Tudor archways. At fifteen-minute intervals each evening the daylight was faded out and a moonlight effect obtained by blue lighting.

A Japanese garden depicted a scene in Kenroku Park, Panna, with a view of the sacred Irujyama in the background.

Professional Look In Home-made Clothes

By ELEANOR ROSS

A BUSY woman physician of our acquaintance has taken up home dressmaking as a hobby. She says that it saves her much shopping time, and that the complete change from her work acts as a mental tonic.

As with everything she does, the job is handled in a thoroughly scientific manner, and her home-made garments have a professional or custom-made look about them. One secret is that as she works, she has a steam iron and an ironing board right beside her sewing machine, and she uses the iron as she goes along. She claims it is a big time saver, too.

Crosswise Thread

Fabric is straightened before pinning pattern and the end cut on one crosswise thread. Fabric is smoothed with steam iron to soften, then gently pulled on the bias until threads are adjusted and fabric straightened. Put straightened end and selvages together, clipping any selvages that show.

To give a professional look to seams, press seam as you stitched it to imbed the sewing machine stitching in the fabric and to give smoothness to the seam. Next, press seam open with point of iron. It is best to press the entire section of the garment at this time, not just the seam area. Curved sections of the body get their shape from pre-pressing. Press on sleeve board, first as stitched, then open seams with iron point and press flat.

Heavy Fabric

When working on heavy fabrics, use brown paper strips under the edges. To handle French seams, used on sheer fabrics, first press as stitched, then press seam open with point of iron, using a press cloth because this seam is on the right side of the fabric. Then trim seam narrower than finished seam will be. Most finished French seams are less than 1/4 inch wide. Turn back sharply or first stitching; press. Then stitch and press as you stitched. Finish by pressing on the right side, using press cloth on fabrics that may show shine.

One of the signs of a custom-made garment is the decorative lapped seam. To handle this one put a line of machine stitching one-sixteenth of an inch inside seam allowance. Notch curved area of seam, and, with iron point, turn seam just beyond seam stitching. Then slip-stitch the piece into position, working from outside of garment, machine stitching on basting line. Blend seams. Press on right side using press cloth on all but cotton and light-colored linens.

Easter chicks

Marzipan chicks make easy decorations for an Easter cake. You will need 2 oz. sugar, 2 oz. soy flour, 1 oz. marzipan, two tablespoons boiling water and half a teaspoonful of almond essence.

Melt the marzipan in boiling water, add almond essence and mix. In soy flour and half the sugar. Turn on to a board and knead in the rest of the sugar. Roll out paste to about 1/8 in.

When working on heavy fabrics, use brown paper strips under the edges. To handle French seams, used on sheer fabrics, first press as stitched, then press seam open with point of iron, using a press cloth because this seam is on the right side of the fabric. Then trim seam narrower than finished seam will be. Most finished French seams are less than 1/4 inch wide. Turn back sharply or first stitching; press. Then stitch and press as you stitched. Finish by pressing on the right side, using press cloth on fabrics that may show shine.

One of the signs of a custom-made garment is the decorative lapped seam. To handle this one put a line of machine stitching one-sixteenth of an inch inside seam allowance. Notch curved area of seam, and, with iron point, turn seam just beyond seam stitching. Then slip-stitch the piece into position, working from outside of garment, machine stitching on basting line. Blend seams. Press on right side using press cloth on all but cotton and light-colored linens.

Trim down two or three coloured feathers (pipe cleaners will do) for his tail. Make a row of chicks across your cake and add thin strips of greens for grass blade.

Trim down two or three coloured feathers (pipe cleaners will do) for his tail. Make a row of chicks across your cake and add thin strips of greens for grass blade.

Last A Lifetime

A

Upon examination, children of one school were found to have defective molars. Because these teeth come early, parents seem to think them unimportant. These teeth are important. They should last a lifetime. When one considers the fact that each lost tooth lowers the child's health potential, such neglect is serious indeed.

The teeth of children who have speech difficulties should be examined to learn if they are causing a difficulty or any part of it. That is possible. If the teeth are not in proper alignment, they will hinder correct speech.

Children who are failing in school should have their teeth examined. It is often found the mouths of some children are in such bad condition as to cause malnutrition and rheumatism, either of which can make child backward in learning.

Beauty's Sake

Teeth should be kept in perfect condition for the sake of their beauty alone. The flash of sparkling teeth adds to the light of a child's smile, to the beauty of his expression, and that light will be a great asset to him when he is an adult. Teeth mean so much to the good looks, to the personality, to the sound health and fitness of a child and of an adult, that the little care they require from their owner from the dentist, seems a very small price to pay.

Train children from the very beginning to care for their teeth, as for a very precious possession, as for the pearls they can be, so that when they are grown people they can open their mouths in the sure faith of their health and their usefulness.

First Teeth Influence
Permanent Set

THE teeth of little children should not be taken for granted but faithfully watched, kept clean, and if they come in, crooked, out of alignment, refer to a dentist without delay.

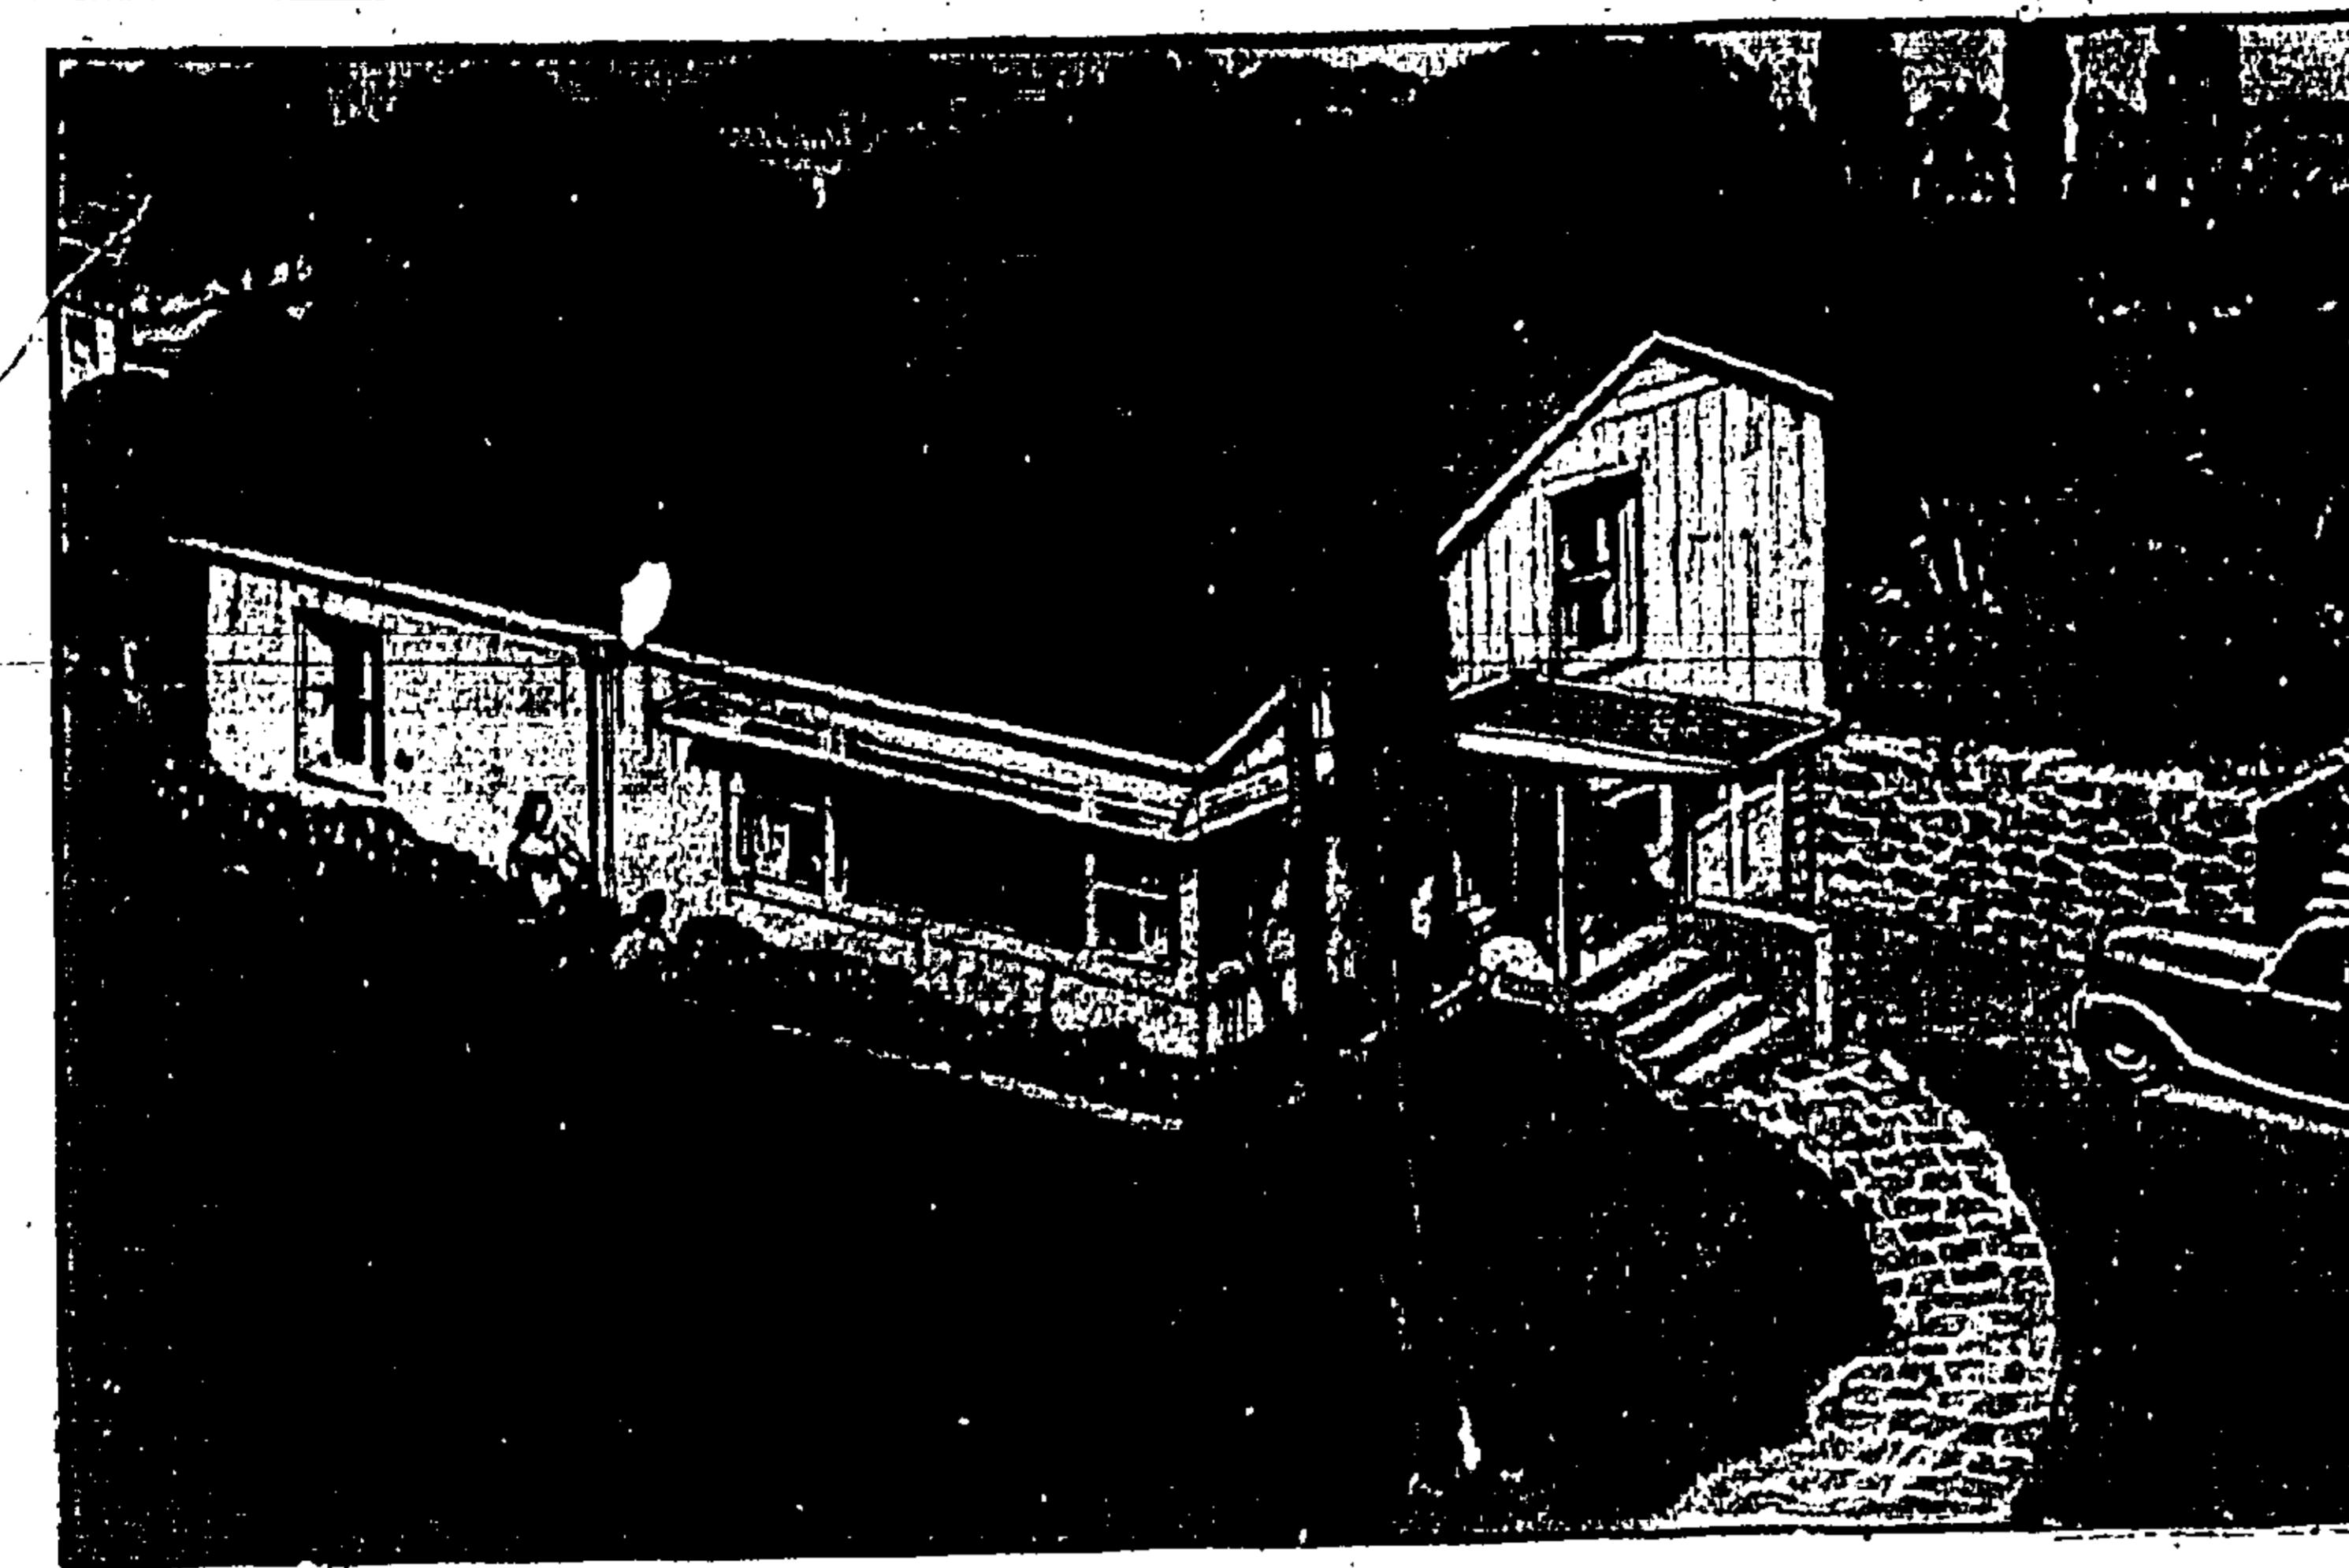

The first set of teeth of children are important because their condition has an influence on the permanent set. The dentist should be consulted when they begin to shed so that any attention needed can be given in time. It is too bad to let a child's teeth grow out of alignment, since this can spoil the set of his mouth, handicap his speech or lower his health level.

Last A Lifetime

Upon examination, children of one school were found to have defective molars. Because these teeth come early, parents seem to think them unimportant. These teeth are important. They should last a lifetime. When one considers the fact that each lost tooth lowers the child's health potential, such neglect is serious indeed.

The teeth of children who have speech difficulties should be examined to learn if they are causing a difficulty or any

MUCH COMFORT IN SMALL SPACE

By MARION CLYDE McCARROLL

EVERY busy modern woman wants to spend just a few hours on the chores of housekeeping as she can possibly get away with. There are far too many outside calls on her time, and far too many interesting things to do these days, for her to be satisfied to devote the major part of every day to vacuuming and dusting, washing and ironing, polishing floors, getting meals and all the rest of it.

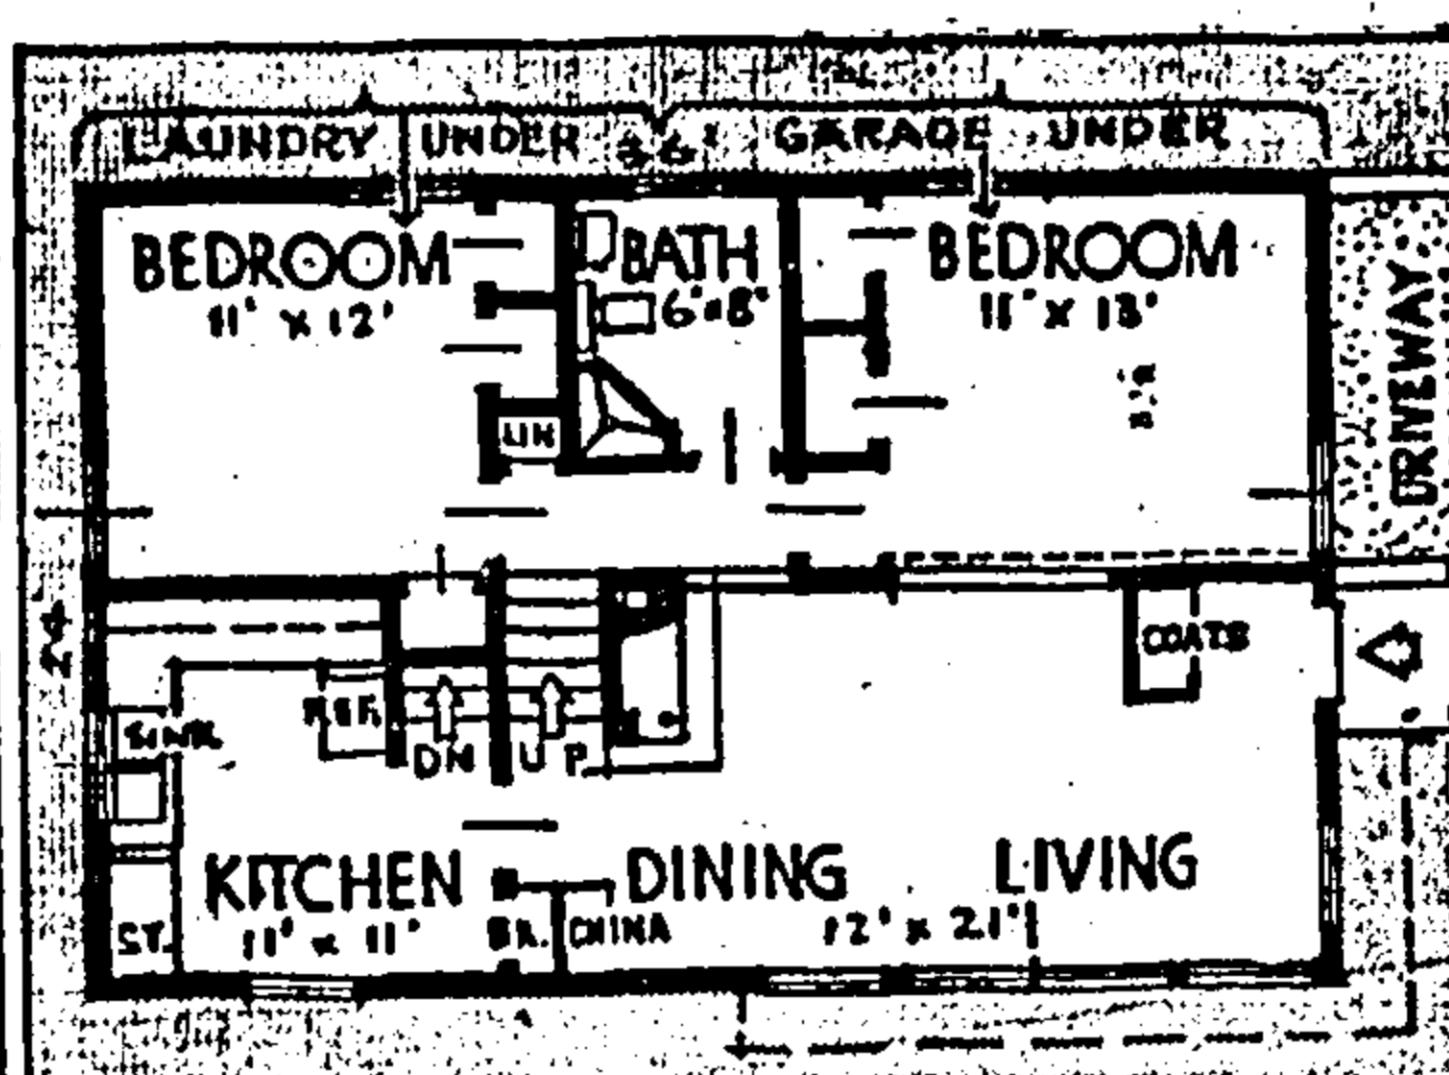

The same thing applies to her husband. Much as he may enjoy pottering around the house doing odd jobs of this and that, he doesn't want to put in too many hours at it every week. He wants plenty of time left to spend at his community interests, his sports, and his hobbies.

That's why so many people want their homes to be just as compact and convenient as possible, so that there won't be too much to do around the house, and so that what there is to do can be done easily and expeditiously.

That's why, too, many a couple would like the type of house pictured here, which has all the comfort and convenience of a five-room house, plus laundry and garage, in a modest amount of space. Many's the clever little trick that has been used to give an effect of spaciousness, tricks which could be incorporated in other new homes with equally good result.

TWO BEDROOMS, EACH AT a corner so that they have the luxury of cross-ventilation, make this an ideal little home for a couple with one child.

TO GIVE A FEELING OF GREATER SPACIOUSNESS than its dimensions actually provide, the ceiling of the living room follows the slope of the roof. The dining area is tucked away in a cozy corner, adjacent to the kitchen.

Swimsuits by
Gantner
OF CALIFORNIA

THE 1950
MODELS ARE HERE!

NEW — STYLES
NEW — COLOURS
NEW — GLAMOUR

NOW —
ON SALE AT LEADING STORES

Sole Agents:
U. SPALINGER & CO., LTD. — Tel. 26774.

COME AND SEE
THE WONDERFUL COLLECTION OF EASTER
EGGS
AT

SINCERE'S
DEPARTMENT STORE

BE idolIZED...

Women who wear
Idol Nylon Hosiery lead the fashion parade Idol Hosiery—the favorite of many Hollywood movie stars is sheer...smooth-fitting...the ultimate in leg flattery.

idol
Quality Stockings

AT ALL GOOD STORES THE IDOL OF THE ELEGANT WORLD

Sole Agents:
ED. A. KELLER & CO., LTD.
Alexandra Building Telephone 23120

MR and Mrs Ping Kom-wing photographed after their wedding at the Hongkong Hotel. The bride was formerly Miss Chun Ching-fong. (Ming Yuen)

HE the Governor, Sir Alexander Grantham, in conversation with Mr Ko Fook-son, President of the Wah Yan College Past Students' Association, at the Hongkong Hotel last Saturday. The Governor addressed the Association on "Colonial Governors." (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Wong Chi-po, President of the King's College Old Boys' Association, speaking at the annual dinner of the Association held at the ABC Cafe recently. (Ming Yuen)

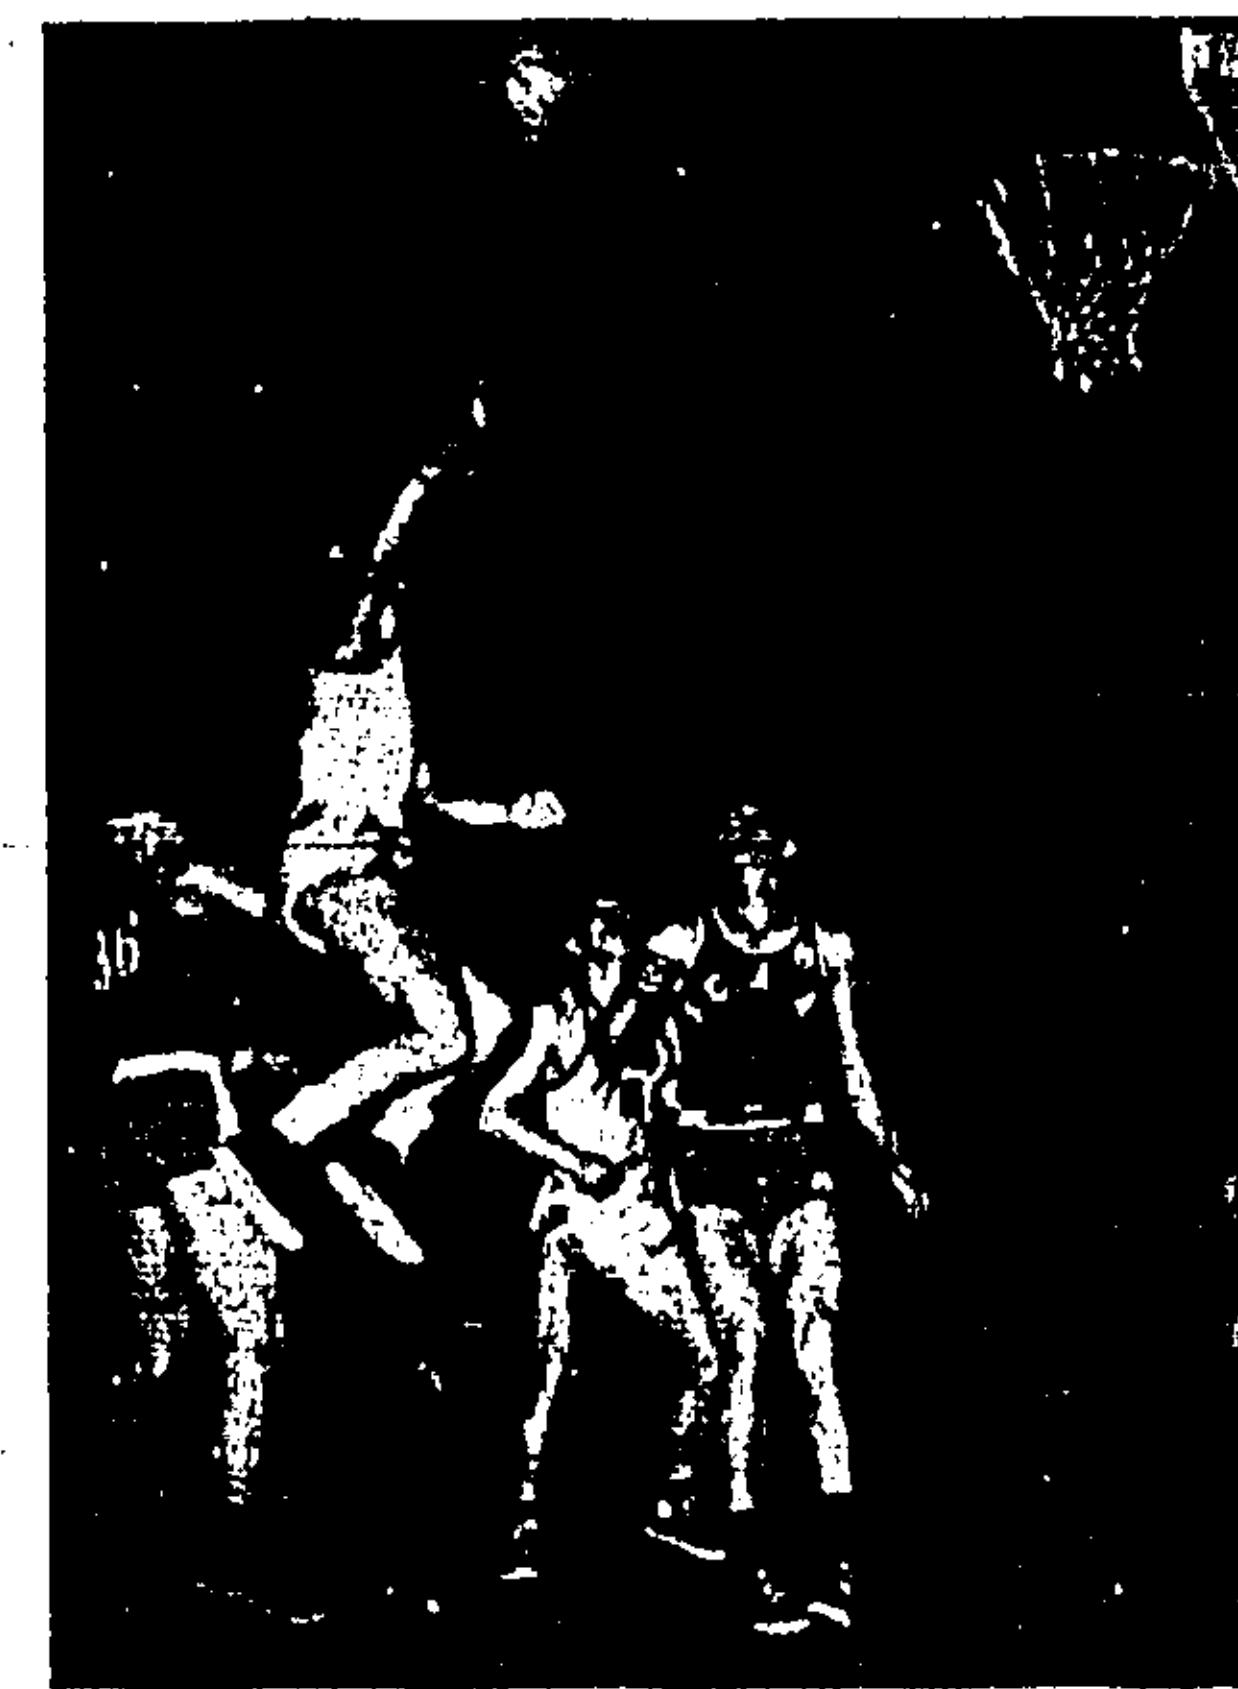

YOUNG competitors photographed in the course of an obstacle race at the children's sports at the Indian Recreation Club last Sunday. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Cheng Oi-nung and Miss Chan Kaan-suet, whose marriage took place at the Registry last week. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

THE Hui Li basketball team from Shanghai, who are in Hongkong for a series of friendly games. Below: a moment in a match between Hui Li and South China Athletic Association at Caroline Hill. (T. Y. Tso)

MR Pang Kwok-tung, retiring after 42 years' service in the Civil Engineer-in-Chief's Department, H.M. Dockyard, being presented with a gold watch, a mark of esteem from his colleagues, by Commodore L. N. Brownfield at a ceremony last week. (Ming Yuen)

ABOVE left are Mr Chan Shuk-tung and Miss Phoebe Lai, who were married at the Registry recently. (Henry Mok)

MR Tso Yiu, chairman of the Inter-Varsity Alumni Tennis League, addressing the gathering at the prize distribution last week at the Bankers' Club. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

PICTURE taken at a farewell party in honour of Mr J. F. Lunny (extreme left) at the Hongkong Electric Club. Mr Lunny is leaving Hongkong on retirement after 30 years' service with the company. (Ming Yuen)

MEMBERS of the Hongkong Stage Club had an enjoyable time at the Club's annual dinner dance, held in the Hongkong Hotel-Roof Garden. Picture shows only part of the large attendance. (Ming Yuen)

For Business or Pleasure

Q·E·A

Flies you fastest to
AUSTRALIA

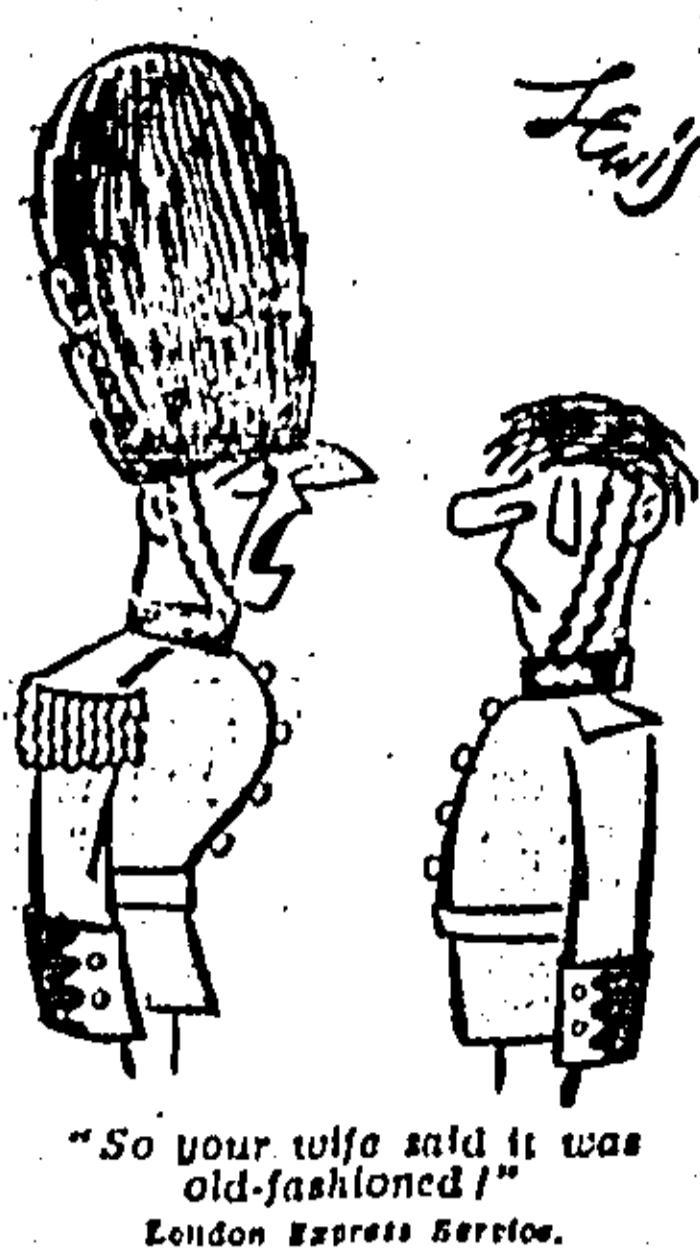

Passages are available every fortnight! Luxurious, modern Skymasters fly you to Sydney in less than 30 hours. Perfect food—attentive steward service. Ask Jardines or your Travel Agents!

NEXT
FLIGHT
APRIL 14

Qantas Empire Airways

In association with British Overseas Airways Corporation
Agents JARDINE, MATHESON & CO., LTD.

What makes a woman like the books men hate?

Daniel George ON BOOKS

TAMING the old tycoon — this sight is always ripe for conversion into another great American novel. The procedure is now familiar. You take a local boy—preferably of dubious parentage. You grow him up with a grievance and make him make good with a vengeance.

Luck, health, wealth, power give him everything except love. At the top of his success you shatter his stony heart. With a sprinkling of fear you then kill him off, and serve the concoction lukewarm in 500 pages.

Taylor Caldwell has profitably toyed with this theme before. In LET LOVE COME LAST (Collins, 10s. 6d.) it is played with variations contributed by fractious children and lumber interests.

William Prescott made his way from poverty to presidency—presidency of the Prescott Lumber Company. Like Ishmael, his time has been against every man, some said in every man's pocket. Achieving affluence, he descended upon his home town.

There, marrying, almost by storm, Ursula Wende, gentle schoolmistress, he built a mansion in size enormous, in taste execrable, and set about encompassing the ruin of his former employer, Chauncey Arnold, an undoubtedly rogue but a weak reed.

Fiction's Worst

He spoiled his two daughters and two sons. Ursula, dreading his displeasure, abandoned all attempts at disciplining them. They became the wild-behaved children in fiction, and growing up, developed teeth sharper than any serpent's.

The bulk of the book (apart from commercial chicanery stuff) is too domestic for words— even Taylor Caldwell's words. Ursula is a boor, Ursula a willow, and the children a torture.

No, it would have been fairer and wiser to write: "Too domestic for men."

For women, doubtless, the disarray in the scenes of family life will constitute the chief charm and point of the story.

For both sexes and all ages, there is cold sense in the author's three-fold moral:

1. DON'T spoil your children.

2. DON'T, in any event think that you can command their love and respect. 3. REMEM-BER: "The young generations blame their parents for evils for which the parents once blamed the grandparents, and for which the young generations, in their turn, will be blamed by their own children."

Escape

TO get away from it all you can be transported (to-morrow) to HIGH VALLEY, by Charnian Cliff and George Johnston (Faber, 12s. 6d.) a tale of rough but romantic doings in the Tibetan Valley of the Dreaming Phoenix.

Salom, a robbing Chinese youth, falls in love there with Veshti, the headman's daughter. She is so responsive that, flouting the community's ancient customs of not washing, she submits, under Salom's supervision, to total immersion.

The arrival of Yannong, the White Lama, causes trouble. He wants Veshti as a temporary gift to the gods. Salom disapproves.

At this point occurs a visitation by the Living Buddha, and the utterance of much Worldly Wisdom, which does nothing to prevent ructions all round, though it impresses much Tibetan folk to the plodding reader.

The story—old, with scribbling simplicity and in many ways dignified and beautiful—ends with Salom and Veshti, united at last and for ever, in the heart of a blizzard. Brrrr!

Soldiers

ALEXANDER BARON'S THERE'S NO HOME (Cape, 9s. 6d.), a British novel.

With Alexander Baron you will feel at home, though the scene is Sicily. It is about men you know—civilians turned soldiers and lapsing into civilians again as they enjoy lull between two campaigns.

Before the war claims them again they have snatched some happiness—not all of them: a few have suffered.

Sergeant Craddock and Grazella—if you can read their love story without compassion and understanding, if the quarrel between Privates Broom and Jobbing mystifies you, if, in short, what is credible, told in an unheated and untainted patois, does not gallify you, "There's No Home" is no book for you.

—London Express Service.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON DAB AND FLOUNDER

—by Walter

NEW BOOKS . . . by GEORGE MALCOLM THOMSON

A Fleet St. novel that is good

FINAL NIGHT. By Robert Gaines. Heinemann, 8s. 6d. 241 pages.

HERE will always be novels about Fleet Street, and most of them will be bad. Nobody knows why.

Perhaps it is because only journalists want to set their novels in London, E.C.4—and because journalists usually do not write good novels.

So let it be said right away that Final Night is a good novel, it is by a journalist, and is about Fleet Street. About a smart evening paper which pulls off a double scoop. Something that does not happen every day.

Final Night is the latest attempt to put over the glamour, self-pity and reality of Fleet Street. An attempt in the modern manner, sardonic, misanthropic, prepared to believe the worst.

Gaines exhibits his cast of journalists in no mood of adolescent enthusiasm, but rather like a dentist taking an X-ray of a row of inferior teeth.

SCOOPS GALORE

GRANGER, for instance, the news-editor. Nobody will make a hero of him, least of all his wife, Susan, whose interest (after the gin-bottle) does not focus on her lord and master. This explains why Granger is still morose at the end of a day of incredible professional triumph.

The story opens at the moment when Granger, casting his morning glance at the marble effigy of his proprietor, is whisked up in the lift to his duties.

• ANTONIA WHITE reappears on the fiction programme in next year's programme is A. J. A. Symons' His Life and Speculations, by his poet brother Julian. It should be good. Symons (died 1941) was the perfect dilettante — gourmet (founded with Andre Simon the Wine and Food Club), collector and, among other eccentricities, forger—he was an expert on calligraphy.

• ANOTHER publisher-politician is Nigel (son of Harold) Nicolson, 32, partner in the new firm of George Widenfeld and Nicolson. He doesn't share his parents' Socialist politics—is prospective Conservative candidate for a Midland constituency. His poet-mother is Victoria Sackville-West.

The list of first productions of the new firm wears an apologetic air. In Account Settled, Dr Schatz, ex-German financial boss, defends his connection with the Hitler regime, and Charlotte (former wife of Professor Hulane, in Truth Will Out, explains her break with the Communist Party.

• ANTONIA WHITE reappears after 10 years. This is welcome news: her debut in 1933 with Frost in May was a notable event of the literary year. She will break her long silence in the spring with an important novel, The Lost Traveller (Eyre and Spottiswoode).

—London Express Service.

• Gilda Thorp and Dr Bruckmann. They do indeed.

Gilda is being tried for murder at the Old Bailey. The doctor, a fugitive Minister from an Iron Curtain country, may land at Croydon at any moment.

Before the day is done, Gilda has been sensationally acquitted through a letter brought over by Bruckmann and has thrown herself under a train (exclusive to the Evening Mirror).

Bruckmann has been kidnapped, murdered in a foreign legation, dumped at Waterloo and then taken back to the legation. The Special Branch prefers that his demise should be extra-territorial. (Again the Evening Mirror has the story to itself.)

High-paced melodrama by a new talent. Atmosphere near-authentic. Writing variable.

Best when it is least pretentious. Worst when it reads like this: "Challenging himself with courage in the safety of his loneliness. Boy, put that one on the spike!"

• ROBERT GAINES is a pen name which covers the identity of a journalist who graduated from Yorkshire to Fleet Street. He prefers to remain anonymous.

• JEANNE SAUZEL was born in the department of Aveyron in France and spent her girlhood summers in the mountain village of Fougayrolles. Has also lived in England and in Mexico. Is now Professor of French in Massachusetts, U.S.A. and has taught there since the middle thirties.

• STRANGE INHERITANCE. By Simonon. Routledge and Kegan Paul, 9s. 6d. 222 pages.

SIMONON is one of the least showy of novelists and one of the best. He has a limited objective, knows exactly what he wants to do and never tries for more.

He is the poet of small towns, local big-wigs, rainy weather, deckside cafes, ship chandlers stores, the Chamber of Commerce, train journeys, money, And crime.

He achieves his effect, creates his atmosphere, puts his drama on the boards with such speed that the job looks easy. In fact, it has called for intimate knowledge and a rare genius for the selection of details.

The latest Simonon is twice the usual length. That is to say, it is a full-length novel. Many will think Simonon is better over the shorter course. It tells how Gilles Maurois, weakling son of a no-good con-juver, returns to La Rochelle and is plunged into puzzling, frightening intrigues that follow the death of his rich uncle Octave; poisoned.

• GEORGES SIMONON, 46-year-old French author of more than 300 novels is France's greatest writer of psychological thrillers. He has worked under 16 pen-names.

It is a life full of incident and scandal, torn by feuds and

Better on a short course

GEORGES SIMENON

THE ENGLISH GIRL AND NAPOLEON III'S SON

THERE is material for a literary mystery hunt in Princess Marthe Bibesco's forthcoming book, Prince Imperial.

She tells the story of Napoleon III's son and his love affair with an English girl. But who was the girl?

The author says: "I have called her Betsy. That was not her name." She adds: "The intimate facts came to me from my grandmother, Princess George Bibesco, a distant cousin of the Empress Eugenie."

• GREY WALLS Press, which publish the book, are one of the Falcon Press group. Why "Falcon?" It was the name of an armoured car commanded in the war by ex-Commando-baftrooper Peter Baker, and he controls the group.

Mr Baker's career is a success story. Son of Major R. P. Baker, head of Ealing Films author and, among other

BY HORACE HORSECROFT

Studio" "I inherited a flair for business and decided to apply it to books," he says.

Beginning with £900 and his father's bank guarantee, now at 25 he controls six companies. A fellow-director is J. P. L. Thomas, vice-chairman of the financial boss, himself is running for Parliament as a Conservative.

—And Forger

• INTERESTING biography in next year's programme is A. J. A. Symons' His Life and Speculations, by his poet brother Julian. It should be good.

Symons (died 1941) was the perfect dilettante — gourmet (founded with Andre Simon the Wine and Food Club), collector and Spottiswoode.

—London Express Service.

VIGNETTES OF LIFE

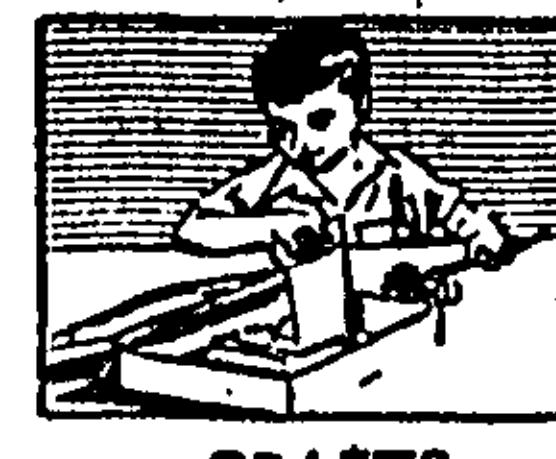

PUZZLES

HOBBIES

The BOYS and GIRLS PAGE

GAMES

JOKES

ON THE TRACK OF THE KIDNAPPERS IN TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT OF THE CHILDREN'S SERIAL, Five Fall into Adventure.

Sid's wonderful evening

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Sid, Dick and Anne have come to stay with their cousin Georgia (George for short) and her dog Timmy, whilst her father, a famous scientist, and her mother are in Spain. Curious things have happened. The study has been ransacked for valuable books of scientific notes. Now George and Timmy have been kidnapped, and the kidnappers have ordered a missing notebook to be put ready for them to find in the garden. Dick means to catch Timmy to collect the book, and is going to change places with the newspaper boy when he arrives with the papers that evening.

CHAPTER TEN

SID, the paper-boy, was most amazed to find himself yanked quickly through the front door by Julian. He was even more amazed to find his very lurid check cap snatched off his head, and his bag of papers torn from his shoulder.

"Eeek!" he said feebly. "What you doing?"

"It's all right, Sid," said Julian, holding him firmly. "Just a joke. We've got a little treat in store for you."

Sid didn't like jokes of this sort. He struggled, but soon gave it up. Julian was big and strong and very determined.

Sid turned and watched Dick stride out with his bright check cap sideways on his head and his paper-bag over his shoulder. He gaped when he saw Dick leap on the bicycle that he, Sid, had left by the gate, and go sailing off up the lane on it.

"WHAT is he doing?" he asked. Julian, amazed "Funny sort of joke this."

"I know. Hope you don't mind," said Julian, leading him firmly into the sitting-room.

"Somebody betted him he wouldn't deliver the papers, maybe?" said Sid. "So he's taken the bet on?"

"You're clever, you are, Sid," said Julian, and Sid beamed all over his round, simple face.

"Well, I hope he'll deliver them all right," he said. "Any way, there's only two more, up at the farm. Yours is the last house, but one that I go to. When he's coming back?"

"Soon," said Julian. "Will you stay and have supper with us, Sid?"

Sid's eyes nearly fell out of his head. "Supper with you folks?" he said. "Cool! That'd be a rare treat!"

"All right. You sit and look at these books," said Julian, giving him two or three story books belonging to Anne. "I'll just go and tell our cook to make a specially nice supper for you."

Sid was all at sea about this unexpected treat, but quite willing to accept a free meal and a sit down. He sat beaming on the couch, turning over the pages of a fairy-story book.

"This is a smash of an evening," he kept saying. "Don't know when I've enjoyed myself so much. Wonder how that brother of yours is getting on—hope he brings my bike back all right."

"Oh, he will," said Julian, dealing out the cards for the sixth game of Snap. They were all in the lighted sitting room now, sitting round a table in the window. Julian, Joan, Anne and Sid. Anyone watching would see them clearly—and he saw a movement. In the hedge row, he thought, someone was hidden there watching. He deliberately slowed down, got off his bicycle and pretended to do something to the wheel. Let the watcher see his bag of papers and be deceived into thinking he was without any doubt the paper-boy and not Dick.

At eleven o'clock Julian left to put the parcel that Anne had carefully wrapped up under the stone at the bottom of the garden. She had found a big notebook she thought would do one that didn't seem at all important, and had wrapped it in paper and tied it with string. Julian had slipped a note inside.

"Here is the notebook. Please release our cousin at once. You will get into serious trouble if you hold him longer."

He slipped down the garden and shone his light on the paving there. When he came to the last stone he found that it had been lowered. He lifted it up easily and put the parcel into a hollow that seemed to have been prepared ready for it. He took a cautious look round, wondering if Dick was hidden anywhere about, but could see no one.

"I'll get him a fine supper, don't you worry. And I'll come and sit with you tonight in the lighted room—we'll play a card game, see? One that Sid knows—he's never got much beyond Snap and Happy Families."

"That's a very good idea," said Julian, who had been wondering how in the world they could amuse Sid all the evening. "We'll play Snap—and let him win!"

Sid was quite overcome at his wonderful evening. First there was what he called a "smasher of a supper," with ham and eggs and chip potatoes, followed by jam tarts and a big chocolate mould of which Sid ate about three-quarters.

"I'm partial to chocolate mould," he explained to Anne. "John and I had that—the know I'm partial to anything in the 'chocolate mould.' She's Sid was amazed to find his lurid check cap snatched off his head and his bag of papers torn from his shoulders.

He was back in the lighted sitting room in under two minutes, yelling "Snap" with the others. He played stupidly, partly because he wanted the delighted Sid to win and partly because he was wondering about Dick. Was he all right?

An outbreak of owls hooting loudly made them all jump. Julian glanced at Joan and Anne, and they nodded. They guessed that it was the signal to tell them that the parcel had been found and collected. Now they could get rid of Sid, and said so every other minute.

In fact, he was really a very nice guest to have. It wasn't everybody who could welcome everything with so much gusto and say how wonderful it was half dozen times on end.

He went out to the kitchen after supper and offered to wash up for Julian. "I always do it for Mum," he said. "I won't break a thing." So he did the washing up and Anne did the drying. Julian thought it was a good thing to give her as much to do as possible, to stop her from worrying.

Sid looked a bit taken-aback when he was asked to play games later on. "Well—I dunno," he said. "I'm not much good at games, but all that I can do is to talk of Happy Families and seemed inclined to stay a bit longer and have a game at that."

"Your Mum will be getting worried about you," said Julian, looking at the clock. "It's very late."

"Where's my bike?" said Sid, realising with sorrow that his "smasher of an evening" was now over. "Isn't that brother of yours come back yet? Well, I'll tell him to leave it at my house in time for my paper-round tomorrow morning. And my cap, too. That's my Special Cap, that is. I'm very partial to that cap—it's a bit of a smasher."

"It certainly is," agreed Julian, who was now feeling very tired. "Now listen, Sid. It's very late, and there may be bad folks about. If anyone speaks to you run for your life and don't stop till you get home."

"Coo," said Sid, his eyes looking down at his head. "Yes, I'll run all right."

"SNAP! That's right up my street!" he said. And so it was his habit of shouting snap and collecting all the cards at the same moment as his shout, led to his winning quite a lot of games. He was delighted.

"This is a smash of an evening," he kept saying. "Don't know when I've enjoyed myself so much. Wonder how that brother of yours is getting on—hope he brings my bike back all right."

"Oh, he will," said Julian, dealing out the cards for the sixth game of Snap. They were all in the lighted sitting room now, sitting round a table in the window. Julian, Joan, Anne and Sid. Anyone watching would see them clearly—and he saw a movement. In the hedge row, he thought, someone was hidden there watching. He deliberately slowed down, got off his bicycle and pretended to do something to the wheel.

Let the watcher see his bag of papers and be deceived into thinking he was without any doubt the paper-boy and not Dick.

He rode to the farm, and delivered the two papers there, then down to the village, where he left Sid's things outside his house. Then he went into the cinema for a long while—until it was dark and he could safely creep back to Kirrin Cottage.

He set off at last going a very roundabout way indeed. He came to the back of Kirrin garden. Where should he hide? Was anyone already hidden there? If so, the game was up—and he'd be caught, too!

NEXT WEEK: Dick Makes a Capture!

—London Express Service.

BRONCHO BILL

No Cordial Welcome

By Harry F. O'Neill

A Junior United Nations

By I. R. Hegel

JUNIORS all over the world are starting a United Nations movement of their own and they are coming up with some surprising results.

The first surprise comes from Lake Success, N.Y., where a school is being conducted in a farmhouse for the children of the delegates and the staff members of the United Nations.

In the beginning the venture was looked upon with doubts. How could children from such distant places as England, Buenos Aires, Sweden, Tokyo, Africa, China, Canada and other countries get along together?

The answer appeared during the first sessions. The children got along as well as if they had known one another all their lives. Languages might be different, but they always found the point of contact in a sport, a song, a hero.

Not far from Lake Success is Manhattan Junior high school. The children of this school are as mixed in racial background as those in the United Nations' farmhouse. Their nationalities are Irish, Jewish, Swedish, German, Puerto Rican, Chinese, Negro, Italian, Turkish and Armenian.

These junior students decided they wanted to know one another better. So they inaugurated "open house" parties at their individual homes: a Chinese new year; a Puerto Rican fiesta; a Swedish smorgasbord; a Jewish candlelight spread.

The children have exhibitions, plays and contests, using the theme of world friendship as their pattern. Ask any Springfield 10-year-old about almost any country and you'll receive a speech on art, music, history and accomplishments of the people of that land that will make you bug-eyed.

These Springfield boys and girls really know world history and the world's people.

THAT BOYS AND GIRLS OF DIFFERENT NATIONALITIES CAN GET ALONG TOGETHER AND BE HAPPY HAS BEEN SHOWN BY THE WAY THE SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF THE DELEGATES TO THE UNITED NATIONS HAVE BEEN WORKING TO MAKE A SUCCESS OF THE SCHOOL THEY ATTEND NEAR LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y.

of mind. The mark of good citizenship is a true understanding of fellow citizens, not only at home but everywhere in the world. One way to meet and understand people is through reading about them."

That is another achievement of the junior United Nations has made. They have, in summer courses of reading, read about other lands and other peoples.

The Junior United Nations has no charter and no flag, yet wherever boys and girls are working to overcome racial bigotry and intolerance the seeds of friendship and understanding sprout. This movement could become the greatest force for peace in the world since today's junior boys and girls will be tomorrow's men and women.

TABLE TRICK

HERE'S another trick to add to your bag of parlour magic bafflers.

Apparatus required: A tumbler, a table, a newspaper, a serviette, and a magician (that's you!).

The trick: To push the tumbler through the table (nothing could be simpler).

The result: Oh's and ah's from onlookers.

The patter: "Now folks, I'm going to perform a little experiment with this glass tumbler. Just in case I get rough with it I shall cover it tightly with several sheets of newspaper. SO! That will prevent any pieces of flying glass from hitting you."

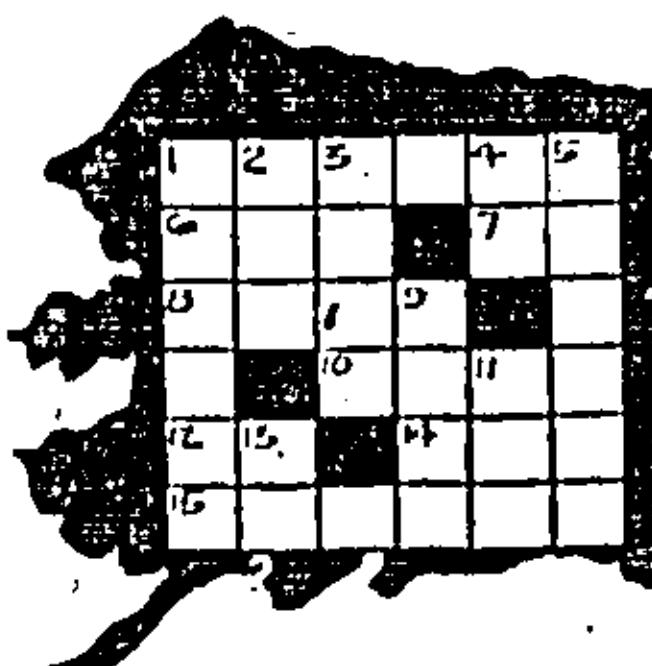

"To make doubly sure there is no accident, I shall cover the newspaper guard with this cloth serviette. SO! Now watch me closely folks. I'm going to hit that glass with A-bomb force and drive it completely through the table. Here I go BANG! And here is your glass from under the table."

The explanation: When you press the paper around the glass, they make an empty form that appears to contain the tumbler. To get the impression you are really trying to protect your audience take the tumbler and newspaper on your knee for two or three seconds as you press the paper vigorously around the glass. Then place the paper form on the table leaving the glass on your lap.

As you bang your fist down on the heap that seems to contain the glass the newspaper of course collapses and you whip off the serviette to prove the glass has completely disappeared.

Puzzle Patch

CROSSWORD

1. Why is a lady in a cotton dress like a book?

2. Why is a pig with a "curly continuation" like the ghost of Hamlet's father?

3. Why should Denmark be an eminently religious country?

4. Why can you never buy a new stop watch?

5. What is the difference between a boy "over whose head 12 summers have passed," and a man taking a nap?

PIED SENTENCE

The type was spilled in this sentence about Alaska. Can you straighten it out to make sense?

is of flower Alaska, forget-me-not of The the the official Territory

MIX-UPS

Rearrange the strange words in each line below to form two facts about Alaska:

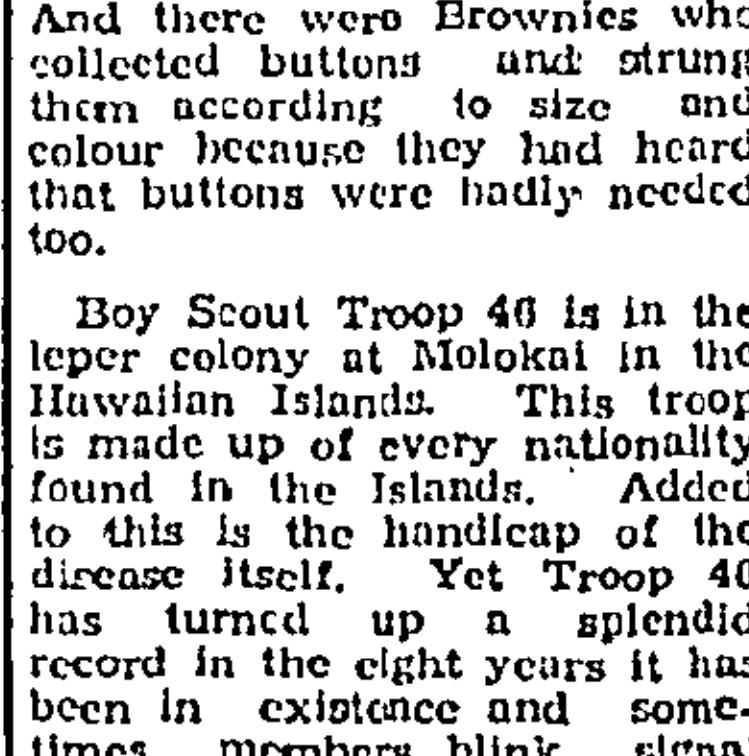

VAST EN SANDY SLUM
LOCK THE FOE
ROAST SLID YE SUN AIR
LET RUN CLAD IN THE

Rupert and the Caravan—44

Sailor Sam is mystified by Rupert's words, but not for long. From under his jersey Rupert produces the black wallet and places it in Sam's hands. At the feel of it Sam gives a gasp and exclaims, "It is the secret of the wallet!" he cries. "And there's the secret inside it, safe and sound."

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

"World citizenship," runs a library pamphlet, "is in a state of flux."

And suddenly the kitchen door opened. It was Mother.

Blackie crawled along after Glive. They met several other friends of theirs: a mouse, a big white bug of different kinds, a cricket, and a whole party of ants who were marching along, one behind the other, carrying bits of a bee that they had found. But they all stopped when Glive told them about—yes, most especially—Blackie!

And oh, what wonderful things came raining down: bread-crumbs and cake crumbs, and all sorts of dinner crumbs. There was more than enough for everyone. And oh, how whatever they were doing happy they all were, especially Blackie!

Then suddenly the kitchen door opened. It was Mother.

Blackie crawled along after Glive. They met several other friends of theirs: a mouse, a big white bug of different kinds, a cricket, and a whole party of ants who were marching along, one behind the other, carrying bits of a bee that they had found. But they all stopped when Glive told them about—yes, most especially—Blackie!

And oh, what wonderful things came raining down: bread-crumbs and cake crumbs, and all sorts of dinner crumbs. There was more than enough for everyone. And oh, how whatever they were doing happy they all were, especially Blackie!

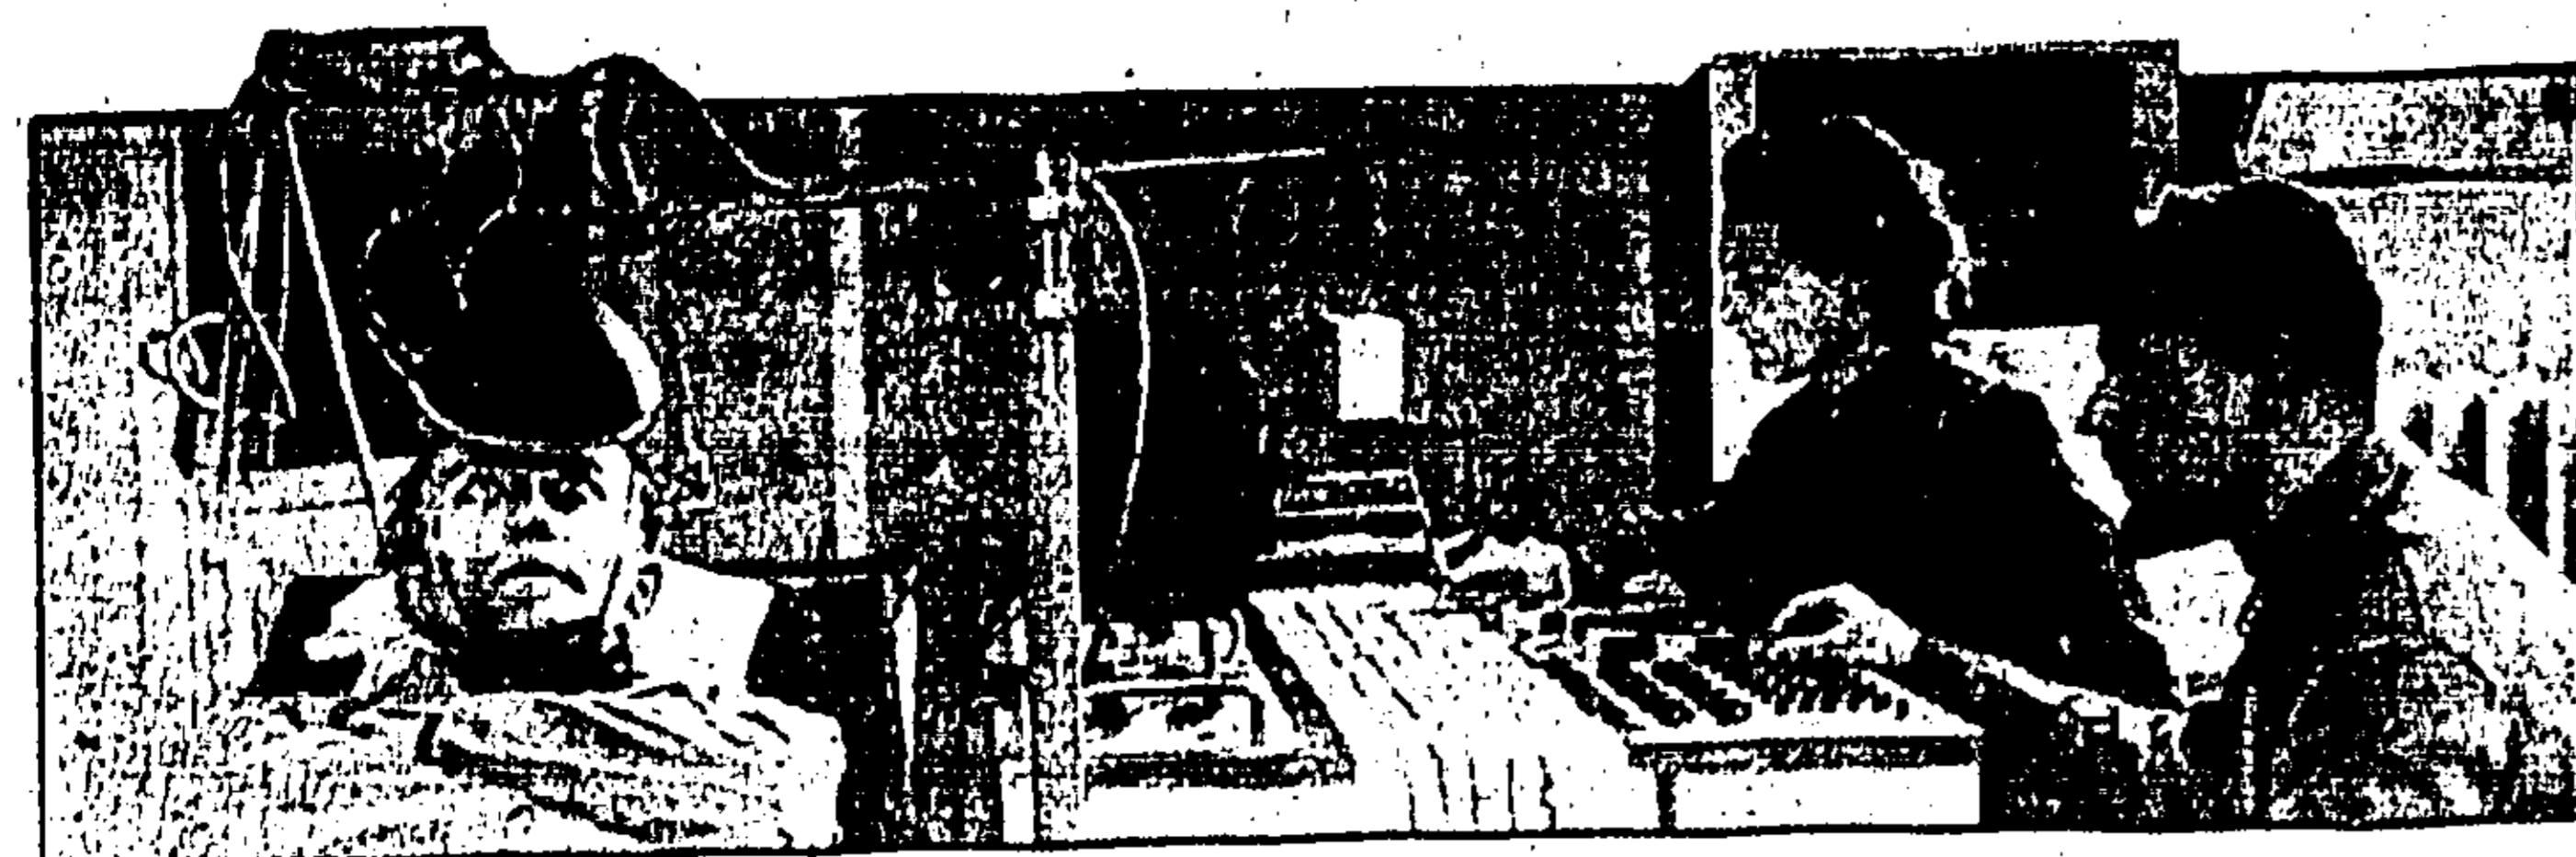

Then suddenly the kitchen door opened. It was Mother.

Blackie crawled along after Glive. They met several other friends of theirs: a mouse, a big white bug of different kinds, a cricket, and a whole party of ants who were marching along, one behind the other, carrying bits of a bee that they had found. But they all stopped when Glive told them about—yes, most especially—Blackie!

And oh, what wonderful things came raining down: bread-crumbs and cake crumbs, and all sorts of dinner crumbs. There was more than enough for everyone. And oh, how whatever they were doing happy they all were, especially Blackie!

Then suddenly the kitchen door opened. It was Mother.

Blackie crawled along after Glive. They met several other friends of theirs: a mouse, a big white bug of different kinds, a cricket, and a whole party of ants who were marching along, one behind the other, carrying bits of a bee that they had found. But they all stopped

Analysing the electrical responses of the brain to stimulation of the visual centres by flashes of light. Dr. and Mrs. Grey Walter at work in their laboratory.

Changing a man's character by a 20-minute operation

LIIGHT—more and more of it—is being thrown on the dark world inside your skull.

We are on the threshold of great mysteries. The three main lines of advance are:

1. PSYCHOSURGERY.

2. ELECTROENCEPHALOGRAPHY.

3. CYBERNETICS.

Psychosurgery means bold but reasonably safe brain operations on patients with mental symptoms.

Just about 100 years ago a man in the U. S. had a crowbar accidentally run through his head from temple to temple. People were amazed to find him still alive.

The crowbar was withdrawn. He still lived. Incredibly, he recovered. More amazingly still, he wasn't any longer a rather crotchety fellow but a most agreeable chap.

It became a classic case in medical history.

Carefree

IN course of time (particularly during wars) other people who had brain injuries in the front of their heads survived with this cheerful character change.

In the thirties, Professor Egaz Moniz in Lisbon, couldn't help noticing that after operations on tumours in the front of their brains patients emerged as more carefree citizens.

So, in 1939, he operated deliberately on some hopeless mental cases—especially people insane through obsessions.

He bored a hole in each temple, inserted a blunt knife like a paper knife (so as not to cut blood vessels) in each hole, and passed it up and down to separate the brain tissue, which is rather like jelly.

It separated the front part of the brain from the back—cut the nerve fibres.

The results were startling, with a good percentage of spectacular cures. A few months ago Professor Moniz was awarded the Nobel Prize for Medicine.

Fine results

In 1940, two Americans took it up—psychiatrist Dr Freeman and surgeon Dr Walter. Their patients were hopelessly degraded: people who'd been eating dirt for years and never spoken a word.

They, too, had fine results. The operation is called "pre-frontal leucotomy."

The same year, Professor Gollin of the Burden Neurological Institute at Bristol, arranged for the operation on some apparently hopeless cases in Britain.

One of these patients is now a secretary—and a good one (except that she takes almost too much trouble about small things). Another is now manager of a factory.

Very many successful cases have been done now. A good surgeon can do it in 20 minutes with a local anaesthetic.

An obsession

ONE man was a hopeless case through a (mistaken) obsession that he had syphilis. It was no good telling him he hadn't. Then he was leucotomized. He still thinks he has syphilis, but he doesn't mind a bit.

The catch will be, of course, if he DOES get syphilis. He still won't care!

There is another catch. Many of these easy-going leucotomy patients have gone back to normal life, married and had children.

Scientists are wondering whether perhaps they might not have created a sort of Frankenstein monster.

They have relieved the symptoms of insanity. Have they cured the insanity? Or will it sometimes be hereditary and be handed on to their children, thus spreading the disease?

In 1946 leucotomy was first tried to help people worrying about pain—particularly that word, pain, in the world, in actuality.

I think the first pain leucotomy case here was on a girl a couple of years ago with agonizing neuralgia in the face. Now she doesn't feel the pain before it comes, nor suffer so much when it does come.

Writing

ELECTRO ENCEPHALOGRAPHY just means electrical "brain-writing."

Back in 1929, Hans Berger of Jena, first found he could record the minute electrical oscillations which go on continually beneath our skulls.

We've learned a great deal from these waves, and now we also have an elaborate electrical brain which analyzes them.

We found that the waking brain is never completely passive. Its function is to search continuously for information from the senses.

When the eyes are shut, the part of the brain concerned with visual signals shows rhythmic electrical waves at about 10 per second called alpha waves.

One theory is that they are a sort of systematic searching for visual information. When the eyes open, the search is presumably successful and the waves are checked.

Slow waves

In sleep, the alpha waves are replaced all over the brain by large slow waves at about three per second called delta rhythm (no connection with Mississippi music).

We find similar waves in young babies and in adults unconscious through brain injury or disease.

Many epileptics have larger and more regular brain waves. These may be evidence of "crossed lines" between different brain circuits.

One of the brain's jobs is to link up the separate experiences and actions of the body, and inevitably in some people at some times there is "wrong number" or a "crossed line."

The traditional assumption that only living creatures have independent, complex, unpredictable behaviour is no longer justified.

Some of the modern self-directing, "purposeful" machines can do far better than we can such chores as computing the speed in a giant aeroplane or the flight of a rocket. Others are more like toys—working models of simple animals.

Considering how compact the brain is, it's astonishing how such faults occur.

It was only five years ago that our new wave analyzer found theta waves, which had previously been masked by other things.

Dr Walter is rather modest. He invented the wave analyzer himself, and it was he who found delta waves, and also he found the attractive wife who "rejoices" purposefulness, is really a good wife in any of the villages round Nairobi or an outlay of 30 goats.

We find theta waves in bad-tempered people, in people rowed to anger, and also children.

We've been working on them ever since, and now we're beginning to recognize repetitive patterns. It's almost like reading a man's thought and we think we can get an indication of what he is liable to do.

Similarly, in a mental breakdown surgery may destroy the existing mental mechanism, such as in prefrontal leucotomy.

Or, by interfering with either brain or machine in certain controlled ways, we may tell from the reactions, or the way it breaks down, how it works.

The brain interference can be in the form of flickering light or irritant sounds. Brain mechanism can be jammed and distorted like radio transmissions if one can find the right frequency of signal.

They have relieved the symptoms of insanity. Have they cured the insanity? Or will it sometimes be hereditary and be handed on to their children, thus spreading the disease?

In 1946 leucotomy was first tried to help people worrying about pain—particularly that word, pain, in the world, in actuality.

I think the first pain leucotomy case here was on a girl a couple of years ago with agonizing neuralgia in the face. Now she doesn't feel the pain before it comes, nor suffer so much when it does come.

Having located these theta waves now gives us a chance to work on them and thus, perhaps, reduce violent behaviour.

Irritation

THE possibilities of this theory are enormous. There is, from time to time, a certain amount of irritation at high levels! A study of international news makes that fairly clear.

A man with a natural production of theta waves, for instance, wouldn't make a particularly desirable Foreign Secretary (though he might make a very good soldier).

Draw your own conclusions and see how immense the possibilities are!

It is not inconceivable that there could be a theta waves registration system, like the present finger print system. It could apply to people suspected of violent tendencies.

Steering

CYBERNETICS, the third line of research, is a word coined by Professor Wiener, of Boston.

It means "steersmanship"—the idea that all systems which direct themselves to a goal can be studied as a group, whether they are machines, animals, or societies, since the laws of goal-seeking and control are the same for all.

The traditional assumption that only living creatures have independent, complex, unpredictable behaviour is no longer justified.

Some of the modern self-directing, "purposeful" machines can do far better than we can such chores as computing the speed in a giant aeroplane or the flight of a rocket. Others are more like toys—working models of simple animals.

The way such machines live their simple lives suggests how we ourselves may manage our problems.

Faulty part

OBSERVATION of models suggests that much apparently free or random behaviour in animals, even "contented" or attractive wife who "rejoices" purposefulness, is really only a consequence of complexity.

Now they were a shocking price. You'd be lucky to pick up a utility model for 80 goats, and they have been fetching as much as 150.

When a complicated, purposeful machine breaks down the cause cannot be easily traced, we often find it best to remove the faulty component altogether in the hope that the rest will function after fashion.

Similarly, in a mental breakdown surgery may destroy the existing mental mechanism, such as in prefrontal leucotomy.

Or, by interfering with either brain or machine in certain controlled ways, we may tell from the reactions, or the way it breaks down, how it works.

The brain interference can be in the form of flickering light or irritant sounds. Brain mechanism can be jammed and distorted like radio transmissions if one can find the right frequency of signal.

Every family has so much land, so many head of stock and so many women. If they hand over a girl as a wife to another family they are giving up some of their capital, and they expect something back for her.

Besides, wives bought on the never-never system didn't work as hard as those you paid for on the nail. They knew that if you got in arrears with your instalments they'd have to go back,

From the African point of view there was nothing much wrong with the system until this awful business of the inflated or rocketing brides going upwards in spirals.

Ceiling wives

IASKED the chief if it wasn't possible to stop the rot by putting a ceiling price on wives as we'd done with fish and potatoes in England. He said that had been tried in some parts of East Africa, but it didn't work.

Fathers with unmarried African daughters were the same over the skin as people with houses to let. The only result of bride-price control was a rolling black wife market.

"I forgot whether it was in Punch or the New Yorker," the chief went on, fingering the rings in his ears, "but one of them had a joke about too many cattle chasing too few wives. It was very funny, but it wasn't entirely true."

"There are plenty of wives. I've got 17, and I know where I can get as many more as I want. The real trouble is they're inflated and going up in Europe you print more banknotes to pay for things. In Africa, when the cost of wives goes up, you have to increase your goat and cow circulation.

But cows, unlike banknotes,

have to eat, and with brutes at their present price there is more stock than the land can support, and vast areas are becoming dust bowls through overstocking.

"There's only one thing for it," said the African chief who reads the Times and listens to the BBC "and that is to devalue wives as you've done the pound."

—(London Express Service)

BERNARD WICKSTEED

in Darkest Africa, where—

Wives can be bought on the never-never

THE SCENE: A village steadily higher, in upward spirals.

I tried to picture an inflated wife going upwards in spirals, but the chief, who was evidently a student of the radio speeches of Sir Stafford Cripps, went on talking.

I've been sitting in the shade of a banana tree in front of a mud hut talking to an African chief about economic conditions in the post-war world.

He complained at the difficulty he had getting the BBC on his radio, the over-crowding on the buses and the late arrival of his airmail edition of the Times.

But most of all he complained about the high cost of buying a wife. Twenty years ago when he first married you could get quite a good wife in any of the villages round Nairobi for an outlay of 30 goats.

Now they were a shocking price. You'd be lucky to pick up a utility model for 80 goats, and they have been fetching as much as 150.

What can he do? In order to get wives for his own sons he's got to get as much as he can for his daughters. And so the prices go spiralling up.

"Well," I said, "wouldn't it be better to scrap the whole system and marry for love, as we do? It's a quaint idea but it seems to work."

"Oh, dear, no," he said, adjusting his top-hat. "There are too many vested interests. That would be a form of the capital levy. Every man with an unmarried daughter would cry out that he was being robbed.

"Ceiling" wives

THIS system of buying a wife is based on an aged old economy, and isn't as crazy as you'd think. We don't have stocks and shares and banks as you do. Our wealth is our land, our female stock—cows and nanny goats—and our women."

Get the idea? Instead of putting another pound in the bank they put another cow in the field. Instead of buying a savings certificate they take another wife.

Week-end Soccer

KITCHEE MEET THE SAINTS THIS AFTERNOON IN THE CHALLENGE SHIELD FINAL

By "UNOMI"

The Easter Holiday week-end soccer programme has been carefully planned out by the HKFA and it contains something to suit all tastes. The Challenge Shield Finals, both Senior and Junior, will be played this afternoon at the Club ground, Happy Valley. These should provide a perfect afternoon's treat for the huge crowd expected.

Kitchee, who have already won the First Division League Championship, meet that grand cup-fighting team, St Joseph's, in the Senior Shield. Little need be said of the prowess of Kitchee, who start off today's game as the favourites.

The team is strong in every department, especially the defence which has conceded the least amount of goals in the League this season. In the Shield matches they have scored seven goals and have had two scored against them.

St. Joseph's have the knack of the Army team will be in Arising went all out for that all-important goal to give them a draw, but Kwok and Company held out and a late goal by Lee Tai-fai finally settled the issue.

China are the holders of this trophy and will no doubt field their strongest side in order to retain custody of it.

LAST WEEK'S FINAL

The Memorial Cup final last Saturday kept a capacity crowd on its toes for the full 90 minutes. The Chinese retained custody of the trophy for one more year, but the Army made them fight every inch of the way.

The winners, with the exception of the right-back position where "Flash Harry" was a notable absentee, put up the strongest team they could possibly play on the field and, thanks to their excellent combination and skill, finished the game with the score 5-3 in their favour.

At one stage of the game the Chinese were leading by 4-1, but a few positional changes by the opposition worked wonders and they managed to shake the rock-like defence and slam on another two goals to make the score 4-3.

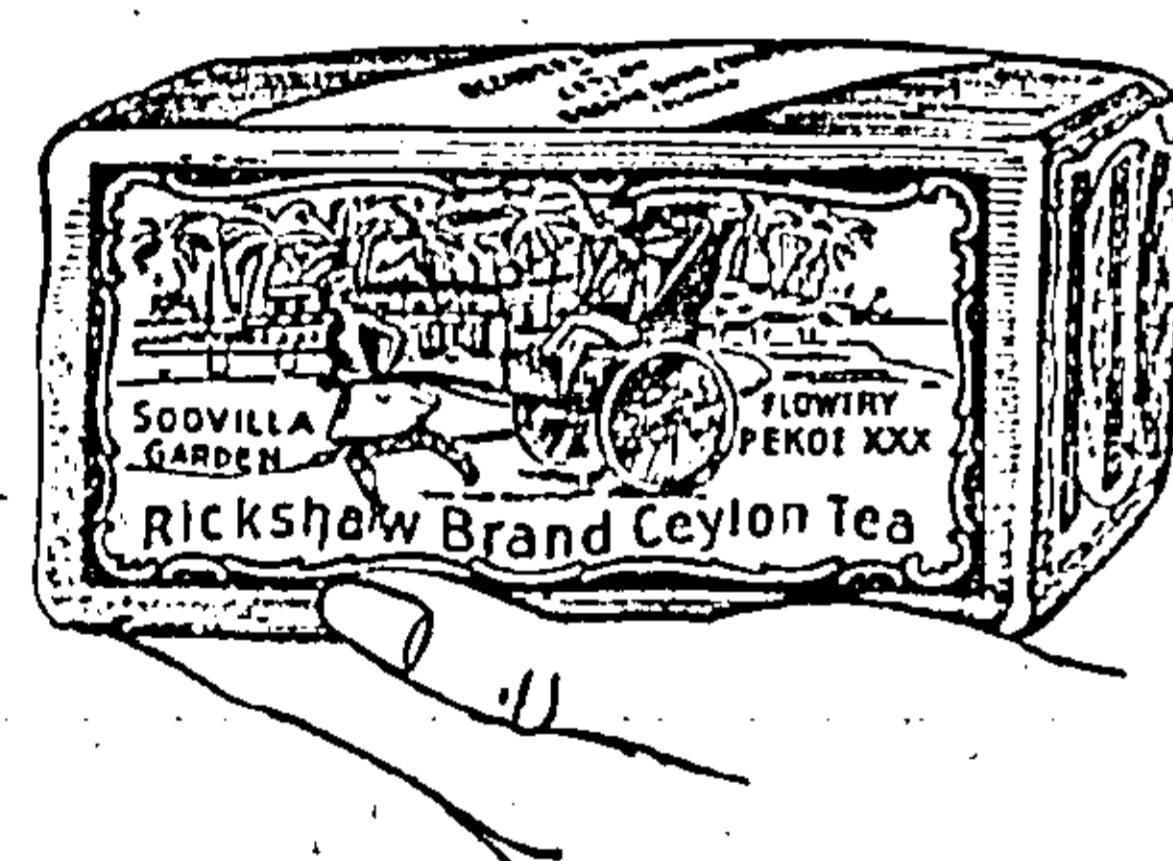

Both teams possess strong forward lines and we are sure of plenty of goal-mouth thrills. It is anybody's game, but I think the first-time tackling of the Commandos may upset the Army.

On Monday, the final of the International Cup will take place at Sookunpo—England v. China.

This game is sure to draw a large crowd, especially after the fine display put up by the Army against China last week. A few

Hongkong's Popular Ceylon Tea

RICKSHAW BRAND

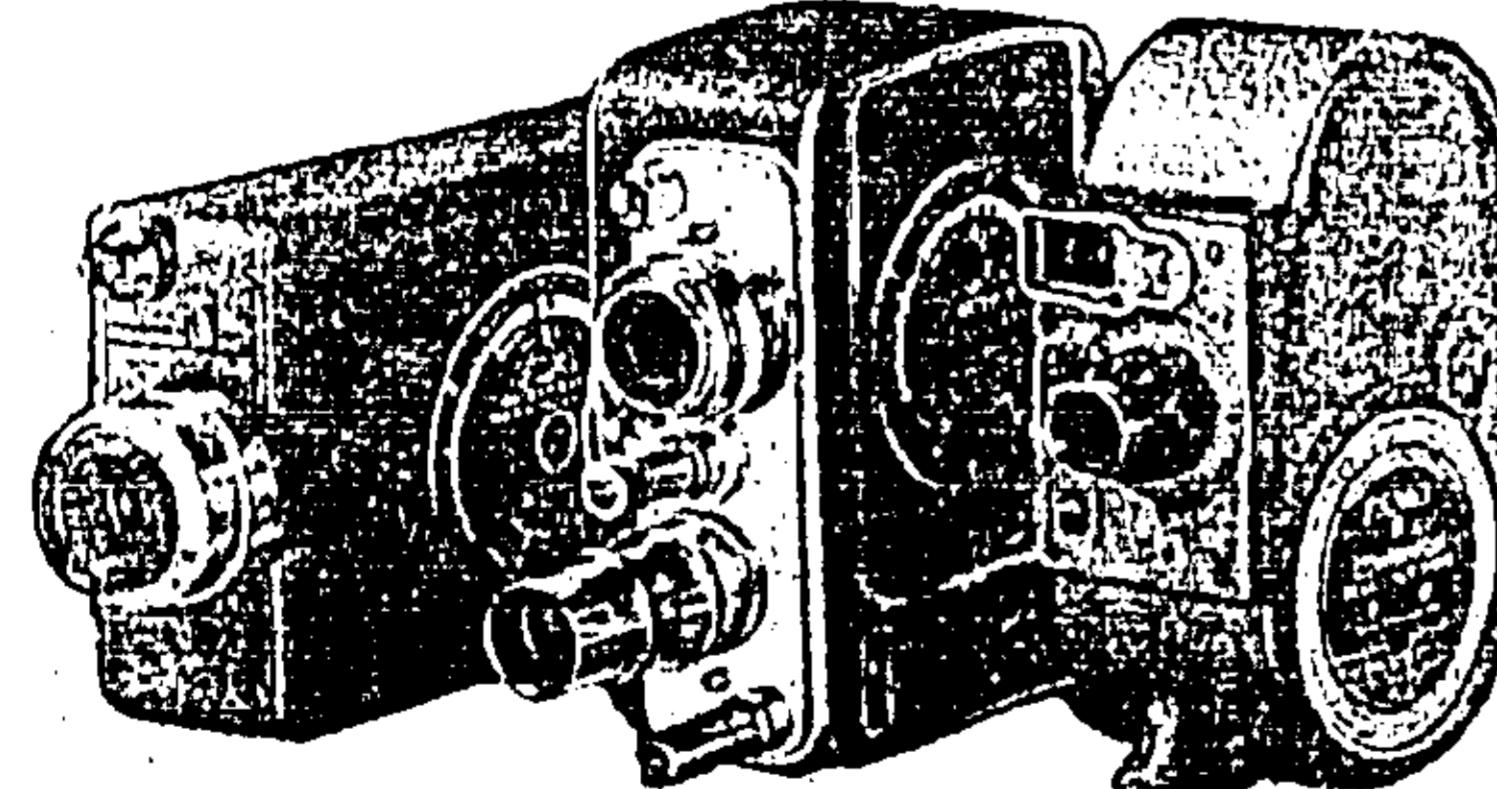

ON SALE EVERYWHERE

GIFTS THAT NEVER STOP GIVING!!

Filmo Movie Cameras

- ★ 16mm AUTOLOAD MAGAZINE CAMERA
- ★ AUTO-8 TURRET MAGAZINE CAMERA
- ★ 8mm SPORSTER CAMERA

Take your choice, they are all precision made by Bell & Howell

Agents

DEPOT

3RD FL. MARINA HOUSE HONGKONG
NEXT TO H.K. HOTEL17/19, QUEEN'S RD. C.
TELEPHONE 32153

BOOKMAKERS' MISFORTUNE

The horse that cost the bookmakers fortunes—Freebooter, won the Grand National Steeplechase by 15 lengths.—London Express.

FIGHTING SPIRIT

Seldom has a team shown such fighting spirit as these Army lads. Brown, who started off at outside-right and then moved to centre-forward, collected a hat trick, each goal a gem of opportunism.

Why did the Army Inside-right not swing the ball about and make full use of their wingers instead of trying too much dribbling?

Marsden was a winner in this respect. Fairbrother was shaky at times in goal and might have saved at least two of the counters.

The game contained everything a cup final should possess: good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will long be remembered.

ONLY THE MUGS MUST HAVE A BIT ON EVERY RACE SAYS CLIVE GRAHAM

London.—For the next eight months, the racehorse backer (homo-sapiens) will happily make play with his theories, his systems, and his hunches.

A. P. Herbert once described the racehorse as "an instrument by God designed, to redistribute wealth among mankind." The sickliness, the fits of temperament, the vagaries of this beautiful creature are notorious.

The mental processes of the people who bet on these horses are, however, equally unreliable and unpredictable.

Some backers — and they include such knowledgeable personalities of the Turf as racehorse-owners and trainers — cannot bear to miss a winner. This is a mistake.

They feel compelled to bet in every race, and very often, back not one but two or three horses. They would sooner back losers than miss the opportunity of a winner. This is a mistake.

To listen sympathetically to their stories one needs a heart of pre-cast concrete. They seem to revel in their complicated misfortunes. "If the horse hadn't fallen..." "If they hadn't listened to us and so..." "If the jockey had only ridden his mount better... they would have struck it rich (and, incidentally, untested)."

Another prolific section of the horse fanciers' army is the "I'll bet" brigade. These work themselves into a state of petulance at the last provocation.

It appears that while the forces were at the starting post one of the jockeys made a slighting reference about the girl friend of another rider. A heated argument developed, in which the other jockeys joined.

By the time the race started, the great money-making plan had been forgotten, and in the furious finish which ensued the "good thing" was not even among the first three.

A sad figure on the stands tore up a sheet of tote-tickets and grimly recalled that phrase about "The glorious uncertainty of the Turf."

This well-worn cliche explains, however, much of the fascination of racing to the average backer.

Others have a staking-plan on racing correspondents' nap selections.

Houses the third letter of whose name is "R" exercise a male influence.

Another man I know, a timber merchant, backs every horse whose name is in any way connected with wood. Crazy? He doesn't think so. He won £4,500 in a double a few weeks ago.

But, also, such excuses do not help to pay the rent.

In the last five years a significant percentage of racing's heavier punters have "decided" to retire from betting.

Many of them had the misfortune to enjoy novice's luck. Naturally, they began to think that they had found a sure way to easy money, and plenty of it.

Even members of this hardened breed have their foibles. Last year one of them motored straight home and stayed in bed for a week after a horse which he had backed was disqualified for bumping.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

Luck, after all, is the one vital asset to anyone who hopes to win money by backing horses.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

And they have their cycles of good and bad luck with the rest of us.

SPARE MOMENTS PAGE

• MCKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Treat Slam Bids With Some Caution

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

THERE were quite a few pairs at the national tournament last year who used the Gerber slam convention. This convention is practically the same as the Blackwood convention, except that the first bid asking for aces is that of being four no trump in four clubs.

When the four club bid is made it asks the partner to bid four diamonds if he does not have an ace, four hearts with one ace, four spades with two aces and four no trump with three aces.

In today's hand over North's four club bid South responded with four no trump, showing three aces. North's bid of the clubs asked his partner to show kings in the same manner. South's bid of five hearts showed one king. North's jump to seven diamonds was really too optimistic as he did not know which king South held. The king of clubs, or hearts, was of no value to him—only the king of diamonds.

However, at one table I think the declarer handled the play of Hand:

AK9
V7
QJ870532
A8
100
D9543 N AJ74
W E 32
S Q102
Q953 0
Denter K J7
A5
VAKJ6
A104
A1004
Lesson Hand—N-S vul.
South West North East
1N.T. Pass 4+ Pass
1N.T. Pass 5+ Pass
3+ Pass 7+ Pass
Opening—A4 2

the hand very well. He won the opening lead of the four of spades in his own hand with the king of spades.

He knew he was going to be on a terrible guess unless the singleton king of diamonds dropped from the East hand. He decided to prolong the guess as long as possible. He led a small club to the ace and ruffed a club. East's hand dropped.

The nine of spades was led and overtaken in dummy, with the queen and another club ruffed. East played the king of clubs.

Declarer now led the queen of diamonds. When East played the nine spot declarer reasoned that as long as East held the king of clubs he would play West for the singleton king of diamonds. In other words he was going to play the king's spot.

The ace of diamonds was played and when the king dropped that was all there was to worry about, and the grand slam was made.

SIDE GLANCES

By Galbraith

"Here's some meat loaf left over from last Easter! How does that appeal to you?"

BY THE WAY

by Beachcomber

THE Informers' Union has issued a statement complaining of the "low rate of remuneration" offered to its members.

"The self-respecting mark," says the statement, "turns in decreasing personal risks, owing to the non-co-operative attitude of the public. Only by paying good wages will the Government get the best men." The case is quoted of a spy who reported a woman for taking the wrong place in a queue, and was swindled out of his pay by a senior official of the Department.

A prominent swine said: "We cannot afford a strike of Informers at this crisis in the Nation's affairs."

The tin rush

TEXAS BELLE could shoot a parting in a man's hair at 50 yards, but she much preferred to shoot the man himself. Once a stranger from down-country came into the saloon and tried to trade a bit of f.p.s. for a drink, saying it was the from the Bangtoe Valley. The barman was tough, so the stranger tossed four guns into the air, but before he could catch them by the handles, Belle had put a bullet through each of them, shot the lights out, vaulted on to the stranger's horse, vaulted off it (splitting all the ears out of his corsege), shot the lights on again, and called for drinks all round. The stranger was so surprised that he moved out of town that night.

Book review

I HAVE received a copy of "The Sib-Sib Age of Oncot Correlation Among Individuals Suffering From A Hereditary Syndrome." Produced By More Than One Gene," with a reminder that I promised to review it some time ago.

For those who do not believe in the Sib-Sib this work will seem to take too much for granted. But the evidence for multimodality of the age of the syndrome's onset, distribution is skillfully marshalled, the cubic equations are adequately set out, and the formula for bitangential distribution is as lucid as that for continuous derivatives. Extravagantly, however, though it may seem, the authors cling to the Gaussian concept of curves of variance. Have they not read Deleat's exposure of Gauss?

Ami Roland,

sonnez votre alifant!

A TRAVELLER was complaining recently that even on remote mountain passes the noise of buses is heard today. Did I not write, many years ago, of Roncevaux?—

Over the pass another army sweeps,

A crowd of howling tourists, onward borne;

Gigantic buses charge where Roland sleeps;

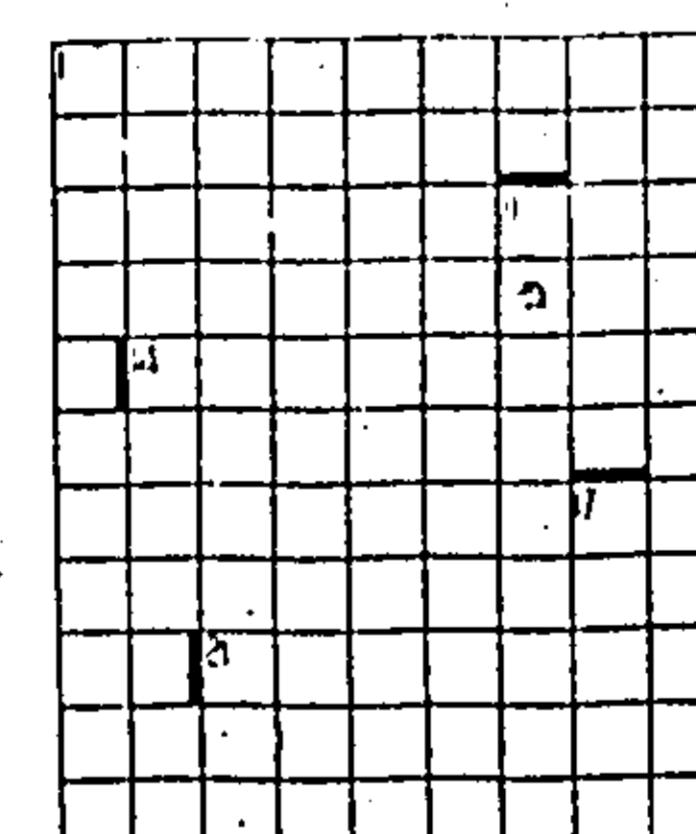

The ghost of Charlemagne hears a motor-horn.

—London Express Service.

SKELETON CROSSWORD

14. The sort of hair one gets from a permanent wave? 15. They have a certain quality. 16. Relatively cunning. 17. Sucks up. 18. Half paid, hair tent — it's not a prescription for wisdom, among other things (three words). 19. It's always in bloom. 20. It can be 12 Acres. 21. Such kindness could be unhealthily. 22. They're fragrant and beautiful (two words), but not — this: however. 23. — this, though apparently unconvincing, must be so. 24. Enough to make it mad, we concede. 25. Notionless distiller. 26. Notionless distiller. 27. Notionless distiller. 28. Notionless distiller. 29. Notionless distiller. 30. Cattle boat?

(Solution on this page)

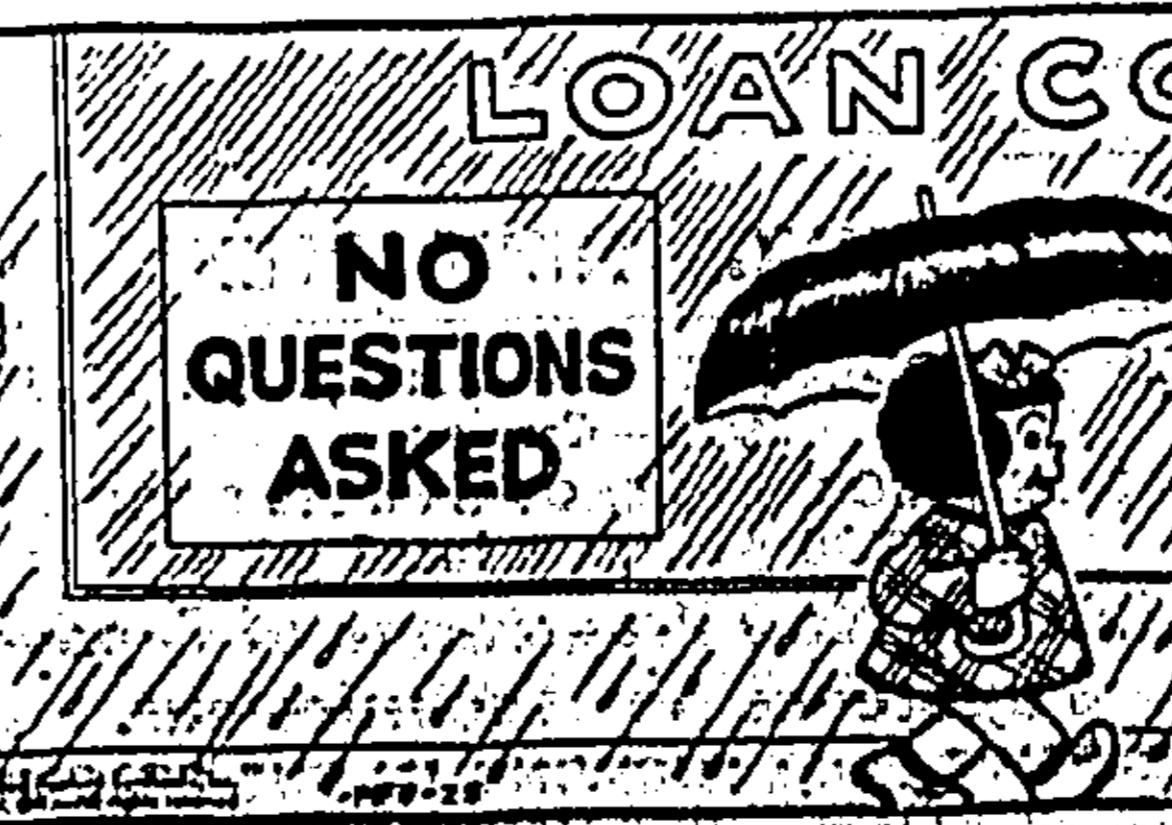

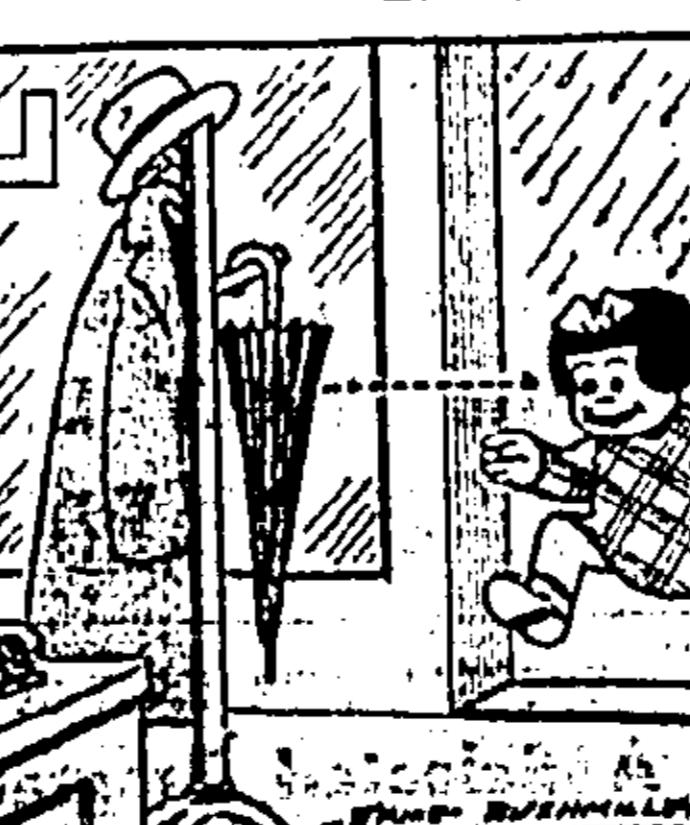

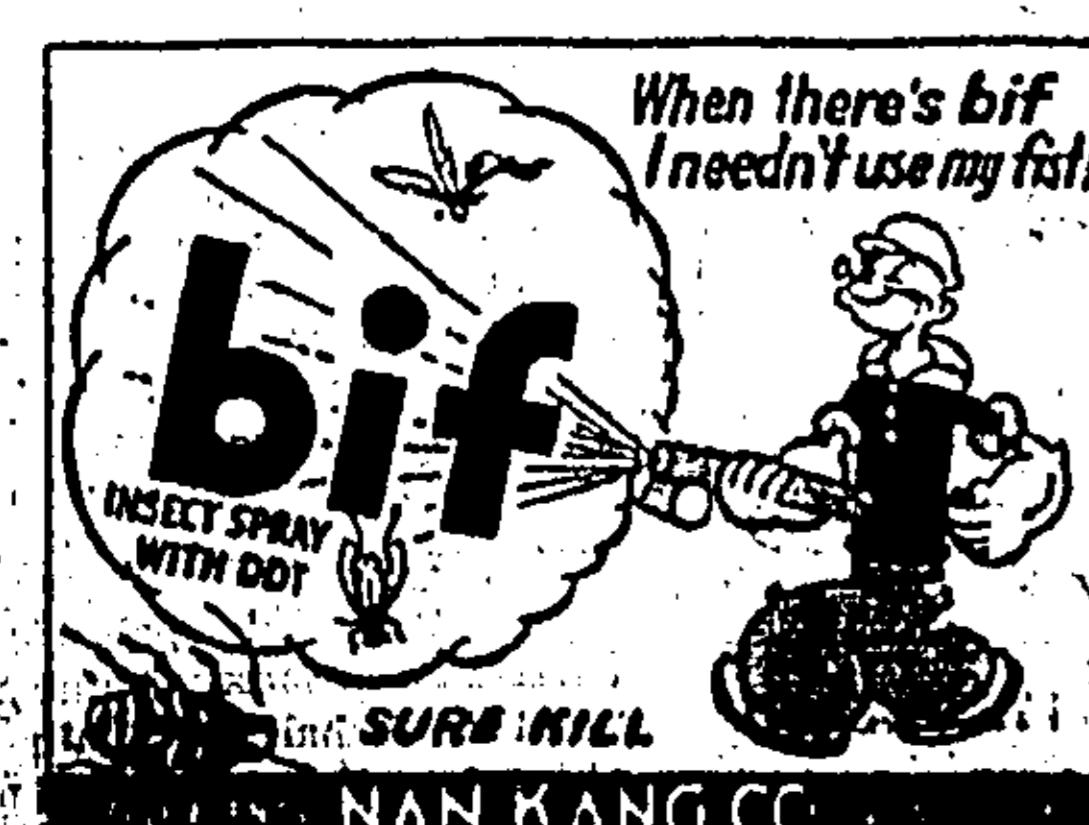

CLUES ACROSS:
1. Material made from coral and lime.
2. A short paragraph added to a letter.
3. A party and mine!
4. The wrong of terrorism.
5. Residence of a musical character.
6. London Express Service.

CLUES DOWN:
1. Stones found in Shropshire. It's sort of an uncertainty? It shouldn't be a prescription for wisdom, among other things (three words).
2. It's always in bloom.
3. It can be 12 Acres.
4. Such kindness could be unhealthily.
5. They're fragrant and beautiful (two words), but not — this: however.
6. — this, though apparently unconvincing, must be so.
7. Enough to make it mad, we concede.
8. Notionless distiller.
9. Notionless distiller.
10. Notionless distiller.
11. Notionless distiller.
12. Notionless distiller.

(Solution on this page)

NANCY

Watred Stock

By Ernie Bushmiller

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By STELLA

SATURDAY, APRIL 8

IF you are born today, you have a great deal of personal charm. This is of great assistance to you in making important friends who will help further your success. The stars have given you a variety of talents as well as the energy and ability to make good use of them. You have a great deal of tenacity and once you have decided upon some course of endeavour, nothing can divert you until you have successfully reached your goal. Your judgment is excellent and your intuition keen. This combination is almost "sure fire" when it comes to wooing fame and success. You must realise, however, that you will need to work just as hard after the first bit of triumph, if you want to make consistent and continual gains.

You have a sense of humour and a sharp tongue which often can turn a word or a phrase which is long remembered. You must guard against being sarcastic at the expense of others. This is not a happy habit and one you should break. Even close friendships can be threatened by its indiscriminate use.

You women are charming, vivacious, full of fun and excellent hostesses. You have good mental powers and are very practical underneath your seemingly happy-go-lucky exterior. It is likely you are pretty—but definitely not dumb.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birth-day star be your daily guide.

SUNDAY, APRIL 9

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—Hed your intuitions today and all should go well. Start the day right. Be wise in making any important decisions.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Early hours are disturbing. Seek spiritual guidance if necessary. Improvement develops later.

GEMINI (May 22-June 22)—Be cautious in all morning activities. Later on, devote time to your usual Sunday activities. Follow intuitions.

CANCER (June 23-July 23)—Not a good morning. Curb impulses. Afternoon and evening, however, show a definite improvement.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Don't let pessimistic thoughts mar your day. The morning hours are trying, but conditions improve later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22)—Go slowly early today. Make sure your judgment is clear. When afternoon comes, things brighten up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)—Idealism and impulsiveness have no place in today's schedule. Be practical and wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Imagination may have full play this morning, but afternoon will prove if your scheme is practical.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—If you can avoid confusion this morning by tact and calmness, the balance of the day goes well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Go the long way around to avoid any argument at home. Tact and diplomacy can save the day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Envy or jealousy has no place in today's picture. Haste can make waste. Go slowly and carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 18)—Rest is what you need just now. Don't attempt anything important today. Just relax; restore energies.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—If you can avoid confusion this morning by tact and calmness, the balance of the day goes well.

makers and managers as well as fine company for your husband and children. Fond of young people, you will want a large family of your own. If denied this, you will wish to adopt children to raise as your own. Although you have talents which could lead to a successful career, you will be happiest if you make your home and family your chief interest in life.

The tie of home and family are very strong. Undoubtedly you will want to have your own family group at an early age. A marriage in your early twenties or late teens might be an advantageous one.

You women are very attractive to members of the opposite sex. You are wonderful homemakers and managers as well as fine company for your husband and children. Fond of young people, you will want a large family of your own. If denied this, you will wish to adopt children to raise as your own. Although you have talents which could lead to a successful career, you will be happiest if you make your home and family your chief interest in life.

If denied the love and affection which you crave, you can become very withdrawn and even anti-social in its more severe aspects.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birth-day star be your daily guide.

MONDAY, APRIL 10

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—Use your best judgment this morning. Utilise friendships which can bring added success.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Morning hours are again difficult. Avoid an argument and be tactful in all problems involving business.

GEMINI (May 22-June 22)—Guard your speech this morning. Count ten before answering anyone in anger. Calmness pays off!

CANCER (June 23-July 23)—Avoid an argument this morning. Postponing a contract until afternoon is the better part of wisdom.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Hold to regular routine this morning. When afternoon comes, make a decision; hold to it; forget ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22)—Patience this morning will be rewarded. You can get what you want later on if you are careful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Postpone a journey this morning until after lunch today. Afternoon and evening, however, are excellent for your efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Stick to familiar tasks this morning. Later on, you may find disastrous of a project; so be cautious and guarded in all matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—Be careful in all decisions. Count ten before answering anyone in anger. Calmness pays off!

CROSSWORD SOLUTIONS

Solution of yesterday's puzzle. Solution of Skeleton Crossword on this page:—

PORCELAIN
APPEAL
FAIRGROUND
FLATLINE
EMERINE
TABORIST
TABORIST
TOWER SITE
OMEGICIA
NINE OWLS
STONEWALL

DUMB-BELLS
PATENT OFFICE

WE HAD TO SHOOT OUR DOG!
M...
WELL, IT DIDN'T SEEM TOO HAPPY ABOUT IT!
IT WAS MAD!
S...

Then clearly W M B and M E S are similar right-angled triangles. Jinks goes nine times as fast as John, so the ratio of the times is M B : M E S = 9 : 1. The ratio of the sides of the triangles are in the ratio of 4 : 10 : 9.

So the distance covered by John is 40 miles and the distance covered by Jinks is 90 miles. Hence John's average speed is 40 miles per hour.

London Express Service.

GOOD FRIDAY FOOTBALL: LIVERPOOL BACK IN THE LEAD

London, Apr. 7.—Although there was not a complete football programme today—most League teams were playing—nearly a million soccer fans saw the first matches of the busy Easter weekend period which may well settle promotion and relegation problems.

WEEK-END SPORT

TODAY

Basketball — Warriors v Hongkong & Kowloon Combined at Caroline Hill, 8 p.m.

Cricket — KCC (Second Division Champions) v The Rest of the Second Division XI at Cox's Road, 1.45 p.m.; Prismatics v Royal Army Pay Corps at Sooknupoo, 1.45 p.m.

Football — Junior and Senior Shield Final at Happy Valley, Army v Commandos, 2.30 p.m.; Kitchee v St. Joseph's, 4.30 p.m.

Races — Easter Race Meeting (First Day) at Happy Valley, First Saddling Bell at 11.30 a.m.

Softball — Men's Senior League Play-offs — Braves v Jaguars at CBA ground, King's Park, 11.30 a.m.

Ladies' Senior League — Pirates v Wildcats at CBA ground, 10 a.m.

Ladies' Junior League — McTyreans v White Fangs at CBA ground, 1 p.m.

Men's Junior League — Final Play-offs — Blackhawks v Blackarrows, 10 a.m.; Mohawks v Aces, 11.30 a.m.; Falcons v Saints, 1 p.m.; Dodgers v Bluebirds, 2.30 p.m.; Delawares v Blackbirds, 4 p.m.—all games at Recreco ground, King's Park.

TOMORROW

Basketball — Arellano v Hongkong & Kowloon Combined at Caroline Hill, 8 p.m.

Cricket — IRC v Commandos at Sooknupoo (First Division League), 1.45 p.m.

Football — First Division League: St. Joseph's v Kowloon Motor Bus at Happy Valley, 5 p.m.

Second Division League: RAF v University at Kowloon, 5 p.m.; Police v Dockyard at Boundary Street, 5 p.m.; Kitchee v Navy at Happy Valley, 3.30 p.m.

Law — Bowls — President of team Mr. Atkinson's team at Kowloon Bowling Green Club, 3.30 p.m.

Softball — Men's Senior League Final Play-offs — Braves v Americans at CBA ground, King's Park, 2.30 p.m.

Inter-Hong Kong League: Shell v San Miguel at CBA ground, 11.30 a.m.; Caltex v Gulf, 11.30 a.m.; Livingston at CBA ground, 1 p.m.

Ladies' Junior League: Clovers v Squaws at CBA ground, 4 p.m.

Midgets' League: Mohawks v Falcons, 10 a.m.; Lions v Aces, 11.30 a.m.; Blackhawks v Saints, 1 p.m.; Dodgers v Delawares, 2.30 p.m.; Blackarrows v Bluebirds, 4 p.m.—all at Recreco ground.

GAMMANS ATTACK

(Continued from Page 1) of Communist China. Did the Government still contend that the recognition had had, no effect on the situation?

No-one in Malaya was prepared to accept that view. Appointments of Chinese Communist consults could be much longer be evaded. Bands would never be caught unless the Chinese population were prepared to give information. The bands could not survive a month in the jungle without the help of the Chinese. He was sure we could get that help if the Chinese could be sure the Government meant business.

He asked whether any approach had been made to Australia and New Zealand for help. If Singapore fell they would be in a deadly peril.

Time was getting short. There was a limit to what the rubber planters and tin miners could stand. It was little good talking about closing the dollar gap and losing Malaya.

A CENTURY

Mr. Patrick Spens, Conservative, said we seemed to be dealing with the Malayan situation on our own. There was no general policy between all nations interested in that area. To try and raise the standard of living of millions of people in the Far East in an effort to eliminate the grounds on which Communism flourished would take a century.

Mr. Walter Fletcher said we had taken it for granted that because the output of tin and rubber continued and rose in price, thus contributing towards the closing of the dollar gap, that it would continue to do so.

Mr. Griffiths said there was no rapid or easy solution and no magic formula for dealing with the situation. The possibility of getting troops from other parts of the Common-

Winnie's Horse Beaten

Salisbury, Wiltshire, Apr. 6.—Mr. Winston Churchill and his family saw his French-bred race horse, Colonist, beaten into fourth place in the Salisbury Spring Handicap, run over one mile, here today.

Colonist, winner of three of his six races since arriving in England last summer, attempted to make all the running but was collared a furlong from home, finishing fourth behind the 6 to 1 chance, Eulogy, owned by Mr. G. Cooper, a Portsmouth butcher.

Crystal Link, a 20 to 1 shot, was second, two lengths behind Eulogy, with the 9 to 4 favourite, Signalman, half a length away third in a field of nine runners.

Colonist started second favourite at 7 to 2.—Reuter.

RUGBY UNION TEAM OFF ON TOUR

London, Apr. 7.—The Rugby Union team, which left over the weekend to tour New Zealand and Australia this summer, will have ample opportunities for getting to know each other during the six weeks' sea trip.

That is one of the main reasons why the sea route is always preferred to travel by air on such occasions.

The weeks on board ship are to be useful in giving members of the party a chance to meet each other socially and to study the tactical aspects of the tour to be directed.

Moreover, the players are able to enjoy an adequate rest period after the tiring British season, which for most of them has meant continuous Rugby for four months.

YOUNGEST CAPTAIN

Karl Mullen, the Old Belvedere and Ireland hooker, is the youngest of all International Rugby captains at 23. His selection is considered sound as it is popular, for he has led his side for the past three seasons with outstanding success.

When the team left, the vice-captain was not known, but a cable was received from the ship stating that Bleddy Williams, the Cardiff and Wales centre-threequarter, had been given the honour.

All the 30 players in the party are Internationals—13 from Wales, nine from Ireland, five from Scotland and three from England—and includes two full-backs, four wing-threequarters, four centre-threequarters, two stand-off halves, three scrum-halfs and backs and 15 forwards.

This is the first British side to visit the Antipodes since 1930.—Reuter.

RUGBY RESULTS

London, Apr. 6.—The following were the results of Rugby Union games played today: Birkenhead Park 10, Manchester 3; Teignmouth 9, Old Merchant Taylors 11.—Reuter.

FOLKESTONE HOCKEY

Folkestone, Kent, Apr. 7.—Folkestone's annual Easter Hockey Festival, traditionally the biggest and most international of the many such gatherings taking place at resorts in various parts of the country, opened today in brilliant weather with Continental teams concerned with each of the five matches playing.

The results were: Grasshoppers Zurich 1, Llanfair 7; Cheam 0, Victory Club, Antwerp 3; Haechtanchi 3, Battalions of Dordrecht 3; Polo Club de Roubaix 1, South Saxons 3; H.S.C. The Hague 1, Royal Engineers 4.—Reuter.

Hockey Team

The following will represent the Police v. YMCA Shamsulpo military ground at 10.30 a.m. tomorrow (Sunday), rendezvous at Shamsulpo Police Station at 10 a.m.:

Walker; Pebbett and M. Singh; Soares, Leslie and Brown; Birch, Wilson, Yusuf, Cox and Thong. Reserve: D. Singh and Reynolds.

Wealth was not being overlooked.

He said that demands for martial law came from very few people indeed. The great majority felt that such action was not needed. The Malayan campaign was a big job and a tough one, but in the end we would prevail.

The Minister reiterated the recent statement by the Prime Minister on our intention to see it through and said it would remove any doubts in the minds of the gallant people in Malaya.

Winding up the debate, Mr. Oliver Stanley, former Conservative Colonial Secretary, said that this was a matter of national importance and would certainly be discussed again.

Polished Innings By Schoolboy

Lahore, Apr. 7.—A hard-hitting partnership of 114 runs between Kolaart and the 18-year-old schoolboy, Jayasinghe, enabled Ceylon to muster an impressive first innings total of 329 against a Pakistan Combined Universities team here today.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 13 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.—Reuter.

ROXY
AIR-COINITIONED

4 SHOWS TO-DAY AT 2.30, 5.30,
7.30 & 9.30 p.m.

TRUE STORY OF $20,000,000 IN GOLD
... yours for the taking...
If you can find it!

GLENN FORD • IDA LUPINO LUST FOR GOLD

Produced and Directed by S. Sylvan Simon • A COLUMBIA PICTURE

BROADWAY ADDED: Latest Fox Movietone News

ROXY ADDED: THE MARCH OF TIME'S
light, entertaining film about vacations
"WISH YOU WERE HERE"

SUNDAY MORNING SHOW

ROXY at 11.30 a.m. Broadway at 12 noon
Columbia Films presents
"A VARIETY PROGRAMME OF COLORED CARTOONS & 3 STOOGES COMEDIES"
At Reduced Prices.

TO-DAY ONLY MAJESTIC At 2.30, 5.20,
7.20 & 9.20 p.m.

UNMATCHED SPECTACLE!
Powder-scorched saga of the relentless cattle rings!
ALBERT ARMSTRONG

STAMPED
Starring ROD CAMERON, GALE STORM, JOHNNY MACK BROWN, DON CASTLE
DAVID CURTIS, JOHN MILLAN

Holiday Extra Show At 12.00 Noon

To-day, 8th:
Johnny Weissmuller "Tarzan and His Mate" in Sunday, 9th: "The Kissing Bandit"

Frank Sinatra in

Monday, 10th: "Luxury Liner" Jane Powell in

COMMENCING TO-MORROW

SAMUEL GOLDWYN presents
"ROSEANNA McCLOY"
Starring: Farley GRANGER • Charles BICKFORD

CENTRAL
THEATRE

270, QUEEN'S RD. CENTRAL. PHONE 25720

5 SHOWS DAILY *

AT 12.30, 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

* FINAL EPISODE *

flying G-MEN
A COLUMBIA CHAPTER PLAY
ROBERT PAIGE • RICHARD FISKE
JAMES CRAIG • LORNA GRAY

• A SEAT IN THE STALLS •

WALT DISNEY CAN'T HELP LOVING MICE

Introduction of a new group of irresistible animal characters in Walt Disney's all-cartoon animation feature, "Cinderella," once more will stir audience speculation as to how and why he selects these little folk which form such a large proportion of his creative output.

Gus-Gus and Jaq and their cronies who dwell in the great chateau where Cinderella is an abused servant of her cruel kinderwoman are certain to be rated among Disney's most comical and endearing creatures. They come from the mouse clan, although, like all other Disney fable folk, they are not strictly animal.

SPECIAL DESIGN

Walt's preference for mouse characters links right up with his special design of cartoon comedy—with his whole scheme of popular entertainment in the medium where he stands supreme. In his recipe for movie fun, the timid, browbeaten, oppressed little creatures always eventually defeat the big, bad, oppressive bullies in a gale of surprising action and laughter. Remember? The pudgy pigs and the big, bad wolf.

Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox, Little Bongo and the ferocious pugnacious bear, Mickey and the great ogre of the beanstalk, Bambi and the big stag, Sachi and the wolf, Timothy Mouse frightening the big elephants in "Dumbo," Mickey and the violent eagle in the Alpine adventure. And, of course, Donald, champion of all little folk, battling every kind of menace.

Mickey Mouse is perhaps the most potent reason for Walt's selection of mouse heroes in so many of his productions—Mickey who won phenomenal world fame and first made the Disney name celebrated as a creative showman and entertainment genius.

Walt doesn't forget the "Juck" Mickey brought him, since the time when, in a critical hour in his career, the little fellow was created from the image of a timid mouse who made himself at home in Walt's Hollywood garage studio.

CREDIT TO THE CLAN

Gus-Gus and Jaq do credit to the clan as the knightly little heroes in the "Cinderella" tale where they battle and outwit one of Disney's most sinister villains, Lucifer, the big fat house cat who reflects the meanness of the girl's cruel stepmother.

In the mouse band too, are other helpful characters and their coy little girl friends. The feminine contingent help make a gorgeous dress for raged Cinderella before the fairy godmother intervenes in her fortunes and provides the glass slippers and the golden pumpkin coach for the palace ball and the meeting with Prince Charming.

The songs they sing and their cheery, excited chatter will long be a happy memory of the fabled mice in the romantic musical version of the timeless legend and the wondrous love story, soon to be released.

RKO Radio distributes the elaborate, music-sustained feature, in colour by Technicolor.

Too dangerous to be faked by doubles

The singing cry of steel on steel is heard the length and breadth of Hollywood. Rapier flash and clash. Romantic heroes shout, "En garde," and thrust. Villains who have lived by the sword, died by the sword.

And wherever the bright blades flash, whether in "The Sons Of The Musketeers," "Prince Of Foxes," "Black Rose" or "Buccaneer's Girl," there flashes also the graceful, white figure of Fred Cavens, one of the greatest swordsmen America ever has known.

A brilliant fencer since the age of 12, an honour graduate of the Royal Fencing College of Brussels, Fred Cavens has been teaching swordplay to the great and the near-great of Hollywood for quarter of a century. Numbered among his noted pupils have been Cornel Wilde, Douglas Fairbanks (senior and junior), John Barrymore, John Gilbert, Milton Sills, Ian Keith, Rod LaRoque, Leslie Howard, Reginald Denny, Ralph Forbes, Basil Rathbone, Tyrone Power, Errol Flynn and a great host of other swashbuckling luminaries.

THEY HAVE TO LEARN

They have had to learn because:

Dueling with rapier or sword is the only dangerous thing transmitted to the screen that cannot be faked by doubles. Let Cavens explain:

Skilled fencers have certain reflexes, the result of years of training. They cannot be told what to do. Their reflexes and fencing instinct tell them that. Their work, also, is too lightning fast to register. Actors are not subject to such reflexes, and they can remember to not. A movie duel is slower, broader, than a real encounter, and this broadness permits the opponents to register dramatic reactions."

At this writing Fred Cavens is teaching the art of puncturing hearts and drilling holes in lizards to Cornel Wilde, Maureen O'Hara, Robert Douglas, Don O'Herny and Alan Hale, Jr., for spectacular fighting sequences in "The Sons Of The Musketeers."

Technicolor, is set in France some 20 years after the era in which Alexandre Dumas placed the characters of his original great adventure story, "The Three Musketeers."

It will bring to the screen the sons of D'Artagnan, Porthos and Aramis, and the daughter of Athos. Playing the last-named role, Miss O'Hara will be seen often in men's clothes, swaggering, romancing and laughing at danger with her three male companions—which accounts for her tutelage in the use of the rapier.

"I can't recall how many male stars I've taught to fence, but only three women," remarked Cavens. "One was Bobo Daniels, then Binnie Barnes, and now Miss O'Hara, who is rapidly becoming as proficient with the rapier as were her predecessors."

Gertrude Lawrence makes her Hollywood debut

Gertrude Lawrence has finished her first venture in Hollywood (although she had previously appeared before cameras in New York and London) and charmingly, pronounced herself happy about the whole thing.

She even spoke glowingly of Jack Warner, the production chief at Warner Brothers and her employer, who is usually the bête noire of actors who work for him.

"Perhaps we got along so well because neither of us is committed to any further projects," Miss Lawrence suggested.

There have been, she added, some extremely tentative discussions of future pictures for her, but nothing she could put her finger on, and certainly nothing to create any tension.

Miss Lawrence made her Hollywood debut as a drab mother in the Jerry Wald-Charles K. Feldman production at "The Glass Menagerie."

The picture, she believes, ought to do justice to the play, particularly since Tennessee Williams, the author, adapted it to the screen.

Even her famous comments on "gay deceivers" were "now awaiting the opinion of the production code administrators."

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE added to the total effect of the photoplay.

"I would hate to have anyone think it was inserted just to give Lawrence a chance to look glamorous," she said.

THEY WON OSCARS

British-born Olivia de Havilland has won Hollywood's most coveted award—an "Oscar"—for the second time.

The award, given by the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences, was made to her for the best acting by a woman in 1949—for her performance in "The Heiress." She won the 1946 "Oscar" for the film "To Each His Own."

The award for the best film of 1949 was made to "All the King's Men," a film about the rise and fall of an American politician.

Broderick Crawford, the star, won an "Oscar" for the best male performance of the year. In "All the King's Men" he portrayed the tough power-seeking politician character said to have been based on the late Senator Huey Long.

When you do that—smile!

No film fan can ever forget that moment in "The Big Parade" when Jimmy Cagney squashed half a grapefruit in Mae Clark's face.

That was a bit of business which aroused the envy of male moviegoers and a mixture of horror and admiration in the women.

Another similar scene brought to mind was Clark Gable's rugged manhandling of Norma Shearer in "Free Soul."

Now Victor Mature has devised a new method of brutality towards women in RKO Radio's "Easy Living." Portraying a professional football hero in the film, Vic, who co-stars with him, Lucille Ball, Sonny Tufts and Lloyd Nolan.

Elizabeth is a selfish, ambitious, power-hungry woman who loves Mature only for his glamour and money.

When he finally sees her for what she is, he tells her off in no uncertain terms and slaps her hard across the face.

Then in a final gesture of complete contempt, Vic places his thumb on her lips and slowly, deliberately smears her lipsick over her face.

Nice trick, but we wouldn't advise you husbands to try it out on your wives—at least not without a big smile on your face.

Gigi's on the go

Gigi Perreau, seven-year-old actress who won fame in "Enchanted" and "Rosetta McCoy," is the busiest little tyke in Hollywood. Just as soon as she finishes her present role in Susan Hayward's "My Foolish Heart," she'll jump to RKO Radio for a big supporting role in "Irene Dunn" and Fred MacMurray in "Come Share My Love."

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE added to the total effect of the photoplay.

"I would hate to have anyone think it was inserted just to give Lawrence a chance to look glamorous," she said.

QUEENS & ALHAMBRA

AIR-COINITIONED AIR-FRESHENED

SHOWING TO-DAY AT 2.30, 5.15, 7.20 & 9.30 P.M.

ALHAMBRA: TO-DAY, TO-MORROW & MONDAY EXTRA SHOWS AT 12.00 NOON

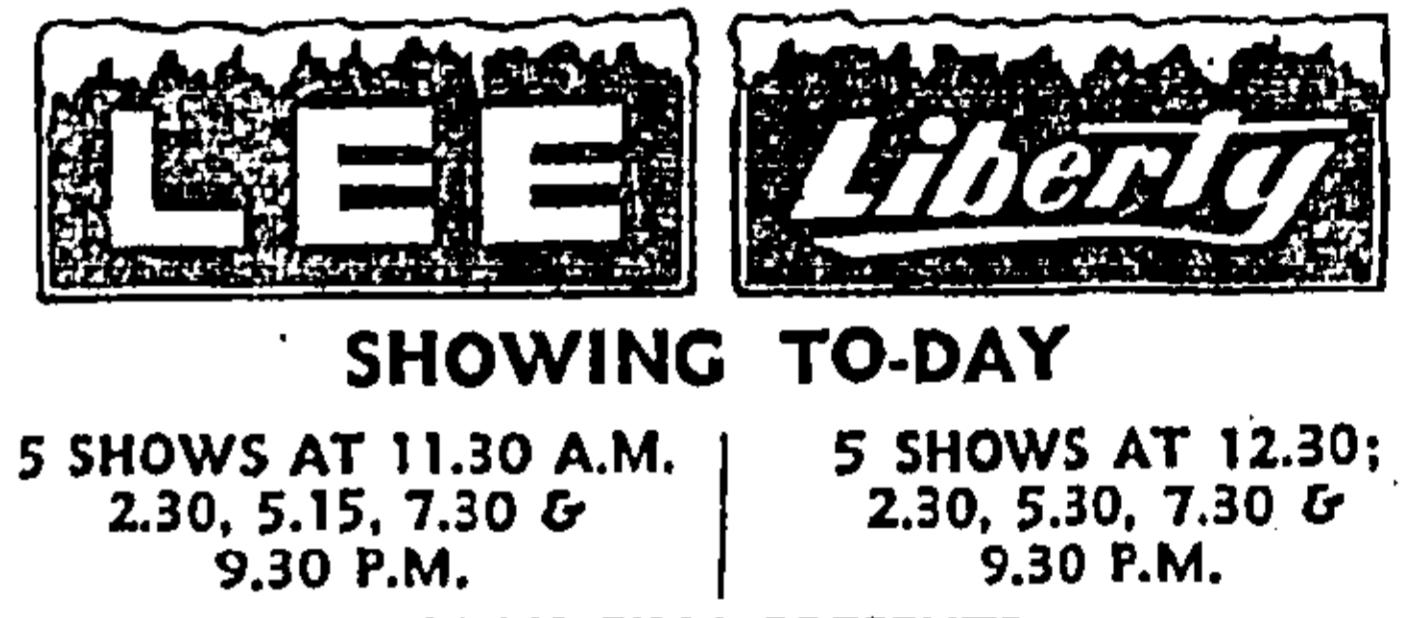

Want to know what the Inspector General inspects?

DANNY KAYE is the Inspector General

The All-time Comedy Kaye from WARNER BROS.

QUEEN'S
TO-MORROW MORNING SHOW
AT 11.30 A.M. ONLY
VARIETY PROGRAM
(From RKO & MGM)
AT REDUCED PRICES

SHOWING TO-DAY
5 SHOWS AT 11.30 A.M. 2.30, 5.15, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

PEAK FILM PRESENTS

"ADVENTURES OF THE BOY WITH THREE HAIR"

SHOWING TO-DAY
DIALOGUE IN MANDARIN

ORIENTAL

AIR CONDITIONED

Take Any Eastern Tram Car or Happy Valley Bus

POSITIVELY LAST FOUR TIMES TO-DAY!

Final Showing: 2.30—5.30—7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

ONE OF THE MOST AMAZING SPECTACLES OF BEAST AGAINST MAN IN ALL JUNGLE LOVE!

Open To-Morrow: Universal's Exciting Film

"Bud & Lou Meet the Killer Boris Karloff"

SPECIAL MORNING SHOW TO-MORROW AT 12.30
A Complete New Programme of Cartoons

5 SHOWS TO-DAY

Another Man HWA SUPER PRODUCTION!

"MISS FENG'S LOVE ADVENTURE"

DIALOGUE IN MANDARIN

Starring: Miss PAT KWONG • SHEK FAI

BILLY ROSE'S
SATURDAY AT THE
DIAMOND HORSESHOE

The lady saw stars & stripes

BEFORE the war—World War II, that is—the cushiest peace-time assignment the Army had to offer a West Point graduate was at one of its cavalry posts. Because, where there's cavalry there are bound to be horses, and where there are horses there is frequently polo—the sport of kings and second lieutenants.

Which brings me to the story of Lieutenant Larry Benson's revenge and, you'll pardon a frightful pun, his mallets aforethought...

In 1938, while playing No. 2 on his post's polo team, Larry's right eye got, in the way of an opponent's mallet, and when he came to the hospital an hour later, he was minus the eye.

The following week, in accordance with standard operating procedure, the Army presented him with a handsome glass substitute and reassigned him to command a battery of mimeographs in the post's supply centre.

WHEN Larry realised he would never again chase a small white ball around a big green field he became well-nigh inconsolable and, like so many others, he began to console himself with a bottle.

But, as luck would have it, the Colonel in charge of the post was a tacto-taller—not the five-and-let-guzzle type, but the other kind. And as for the Colonel's lady—well...she was every bit as tight-minded as he.

One morning, when Larry reported for duty after a night of bar-flying, the colonel fixed him with a half-hearing eye. "Benson," he said in the tone of voice one usually reserves for tarantulas crawling up one's leg, "you're—drunk!"

Larry, who quite prided himself on being able to drink like a gentleman, couldn't imagine how the Colonel had diagnosed his condition until he peeped his way to the men's room and examined himself in the mirror.

And there was the answer—his good eye looked as if it had been spattered with ketchup, while the other was as clear as the crystal it was made of.

Well, Benson was what you might call a resourceful man, so he went to a glass-eye artist and ordered two more eyes—one mildly bloodshot, the other the colour of horch.

AND after that, on morning after, he saw to it that his fake eye matched the true one, shifting in easy stages from very bloodshot to medium bloodshot to clear.

From then on his drinking caused no comment, and the ex-polo player might have been shuttled for years between martinis and mimeographs if his banting for horseflesh hadn't led him to apply for an assumption which would get him back in the saddle.

"Request denied," said the Colonel. "Furthermore, when I order a man to do a particular job, I expect him to stick to it. Remember, Lieutenant, we are all in the service of the United States of America."

Naturally, this kind of talk didn't set well with Larry, and determined to get his own back he went back to the orb specialist and ordered a very special kind of eye: smack-dab in the centre where the eyeball should have been, his specifications called for an American flag fluttering in the breeze.

The day of vengeance came a week later, when the Colonel and his wife held their annual reception for the junior officers of the post. As the bored lieutenants and captains were mumbbling their thanks to their hostess and filing out, Larry stepped forward, bowed, and then straightened up, his eyes half closed.

"Madam," he said solemnly, "we must never forget that we are all in the service of the United States of America." And with that he popped his right eye open.

A GOOD 10 minutes later, when the woman was finally brought to with smelling salts and much rubbing of the wrists, she told her husband, as best she could, about the fluttering flag in Larry's eye....

And that's the story of Lieutenant Benson's revenge. For, to hear the cavalry boys tell it, the Colonel is still wondering whether he's married to a do-gooder or to a dame who hits the bottle on the quiet.

—London Express Service.

"Reckon Buck Pern ain't goin' to forget the holes in his hat when two-gum Webb calls for the meat."

London Express Service

Sefton Delmer's Flying Briefcase

A FRIEND was driving me to his club in Calcutta when suddenly a procession of demonstrators flooded out of a side street, and we had to stop.

They were all dressed in white Gandhi windingsheets and were half running, half walking, renewing themselves up in a kind of epileptic ecstasy.

As they leaped along the hot street they waved banners and shouted slogans in time with a sunspectacled cheer leader.

What they wanted was simple and straightforward: "Revenge for our murdered brethren." They shouted, "We want war."

India's leader, Pandit Nehru, had arrived in town that morning, and these lads were on their way to salute him when he drove in triumph through the streets. When we met them they were just getting themselves into the right mood.

The war they want is against Pakistan. The murdered brethren are Bengalis, killed by Moslems in Pakistan—in revenge for Moslems killed in India. Pandit Nehru himself is anxious for some "frontier rectifications."

To my eye—experienced in the technique of "spontaneous demonstrations" as practised by Goebbels and

I saw the cheer leader whip up fury

CONTINUING the notebooks of an expert eye on a flying tour across the world

because we had to return to Calcutta to fix a faulty radio, he declared in the best statistical manner style, "Sister to be careful than sorry."

My fellow travellers were all Indians—many of them women in veils and sarees. Their golden ankles made a pretty tinkling noise as they tripped across the tarmac to the aircraft.

The Indian Customs gave them an extremely careful going-over. Every item of jewellery or women were taken with them to be checked against lists, made out in advance and sanctioned by the Currency Control.

The odd thing was that the officials, all of them Indians, conducted all their business in English. It sounded most intriguing: "One nose ring gold and pearl..."

But, madam, this nose ring has diamonds not pearl. Please show me nose ring gold with pearl..."

Let us face it: there is nothing like supplying idealists with a little material incentive.

Nose Ring Check

The Indian pilot of the Indian National Airways plane which flew me from Calcutta to Rangoon were a huge R.A.F. mustache. And he spoke R.A.F. English. When I showed impatience

Meat Famine?

PRICE fixing and Government to Government bulk buying is likely to lead to a famine in Australian lamb in Britain.

For, while ex-Food Minister Strachey fixed the price of Australian mutton with his Australian Socialist colleague, they did not fix the price of wool.

Wool has been shooting up to unheard of prices. The result is that Australian sheep farmers are almost all changing over to breeding sheep for wool rather than meat.

The effects of this, I am told, will make themselves felt soon.

Double Dose

IF you suffer from hay fever, as I do, do not fly across the world, as I did. For I have only succeeded in ensuring that I shall get hay fever twice—once in the Australian summer and again later in the British summer.

Having found it Wicksteed was tempted to put it in his pocket and saying nothing about it.

But first of all he glanced round to see if the guards had noticed his discovery and seeing they had, he hastily dropped it in a cigarette tin provided for the purpose.

If Wicksteed had been a professional native picker-up of diamonds he would have been paid a bonus of one penny for his find, but, being only a visiting newspaperman, he got nothing except a piercing look from the security police.

Explosions

THERE are lots of stories about how he found the richest diamond mine in the world. One is that his dog dug up the first diamond under a baobab tree. Another is that he felt something hurting in his shoe and when he took it off found what should he find but a clam.

The truth is that he discovered the diamond pipe by hard work and good geology. He didn't stumble on it. He located it after camping years in the bush, sifting the gravel by hand.

He never had enough money. People thought he was mad. But still he worked on with the crudest equipment and a few faithful African "boys." After quietly working out the exact dimensions of the pipe he staked his claim and came into town with his first bag of diamonds.

They were worth only a few hundred pounds and when he tried to raise money for better equipment the bank managers merely laughed at him.

So back to the bush he went, and next time he came to town he had £30,000 worth of diamonds in a barley-sugar bottle. That made the banks change their tune, but now it was Williamson's turn to laugh.

He said they could keep their money, and he sold the same thing to the big diamond people in South Africa who offered him £2,000,000 cash for his claim.

So here he is now, 42 years old, unmarried, unworked, with a Ronald Colman moustache, and the sole rights to a diamond mine that produced £1,700,000 worth of stones in 1949 and the Wicksteed Diamond in 1950.

Jolly fine mine

SOME men like one thing and some another, but Dr Williamson likes his diamond mine and I, for one, don't blame him. It's a jolly fine diamond mine, and I wish I had it myself.

Then I'd do just what he does. I'd give all my staff lovely bangles. I'd throw wonderful parties for them with a band brought from Kenya by air. I'd build the finest hospital in Tanganyika and if the entrance to the entrance to the mine didn't recognise me I'd bash down the gates with my car.

There are diamonds everywhere, and they all belong to the little ex-dom who cocked his snook at the world.

You walk over diamonds, drive over them, sleep on them, and everyone on the mine is mad in gardening because... well, you never know.

You mustn't imagine from this that you can just walk around filling up your pockets.

Getting needles out of haystacks is easy. You just use a magnet. But each diamond—about one to every ton of gravel—has to be spotted by eye and picked out by hand as the Wicksteed Diamond was.

Bottled jewels

EVERY day 1,500 tons of gravel is washed and sifted, and an average yield is about half a cigarette tin of diamonds, numbering about 1,500, weighing 2½ ounces and worth £4,000.

At the end of the day they are all taken up to Williamson's house where he puts them into jars and sweet bottles. For Wicksteed's benefit he emptied out one of these bottles on the desk in his study.

Then he went out to fetch a drink, and Wicksteed was left alone in a room with a pile of diamonds worth £10,000. They spilled over the edges of the blotting pad, rolled under the ink stand, and rattled among the papers—diamonds, diamonds, diamonds.

What would you do, chum?

—London Express Service

The WICKSTEED DIAMOND

By BERNARD WICKSTEED

SHINYANGA, Tanganyika. I'VE found a diamond. I have to admit, that from a jeweller's point of view it is not in the same class as the Hope Diamond, the Cullinan, or the Koh-i-noor.

In fact, it is only about the size of a split pea and in its present uncut state is worth no more than a mere £10.

But it is a real diamond, even if it's a rough one, and some day, somewhere I hope a woman will wear it in a ring on her finger and be mighty proud of it.

Inferior diamond pipes were found in South Africa and elsewhere, but the daddy of them all, I mean, is the Wicks Diamond mine that produced £1,700,000 worth of stones in 1949 and the Wicksteed Diamond in 1950.

Neither the pipe nor the Wicks Diamond that enriched it might have ever been found if it hadn't been for a Canadian geology lecturer from MacGill.

His name was Dr John Thurn Williamson, B.A., M.Sc., Ph.D., and just when he was getting along fine at the university and looked like being a professor some day, he chuckecked up his academic career and went looking for diamonds in Africa.

Hard work

THERE are lots of stories about how he found the richest diamond mine in the world. One is that his dog dug up the first diamond under a baobab tree. Another is that he felt something hurting in his shoe and when he took it off what should he find but a clam.

The truth is that he discovered the diamond pipe by hard work and good geology. He didn't stumble on it. He located it after camping years in the bush, sifting the gravel by hand.

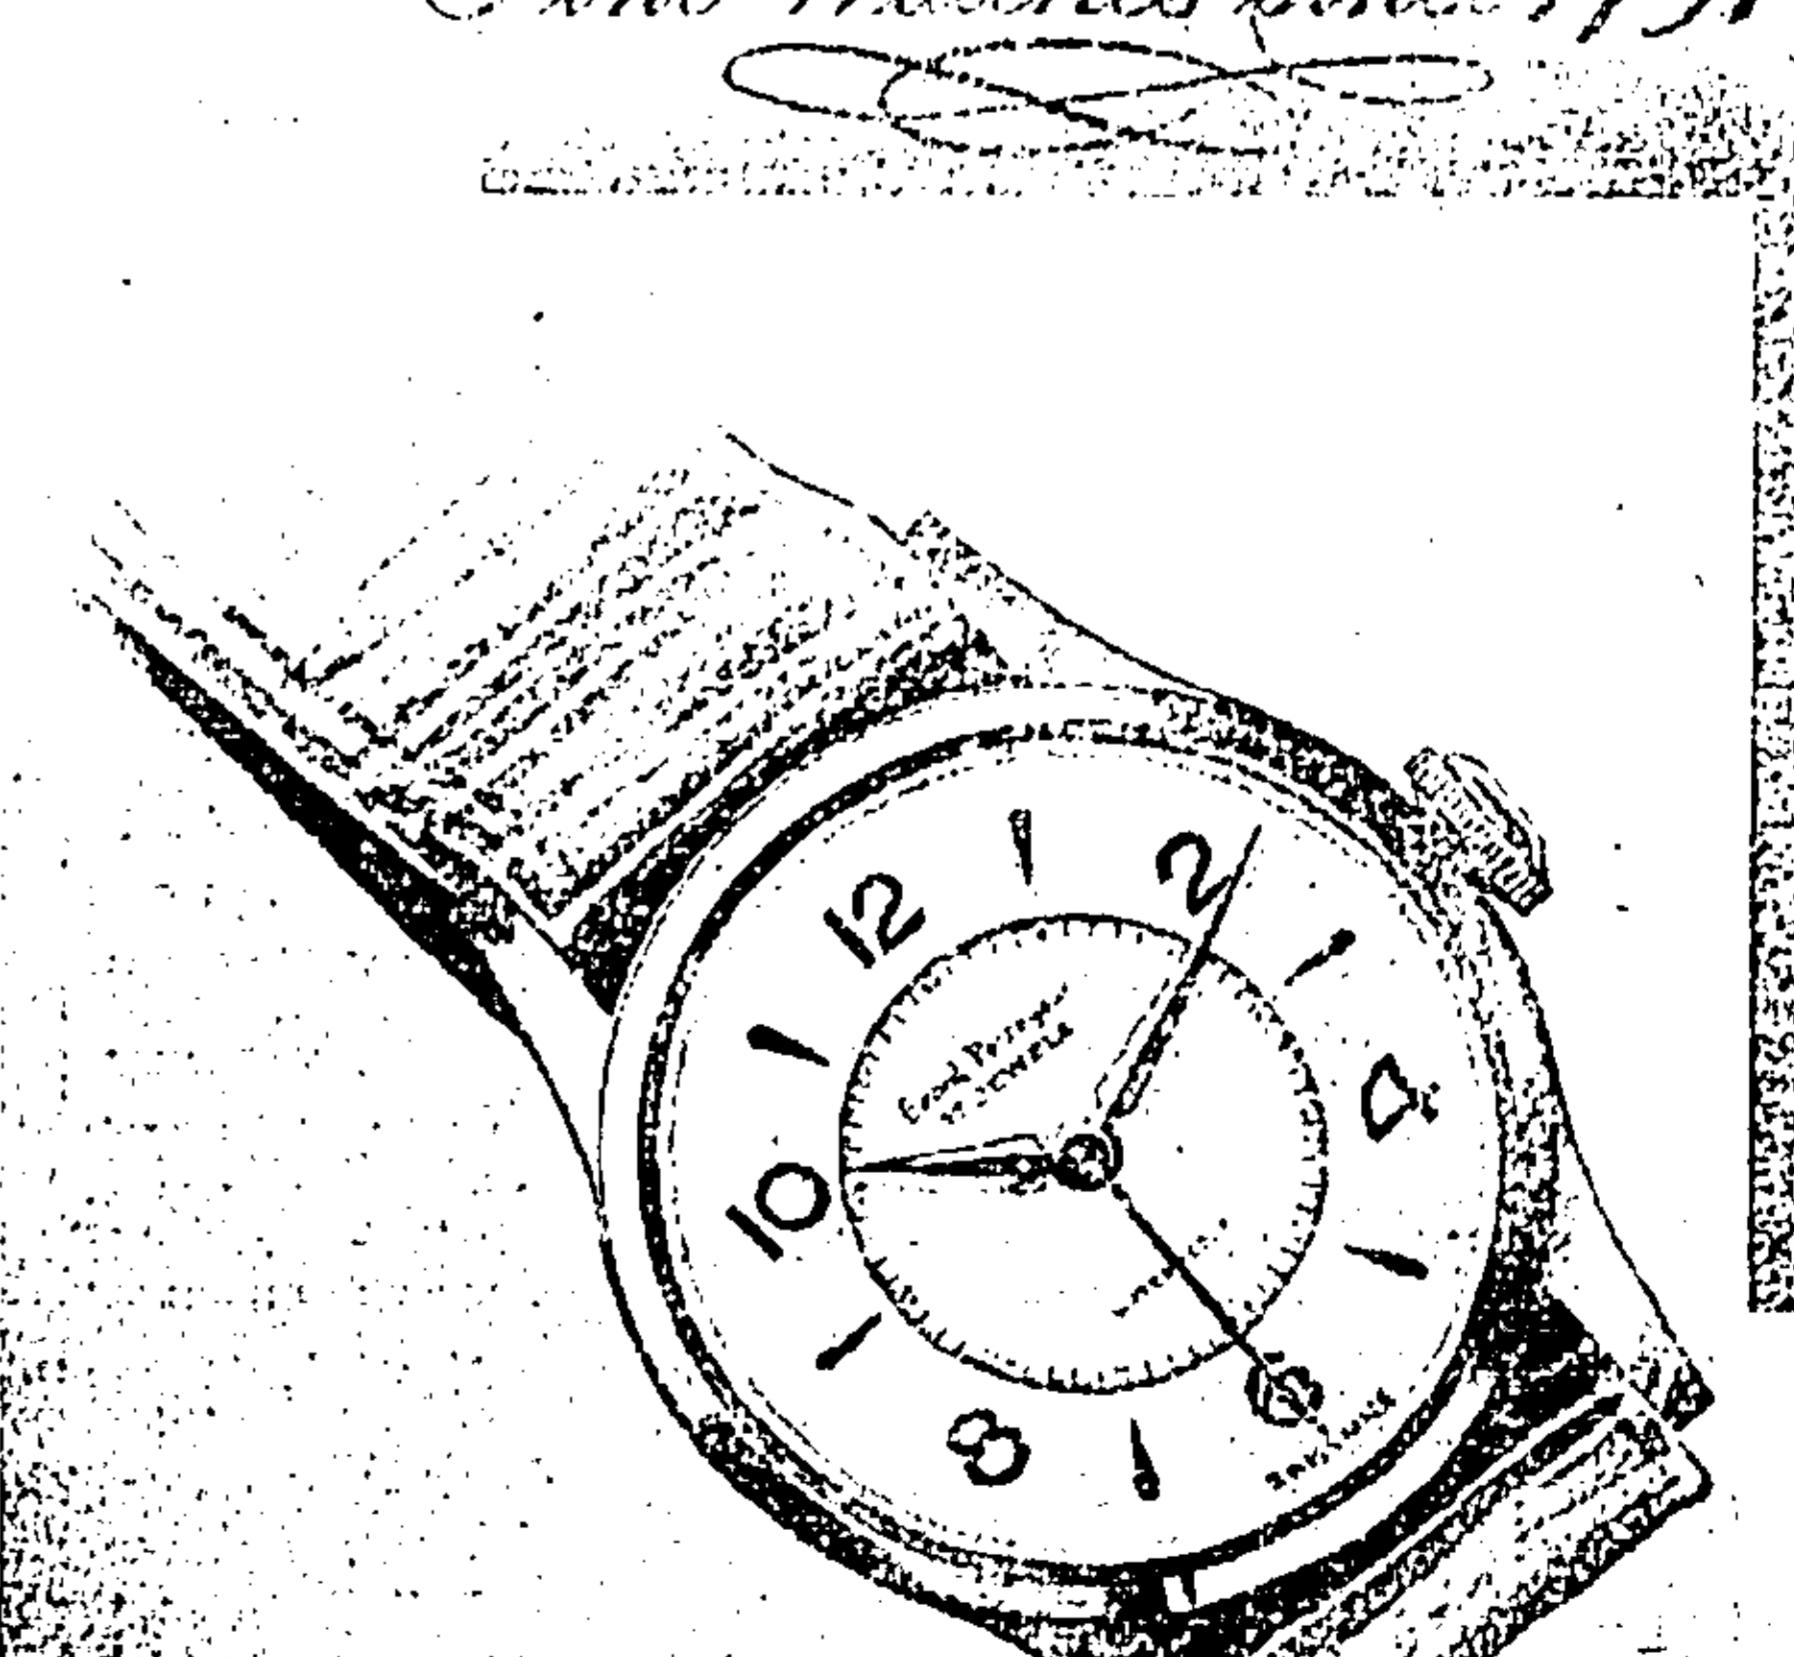

He never had enough money. People thought he was mad. But still he worked on with the crudest equipment and a few faithful African "boys." After quietly working out the exact dimensions of the pipe he staked his claim and came into town with his first bag of diamonds.

They were worth only a few hundred pounds and when he tried to raise money for better equipment the bank managers merely laughed at him.

So back to the bush he went, and next time he came to town he had £30,000 worth of diamonds in a barley-sugar bottle. That made the banks change

GIRARD PERREGAUX

Fine Watches since 1791

GIRARD
GP
PERREGAUX
SWISS

Suppose there is a three-cornered election with a Socialist, a Conservative, and a Liberal candidate.

The voter puts a one, two, and three against the candidate's name for his first, second, and third choice. Thus a Socialist would probably put Socialist 1, Liberal 2, Conservative 3.

If, when the first preferences are counted there is no majority for any one candidate, they knock out the candidate with the lowest first preference vote, count up the second preferences of his supporters and add them to the votes of the first two candidates.

In a three-cornered election this would be certain to produce an overall majority, and a much fairer one than the majority won by our British "first" past the post" system.

He Trusted...

First thing I find on returning to England is a letter from Erwin Muller, of Dortmund, Germany. Remember Erwin?

He was the German dismantler who, relying on the protection of British General Bishop and the British Military Government, took his men last July to dismantle a paraffin works in Dortmund belonging to the Hoechst concern. He was beaten up by an organised mob.

Ringleaders of the mob, who later appeared before a British Military Government Tribunal, were sentenced to almost nominal terms of imprisonment. Erwin's fate is just what I expected it to be.

"... I am being boycotted by all German authorities. I have been forced to dismiss most of my workmen. I shall be forced to give notice to the rest of my workers any day now. I don't know what to do after that."

That is what comes of relying on British protection in Germany.

—London Express Service.

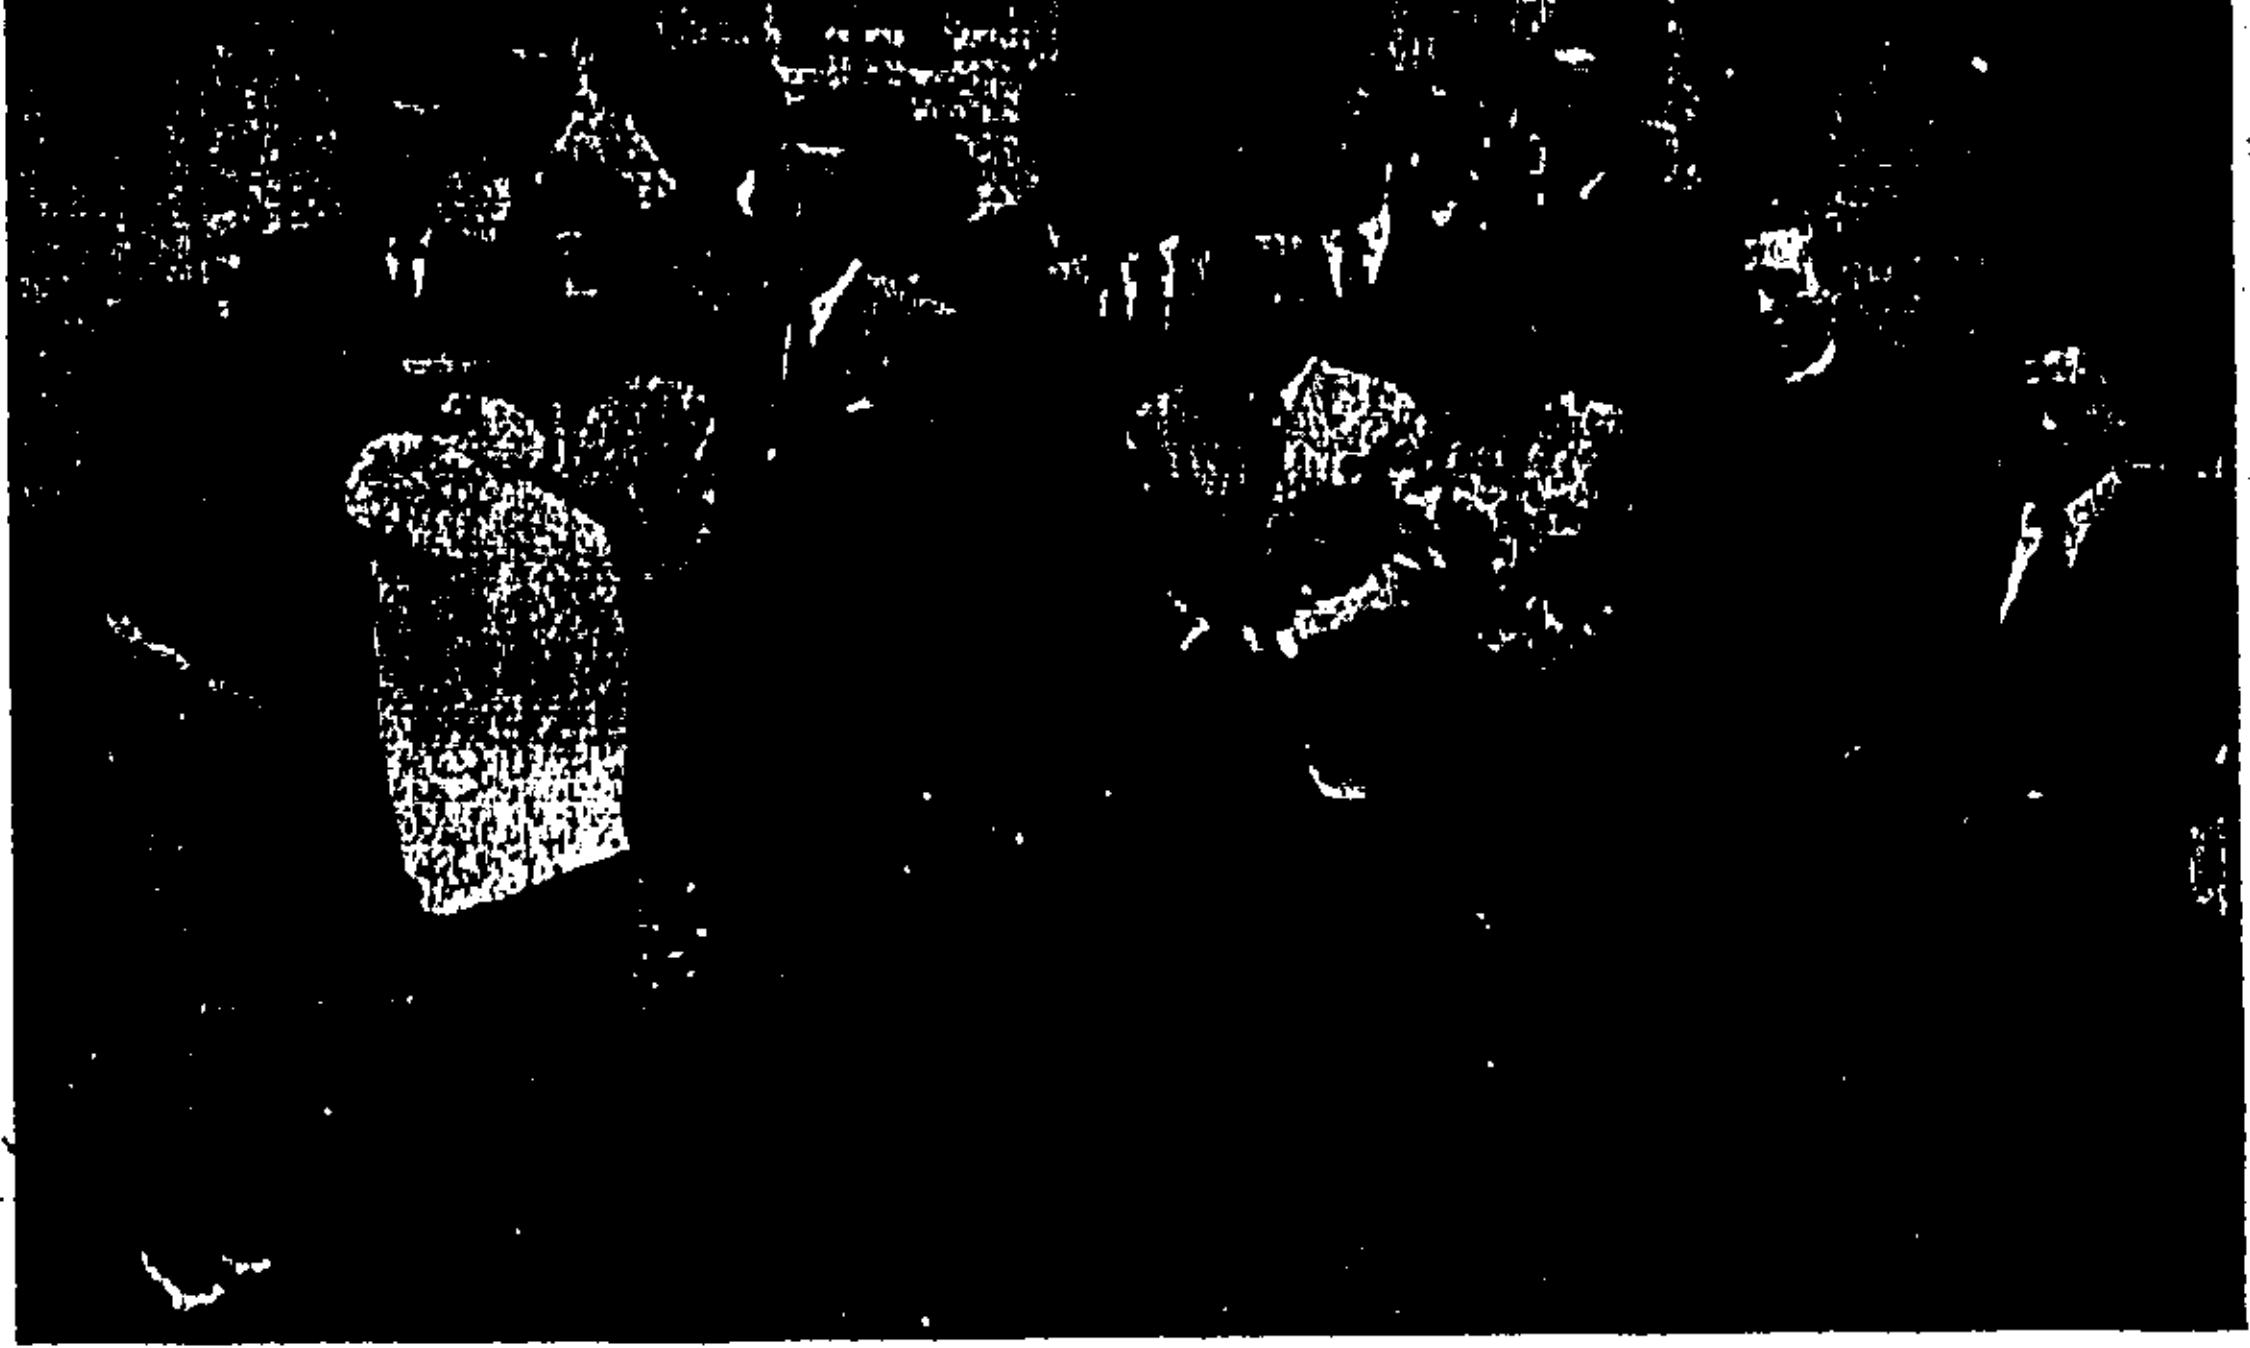

AT the annual Boat Raco dinner of the Oxford and Cambridge Society. Upper picture: His Excellency the Governor, Sir Alexander Grantham, with the Hon. D. F. Landalo. Lower picture: The Hon. Leo D'Almada, KC, with the Acting Colonial Secretary, the Hon. R. R. Todd. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

A wedding of much interest to military circles was that between Sergeant R. A. Cowley, of the 3rd Commando Brigade, and Miss Agnes Wylie, of the Women's Royal Army Corps, which took place last Saturday at St Andrew's Church. Here are two pictures taken at the Church and at the reception held later at the Sergeants' Mess, Whitfield Barracks. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

PICTURE taken at St John's Cathedral last Sunday on the occasion of the christening of Caroline, daughter of Mr and Mrs R. H. Sutton. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Timothy Koh-ming Liu and his bride, formerly Miss Vivien Yin-man Au. They were married recently at St John's Cathedral. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

RARE Chinese banknotes dating back one thousand years to the Sung Dynasty were on view earlier this week at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce. One interesting specimen was a cloth note issued by the Chinese Communists during their famous "Long March" to Yenan in 1934. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

GOING to the wicket to open the Scorpions' innings last Saturday at Chater Road are L. F. Stokes (left) and O. J. Kerr. Stokes made 118, highest score this season. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

Be Kind to your Radio

Let GILMAN'S
service it regularly!

Gilman's Radio Dept. makes sick radios better again—quickly, with experts who know the insides of all radios at a glance. Call 27017 for real Radio Service!

GILMAN & COMPANY LTD.
Gloucester Arcade
RADIO DEPT., Tel. 27017

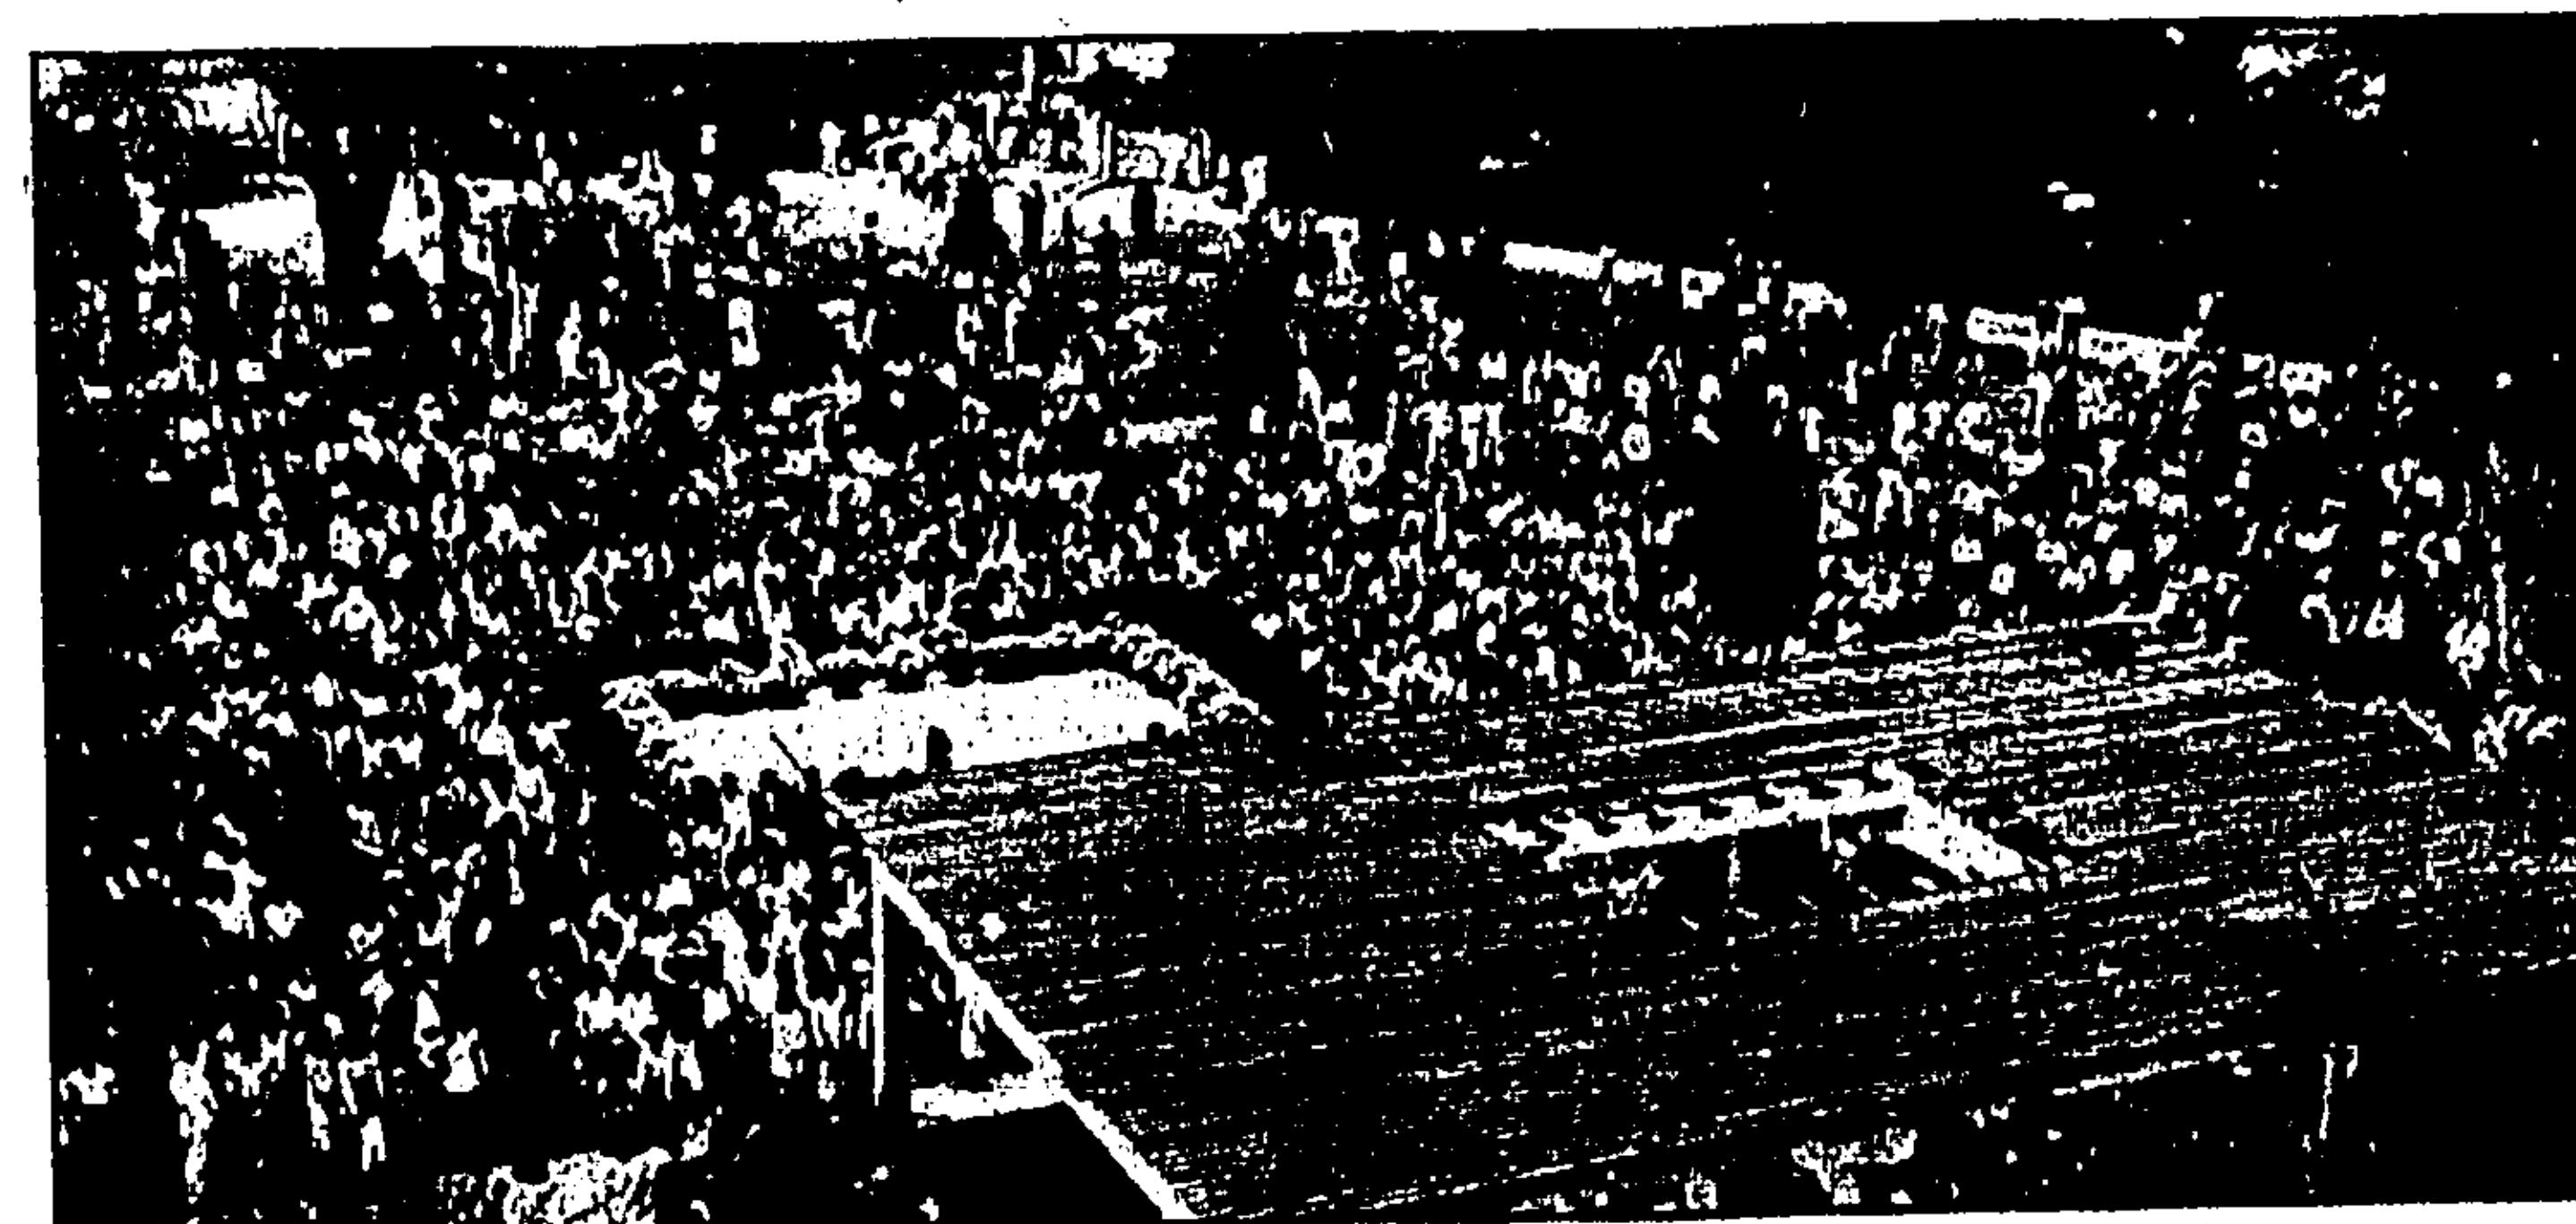

Evening Dresses

made up in exclusive cottons
by

Ascher

only at

Paquerette Ltd.
Gloucester Bldg. Des. Venues Rd.

AN idea of the very large crowds which are attracted to the fortnightly afternoon band concerts at the Botanical Gardens may be drawn from this picture taken last Sunday, when the Band of the King's Own Scottish Borderers played. Highland dances were also given by KOSB dancers. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

WEEK-END WOMANSENSE

K'shoes

Our recent shipment of these famous British shoes includes two styles specially suitable for summer wear. The more dressy one is lightly built and has perforated suede forepart and leather soles; the other is more of a sports shoe with crepe rubber soles and interlaced calf uppers.

Both are on show in the window, whilst inside our bright modern store you will find a full range of "K" shoes for everyday use.

MACKINTOSHES

13, CHATER ROAD

(Between Montrose and Kelly & Walsh)

BEAUTY ARMED

By HELEN FOLLETT

SLEEVELESS frocks are not for those whose arms are too fat or too thin. More than unsightly are the over-developed flabby upper arms of the older woman who has not minded her eating habits and has taken on weight. Sharp elbows, also are no beauty bargain. The plump woman can get down to normal weight if she will make the effort. Miss Skinny, if in good health, can put on curves by eating hot cereals for breakfast, drinking a quart of rich milk a day, cutting down on activities, getting to bed at a respectable hour.

Arms seldom get beauty attention and they are subject to good-looks defects, the same as the complexion, the hands and the figure. Goose flesh is one affliction; to overcome use a heavy brush when bathing, dry well, apply a semi-liquid hand lotion that will prove soothing.

Reducing Arms

Elbows that are a dingy wear can spoil the picture of the wearer of the formal. They, too, need the stimulating effect of a strong-bristled bath brush, after which the arm binges should be massaged with toilet lanoline or cocoa-butter. A simple bleach made by combining equal parts of peroxide and strained lemon juice should be applied twice a week, allowed to dry on.

Too stout arms can be reduced by means of exercise. Swinging Indian clubs is one way to turn the trick. This practice not only brings the arms to normal, but the lifting of the arms has a favourable effect upon an over-developed bust.

Tapestry curtains and upholstery also brighten up considerably with a little salt and water. Brush well, lay fabric flat, and over it lay a damp sheet, then beat with a cane.

Go over the material first with a duster well wrung out in cold, salt water. Then with a duster wrung out in warm, salt water. Then with a duster wrung out in warm, salt water.

Spring hats are gay—and made in straw

A NEW hat is one of the symbols of spring, along with the lambs, the daffodils . . . and the cleaning.

London Shops are gay with bright spring hats. They run the gamut of shapes and colours . . . and there are prices to suit all purses.

Straw is top favourite—French millinery, English cloches—and even the American "New Yorker" is made in straw.

The cartwheel hat is never really out of fashion for garden parties and social functions.

You can now buy the new fashion low-heeled court shoes in white and other colours.

I think this is where fashion writers admit they were wrong when they foresaw the end of the peep-toe sling-back shoe.

Ignoring all reports, manufacturers went on making them and the shops sold so many as they could get.

Salt for carpets

THE housewife's headache—spring-cleaning time—is here. Beating removes the dust from carpets, but does not get rid of the grime. Damp tea-leaves—which many women use for carpet cleaning, absorb the dust, but do not cleanse.

Salt is a better cleaner than tea-leaves, and it also refreshes the colours. When you sweep your carpet dip the brush first in warm salt water.

Makers of Persian carpets often use potato water to bring up the colours. Scrape raw potatoe very fine. Pour hot water over them, let it stand—strain, and wash the carpet, a small piece at a time, with the water. Don't make it too wet.

Tapestry curtains and upholstery also brighten up considerably with a little salt and water. Brush well, lay fabric flat, and over it lay a damp sheet, then beat with a cane.

Go over the material first with a duster well wrung out in cold, salt water. Then with a duster wrung out in warm, salt water.

Above: Black cartwheel straw showing the return of the crinoline cage.

Left: The American "apple hat" in navy blue and pink straw.

Below: White straw Dutch bow net with leather plumes.

I have seen some ordinary garden vegetable baskets with bright painted bases. The smaller size looks attractive. Another idea is to plant an ordinary garden wheelbarrow white, fill it with mould and grow geraniums in it. It looks attractive standing in a large hall and, in the summer, in a big open fireplace.

From New York I hear that men's pyjamas are being made with short sleeves and long legs—short sleeves and short legs—a man can buy the bottoms only—or tops only.

For children

DO you think that children should be free to read what they like? I do, provided they are offered a well-prepared choice.

I have just seen an excellent little volume called "Four to Fourteen," which gives particulars of 1,200 books suitable for children between those ages, compiled by Kathleen Lines, under such headings as Nursery Rhymes, Fairy Tales, Famous People, History, Science, Things to Do, Poetry Books, Art, Music, Natural History, etc.

FOR CHILDREN

DO you think that children should be free to read what they like? I do, provided they are offered a well-prepared choice.

Similar black stair carpet, with a floral pattern, is also in the shops. Black patterned curtains and carpets are most effective if you have off-white walls and paintwork.

Plants are being used again for home decoration as well as cut flowers—and they last much longer. Be original in your choice of containers.

—London Express Service.

Duster Check Tweed

FREDERICK STARKE, wholesale designer, here illustrates a typical London line. The jacket-dress with bloused top in black and pink duster check crepe tweed has a tight-fitting skirt in black.

A NECKTIE FOR YOU, MADAME!

By Elizabeth Toomey

NEW YORK. If a sleepy-eyed husband shows up at the office this spring wearing a gold necktie sprinkled with plush violets, he must have reached for the wrong tie rack.

With all the female adaptions of male neckties on scarf counters, his wife can have a tie rack of her own this spring. One scarf, designed by Irma Kligere, is a four-in-hand of gold faille with a spray of plush caught diagonally across the front.

"They have to look strictly feminine, even though they're tied like a man's necktie," Miss Kligere explained.

She designed a white pique tie, sprinkled with rhinestones, to wear with a suit or a high, round-necked dress. Actually the tiny knot is made just long enough to tie in a knot at the throat. But the rounded ends, sprinkled with rhinestones, are cut to resemble a bow tie.

MAN'S SHIRT

Another white pique necktie—to be tied in a four-in-hand—has a cuffed end and a design of rhinestones.

Lifting ideas from male wardrobes is getting to be a habit with women. Men's shirts have been the inspiration for many spring styles. The collar is usually softened and modified, and the sleeves are cut slightly fuller than a man's but the shirts are still easily recognizable as a copy of hubby's.

The "little" boy look has been copied for younger figures. Round white pique collars on straight-cut jackets and flowing ties at the neck are favourites with such sophisticated designers as Christian Dior.

A tailor and shiremaker in New York, in London and Paris, succumbed to the trend and introduced a summer suiting fabric in women's suits "suited up to now to the summer wardrobes of men." Called Poplair, the fabric is a lustrous weave of Turkish mohair and wool.

HIS & HERS

Even accessory designers are making the most of the obvious feminine interest in men's apparel.

"His" and "hers" sets of cigarette lighters and compacts are being made. In one set, a pocket cigarette lighter is put on the end of man's key chain. A matching cigarette lighter with jewelled decorations is hung on a bracelet chain for a woman to wear on her wrist.

Strictly male designs, including a bird dog's head and a fishing fly, are done on the enamelled side of another pocket lighter. The same designs were put on tiny, round compact cases for women.

"Women are very willing to pick up ideas from male designers," a spokesman for a shirt company said. "But try it the other way around and it won't work. Men just won't change their ideas. They'll never copy the comfortable collars and cool materials worn by women."

FORWARD AND BACKWORD

By VERA WINSTON

A DOUBLE row of black buttons parades down the back of this dress to give a fashionable and important accent to a forward-looking frock. The fabric is royal blue crepe and there is a black bow at the front of the high neck. The buttons start at the flared pointed collar and continue down either side of the inserted, pleated fullness at the centre of the skirt. The pockets at the hips are flapped, making for a rounded hipline. The sleeves are winged and cuffed.

Add A Lock To Your Watch

A HUNDRED percent safety device is the claim of a London firm for a Vanguard lock which is attached to watch straps. The lock is constructed in such a way that there is no risk that the watch-strap will open or drop, thus preventing loss or breakage. Furthermore, the lock is adjustable so that it can be fixed to any leather or metal strap and can fit any size of wrist.

For women, this firm has also produced an adjustable interlock for watch-straps in 16 gauge metal, either brass or copper, in gilt or chrome finish. It has either pinch-on or loop-end fittings.

Another of the firm's products is a flexible ladies' watch-strap made in hexagon squares, in gilt and chrome. A similar pattern is available in bracelets, bracelets and ear-rings. For men, the firm manufactures an expanding bracelet made in rolled gold, stainless steel, gilt or chrome. This is designed in a "scissors" pattern.

A hand riveted bracelet with a thirty-second adjustment and an original compact perfume sprayer in the shape of a lighter or lipstick, are among the other products to be shown by this firm in the Jewellery Section at Olympia, of the British Industries Fair in May.

DINNER DANCE

UNDER THE DISTINGUISHED PATRONAGE OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR AND LADY GRANTHAM, AND ORGANISED BY THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY OF

The Hong Kong Society for the Protection of Children, AT THE

SKY ROOM LUNA PARK

FRIDAY, APRIL 28

At 8 p.m. To 1 a.m.

NOVEL FLOOR SHOW

Tickets $25 (including Dinner) On Sale Each Day in The Hongkong Hotel Lobby, Between The Hours Of 11.30 A.M. — 1.30 P.M.

Book Your Table From The Floor Plan Which Will Be Available During These Hours.

TAI HANG JEWELLERY

Wholesalers of CUT-DIAMONDS

and

Sole Agents for

Liberty Diamond Cutting Works (Pty) Ltd.

Johannesburg, South Africa.

Telephone 21380.

PRACTICAL HOMECRAFT

HAVE THAT LUXURY TOUCH

By Alice Denhoff

YOU can't bypass meat very often when there are hard-working men to be fed. So, best thing, is to be a careful buyer and a good cook, giving the thrifty cuts the same pampering and loving care that is bestowed on luxury cuts. Lamb shanks in a good recipe, can be something quite special, as you'll see if you try this one. Fanchonette of Lamb: for 6, takes 3 lamb shanks. Boil them with 3 cloves, 1/2 tsp. celery seed, 1 bay leaf, 1/2 tsp. ground thyme and 1/4 tsp. ground angelica meat. Is tender, remove it from the shank bones, and cut in cubes. Line individual moulds with seasoned mashed potatoes. Fill with the lamb shank meat, one c. small kidney beans, one c. coarsely chopped, cooked cabbage and one c. cooked carrots. Mashed with the lamb stock. Top with mashed potatoes, using 1 c. mashed potatoes in all. Brush over with beaten egg or milk, and brown in 425 F. oven.

Something Special

For something special, serve curry of chicken, real party fare. Clean, skin and cut up a 1/2 to 2 lb. chicken. Place in a saucepan and cover with hot water. Add 4 black peppercorns, 2 whole cloves, one bay leaf, to taste and one chili pepper from mixed pickle spice. Simmer until chicken is tender. Saute 2 sliced onions in fat, then skin out and brown the chicken. Sprinkle with 1/2 curry powder, add the chicken liquor; stew for 3 min. Make a paste of 3 tbsp. flour with 3 tbsp. water; add, stir until thickened. Add a beaten egg yolk. Serve with a border of hot rice.

Emergency Job

A casserole of sausage and baked beans is a good emergency job that is hearty and satisfying. Mix thoroughly one can each baked beans and tomato soup; pour into casserole. Dot 10 whole cloves through the mixture; lay 1 lb. pork sausages on top, and bake in hot oven until sausages are done. The entire process can be speeded further by warming the beans and soup mixture on top of the stove, and parboiling the sausages before putting all the ingredients into the casserole for 10 min. of baking.

Professional Look In Home-made Clothes

By ELEANOR ROSS

A BUSY woman physician of our acquaintance has taken up home dressmaking as a hobby. She says that it saves her much shopping time, and that the complete change from her work nets as a mental tonic.

As with everything she does, the job is handled in a thoroughly scientific manner, and her home-made garments have a professional or custom-made look about them. One secret is that as she works, she has a steam iron and an ironing board right beside her sewing machine, and she uses the iron as she goes along. She claims it is a big time saver, too.

Crosswise Thread

Fabric is straightened before pinning pattern and the end cut on one crosswise thread. Fabric is smoothed with steam iron to soften, then gently pulled on the bias until threads are adjusted and fabric straightened. Put straightened end and selvage together, clipping any selvages together, clipping any selvages together, clipping any selvages together.

An idea for your walls came from a firm of map specialists. Genuine 17th and 18th century county maps, beautifully illuminated, are made into pictures for your walls. Any county in which you are particularly interested can be framed for you.

MODERN LAUNDRY

The modern laundry had the largest audience. One machine finished collars so that not only the top edge is smoothed for the wearer's comfort, but space was provided for the tie to slide around between the folds. The greatest improvement was in the marking system. An invisible identification sign can show in an instant when the garment is passed before a small cabinet which emits an ultra violet ray.

ELECTRIC CHEF

On the more practical side of life there was the ELECTRIC CHEF, which heats, whisks, kneads, mixes, minces, mashes, extracts juice, and grates and grinds food of all type. There was no information available as to whether it washed up afterwards.

PLINTH LIGHT

PLINTH LIGHT was a circular floor lighting plate upon which you can stand a glass aquarium, flower-bowl or other decoration to give a soft radiance to a table.

Last A Lifetime

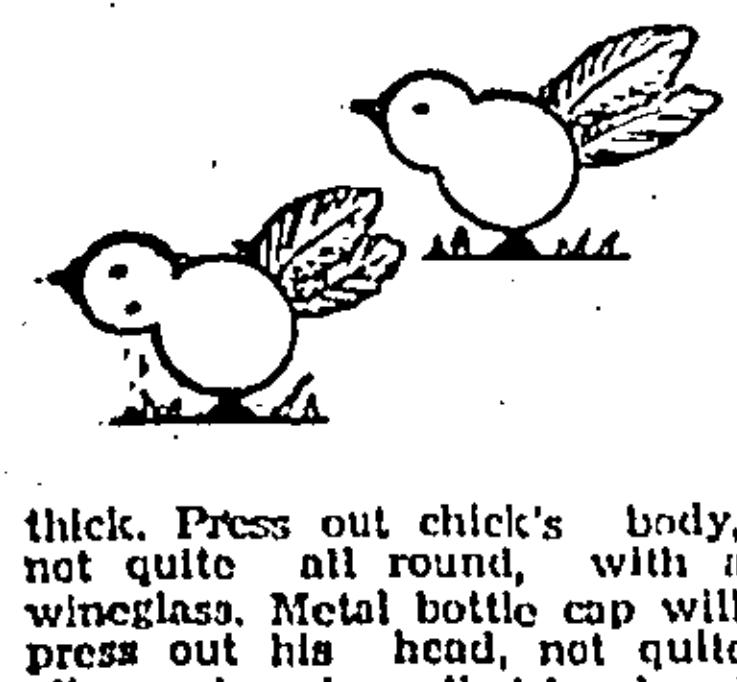

Upon examination, children of one school were found to have defective molars. Because these teeth come early, parents seemed to think them unimportant. These teeth are important. They should last a lifetime. When one considers the fact that each lost tooth lowers the child's health potential, such neglect is serious indeed.

The teeth of children who have speech difficulties should be examined to learn if they are causing the difficulty or if

Easter chicks

Marzipan chicks make easy decorations for an Easter cake. You will need 2oz. sugar 2oz. soya flour, 1oz. margarine, two tablespooms boiling water and half a tablespoom of almond essence.

Melt the margarine in boiling water, add almond essence and mix in soya flour and half the sugar. Turn on to a board and knead in the rest of the sugar. Roll out paste to about 1/4 in.

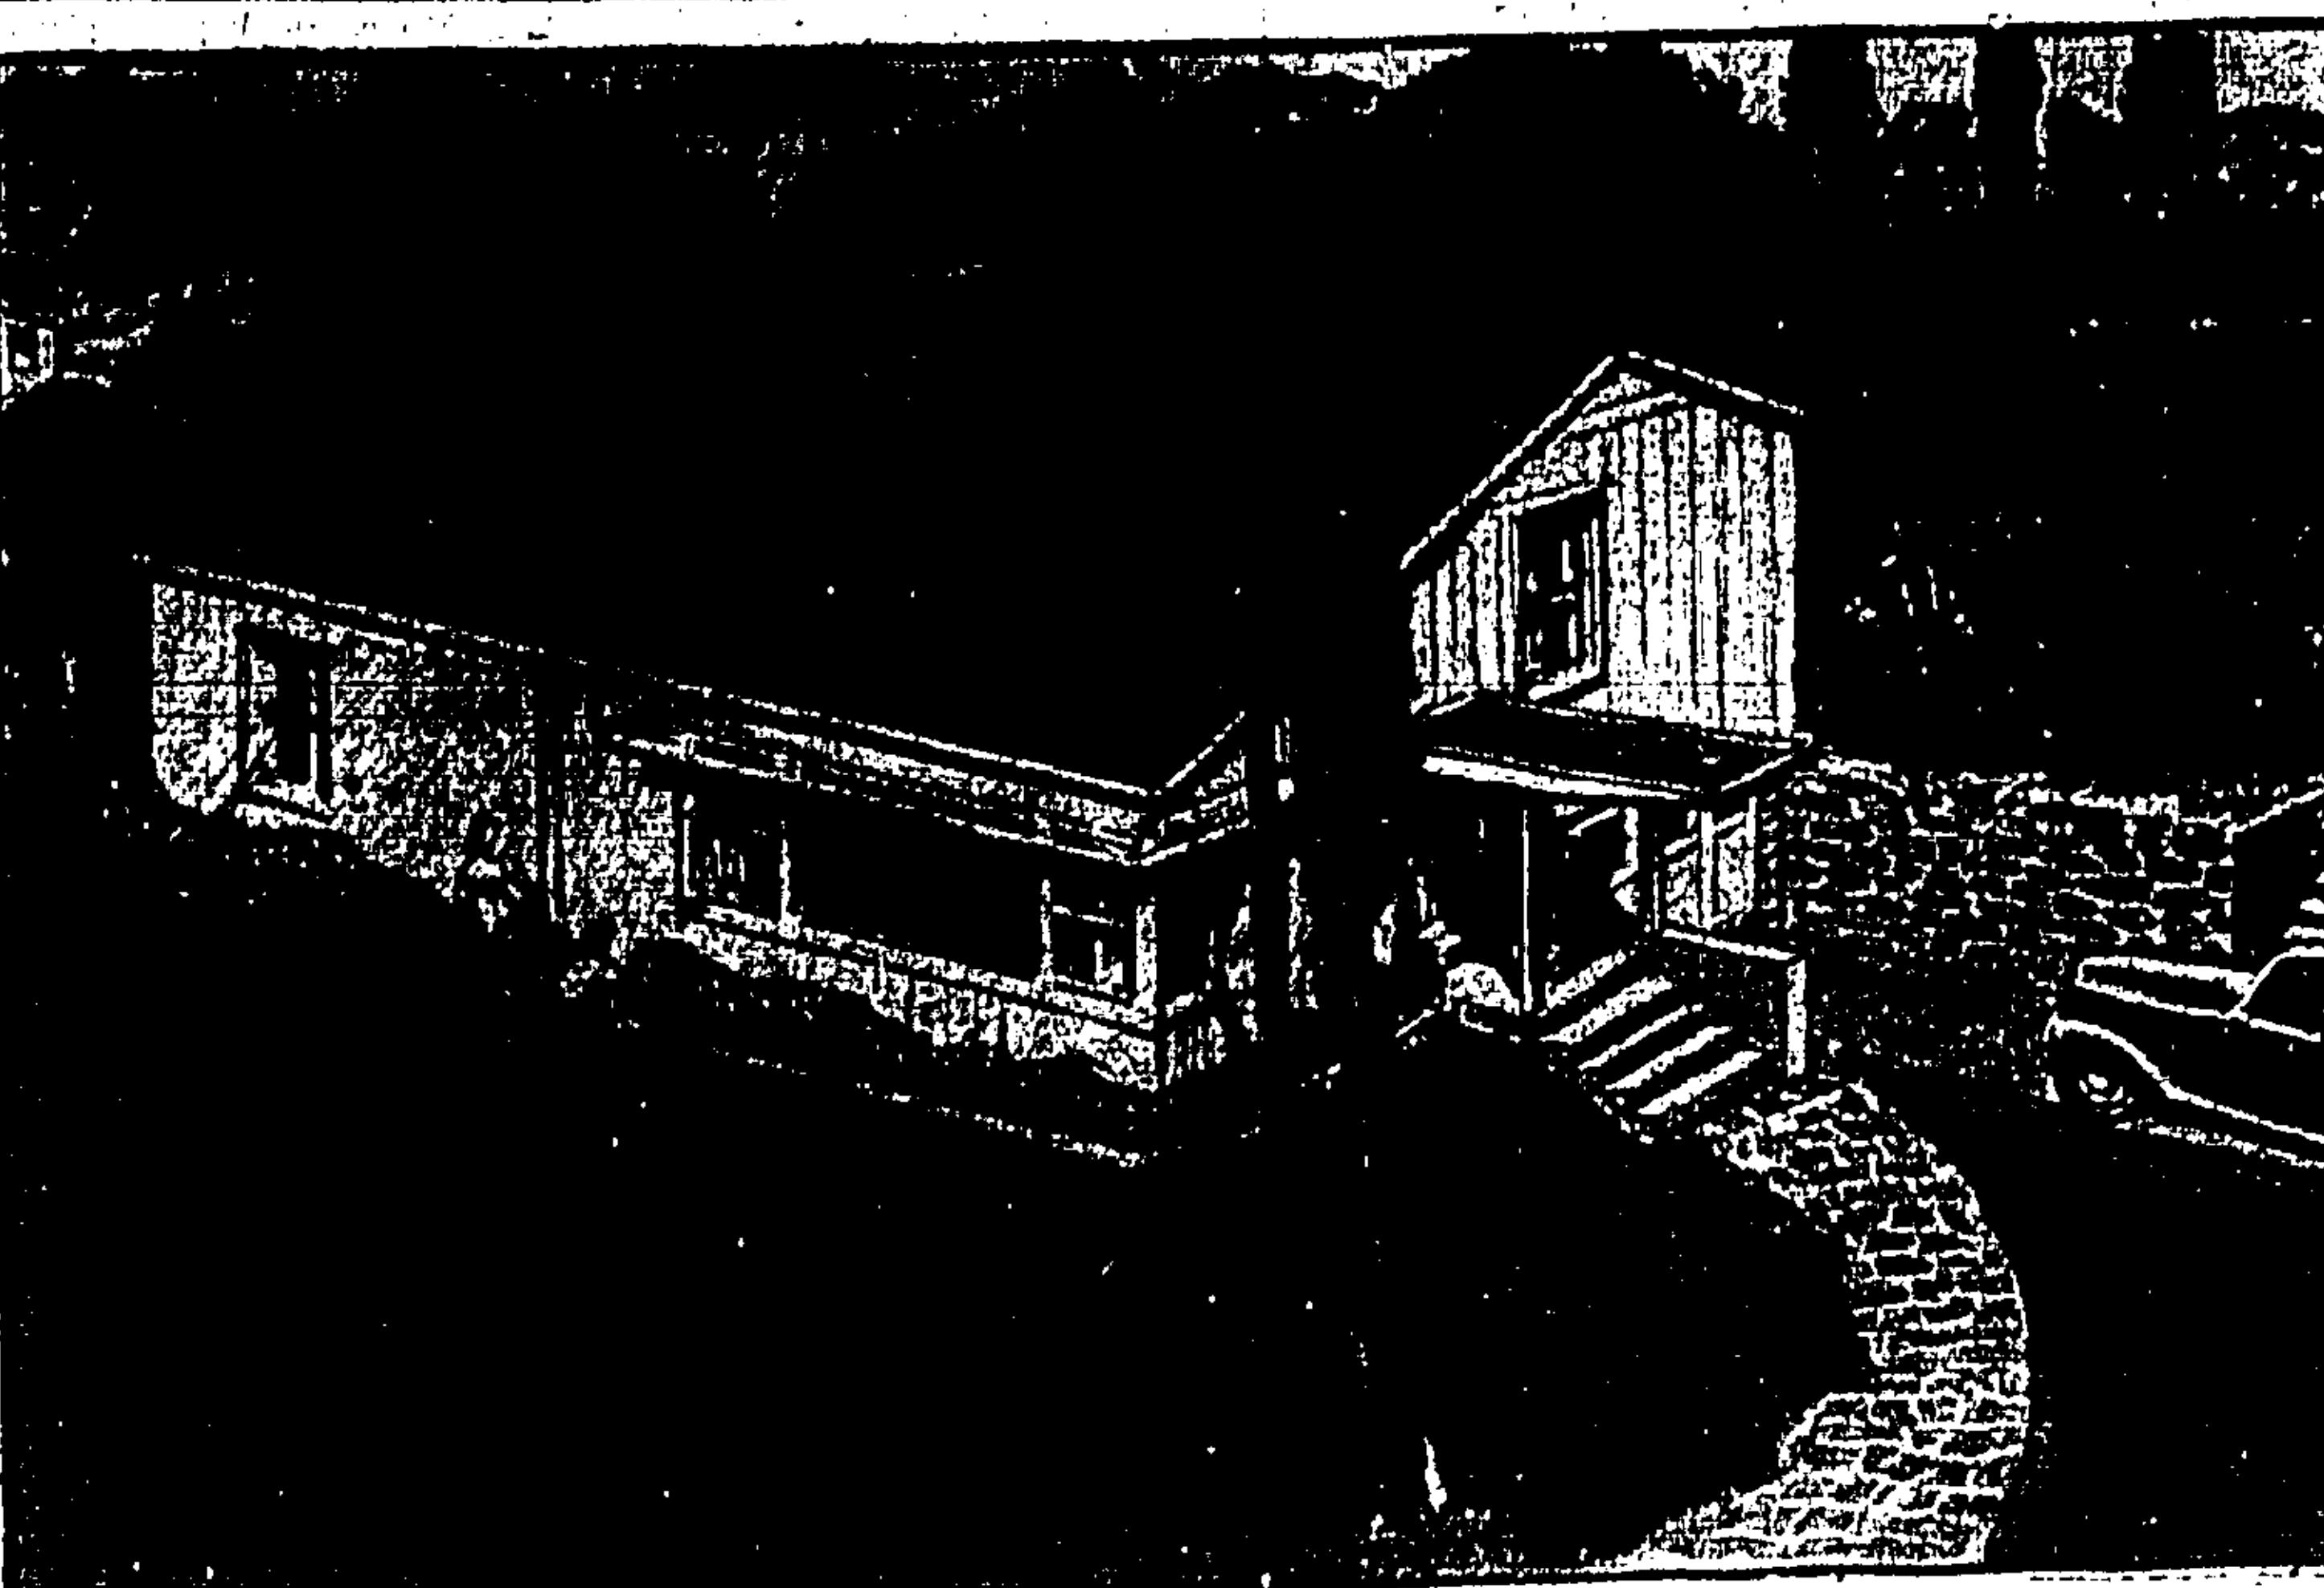

thick. Press out chick's body, not quite all round, with a wineglass. Metal bottle cap will press out his head, not quite all round again so that head and body are in one piece.

Give the chick a currant for his eye, a triangular piece of orange or lemon peel for his legs, with a small piece for the beak.

Trim down two or three colored feathers (pipe cleaners) will do for his tail. Make a row of chicks across your cake and add thin strips of greens for grass blades.

MUCH COMFORT IN SMALL SPACE

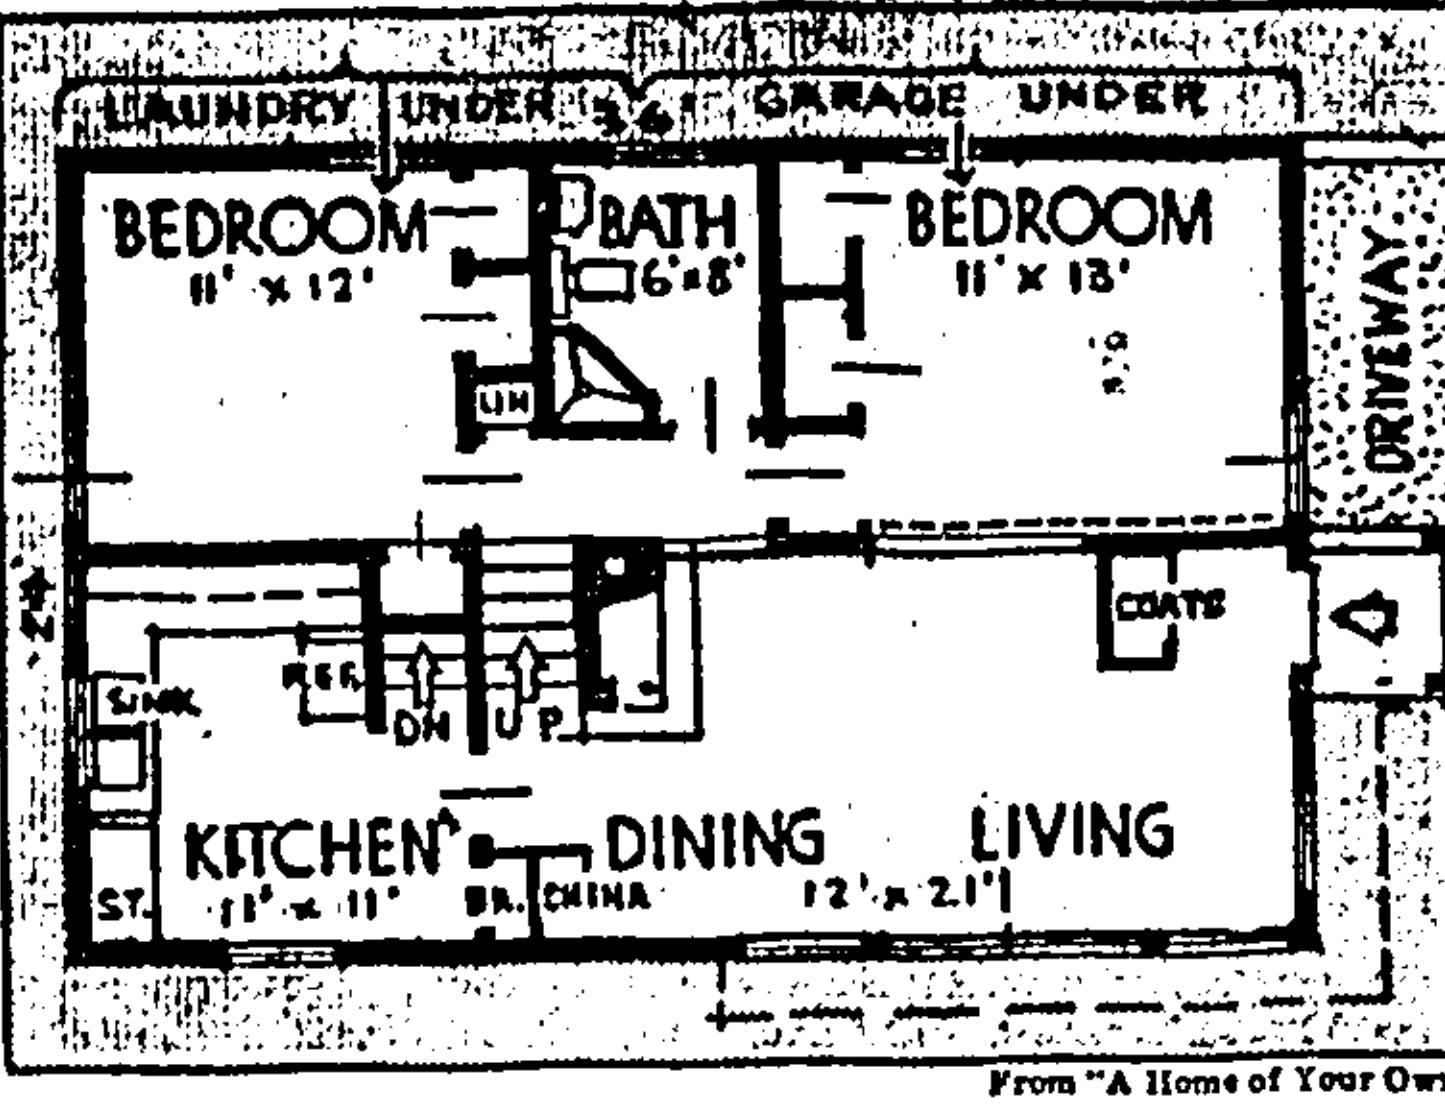

THIS INTERESTING AND ATTRACTIVE little house is something unusually clever in compact convenience, with its two bedrooms, kitchen and living dining room. First floor area may be finished off later, as desired.

AT THE IDEAL HOME EXHIBITION

Points Of Interest

THE Ideal Home Exhibition held in March at Olympia has many points of interest for women. Apart from the more obvious displays of fabrics, furniture, and fashions, there was a complete modern laundry, a bakery, a village of ideal homes and an Old English Pot Pourri stand.

The latter, occupying a small corner, represented the front of an old thatched cottage. There was the faint, slightly musty scent of pressed flowers, as you approached. "The Judge's Choice" is the name of one type. It is made from genuine 16th and 17th century recipes, and is the type used by the notorious "Judge Jeffreys in 1685—to ward off gout fever,

From "A Home of Your Own."

TO GIVE A FEELING OF GREATER SPACIOUSNESS than its dimensions actually provide, the ceiling of the living room follows the slope of the roof. The dining area is tucked away in a cozy corner, adjacent to the kitchen.

First Teeth Influence Permanent Set

THE teeth of little children should not be taken for granted but faithfully watched, kept clean, and if they come in crooked, out of alignment, refer to a dentist without delay.

The first set of teeth of children are important because their condition has an influence on the permanent set. The dentist should be consulted when they begin to shed so that any attention needed can be given in time. It is too bad to let a child's teeth grow out of alignment, since this can spoil the set of his mouth, hindering his speech or lower his health level.

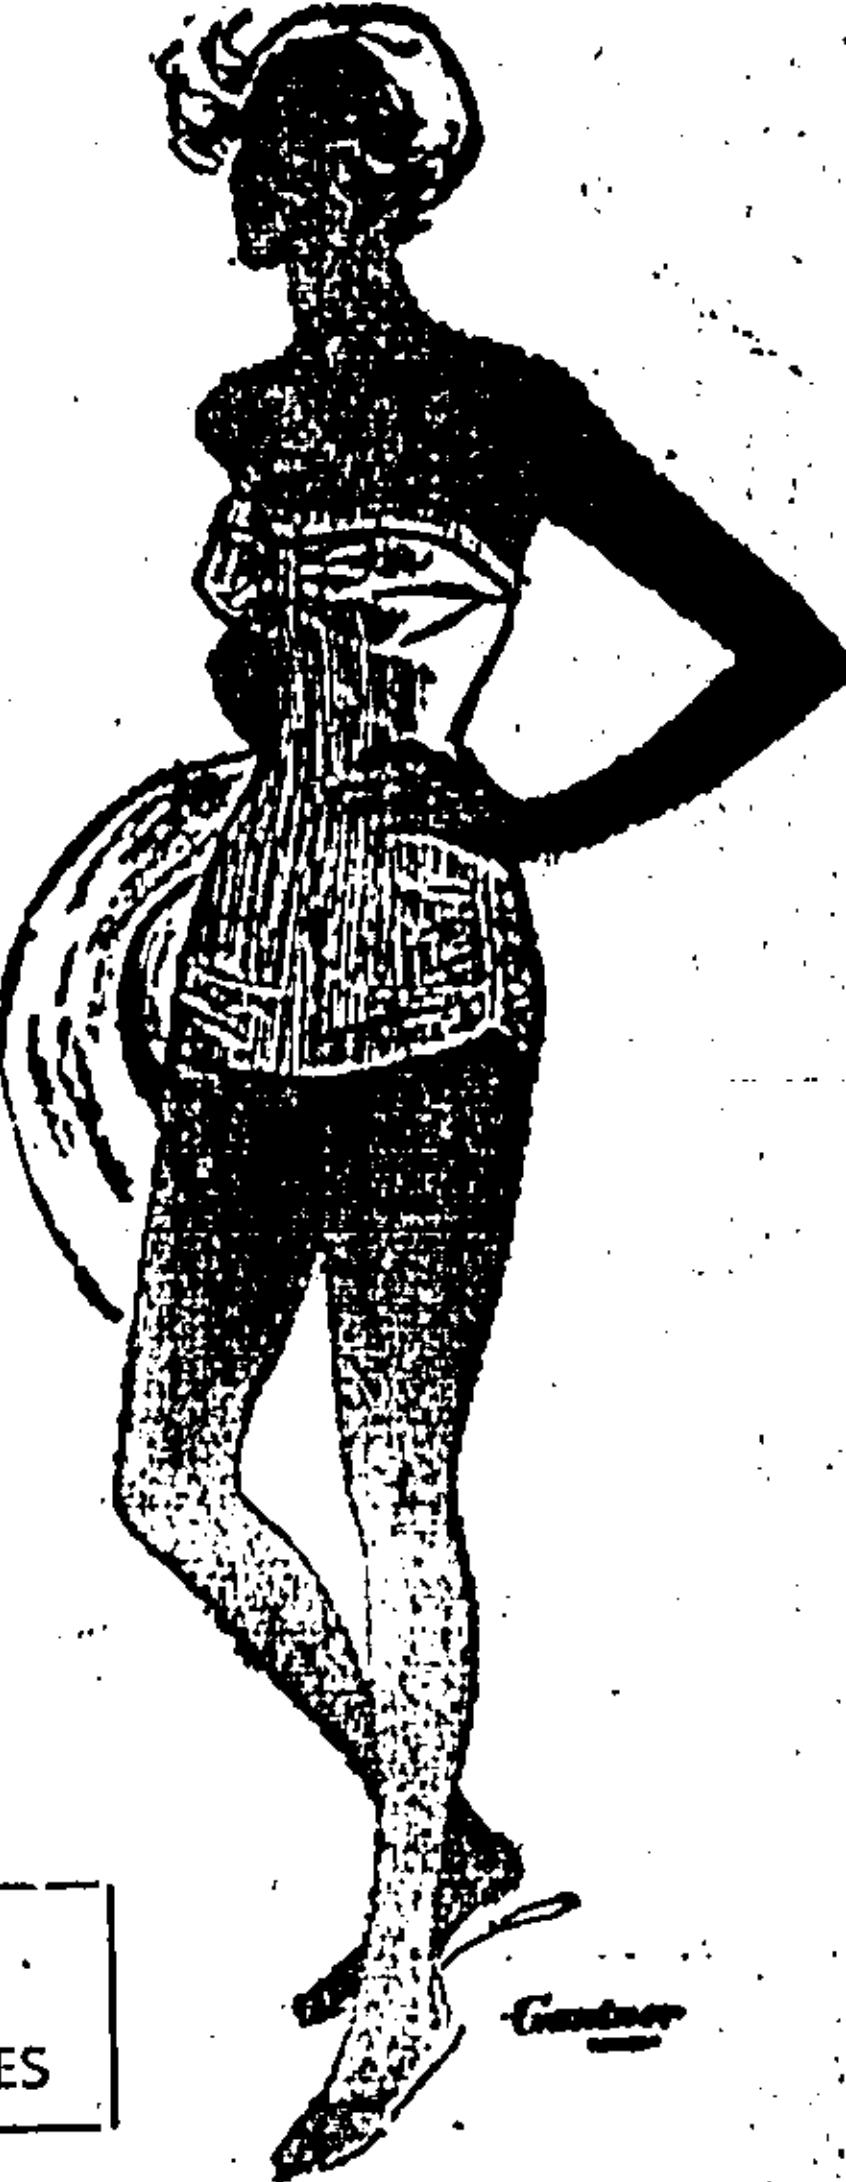

Beauty's Sake

Teeth should be kept in perfect condition for the sake of their beauty alone. The flash of sparkling teeth adds to the beauty of a child's smile, and that light will be a great asset to him when he is an adult. Teeth mean so much to the good looks, to the personality, to the sound health and fitness of a child and of an adult, that the little care they require from their owner, from the dentist, seems a very small price to pay.

Train children from the very beginning to care for their teeth for a very precious possession, as for the pearls they can be, so that when they are grown people they can open their mouths in the sure faith of their beauty, their health and their usefulness.

Swimsuits by
Gantner
OF CALIFORNIA

THE 1950
MODELS ARE HERE!

NEW — STYLES
NEW — COLOURS
NEW — GLAMOUR

NOW —
ON SALE AT LEADING STORES

Sole Agents:
U. SPALINGER & CO., LTD. — Tel. 26714

COME AND SEE
THE WONDERFUL COLLECTION OF EASTER
EGGS AT SINCERE'S
DEPARTMENT STORE

Sole Agents:
ED. A. KELLER & CO., LTD.
Alexandra Building
Telephone 23120

MR and Mrs Ping Kom-wing photographed after their wedding at the Hongkong Hotel. The bride was formerly Miss Chun Ching-fong. (Ming Yuen)

THE Governor, Sir Alexander Grantham, in conversation with Mr Ko Fook-son, President of the Wah Yan College Past Students' Association, at the Hongkong Hotel last Saturday. The Governor addressed the Association on "Colonial Governors." (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Wong Chi-po, President of the King's College Old Boys' Association, speaking at the annual dinner of the Association held at the ABC Cafe recently. (Ming Yuen)

YOUNG competitors photographed in the course of an obstacle race at the children's sports at the Indian Recreation Club last Sunday. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Chang Oi-nung and Miss Chan Kaan-suet, whose marriage took place at the Registry last week. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

THE Hui Li basketball team from Shanghai, who are in Hongkong for a series of friendly games. Below: a moment in a match between Hui Li and South China Athletic Association at Caroline Hill. (T. Y. Tso)

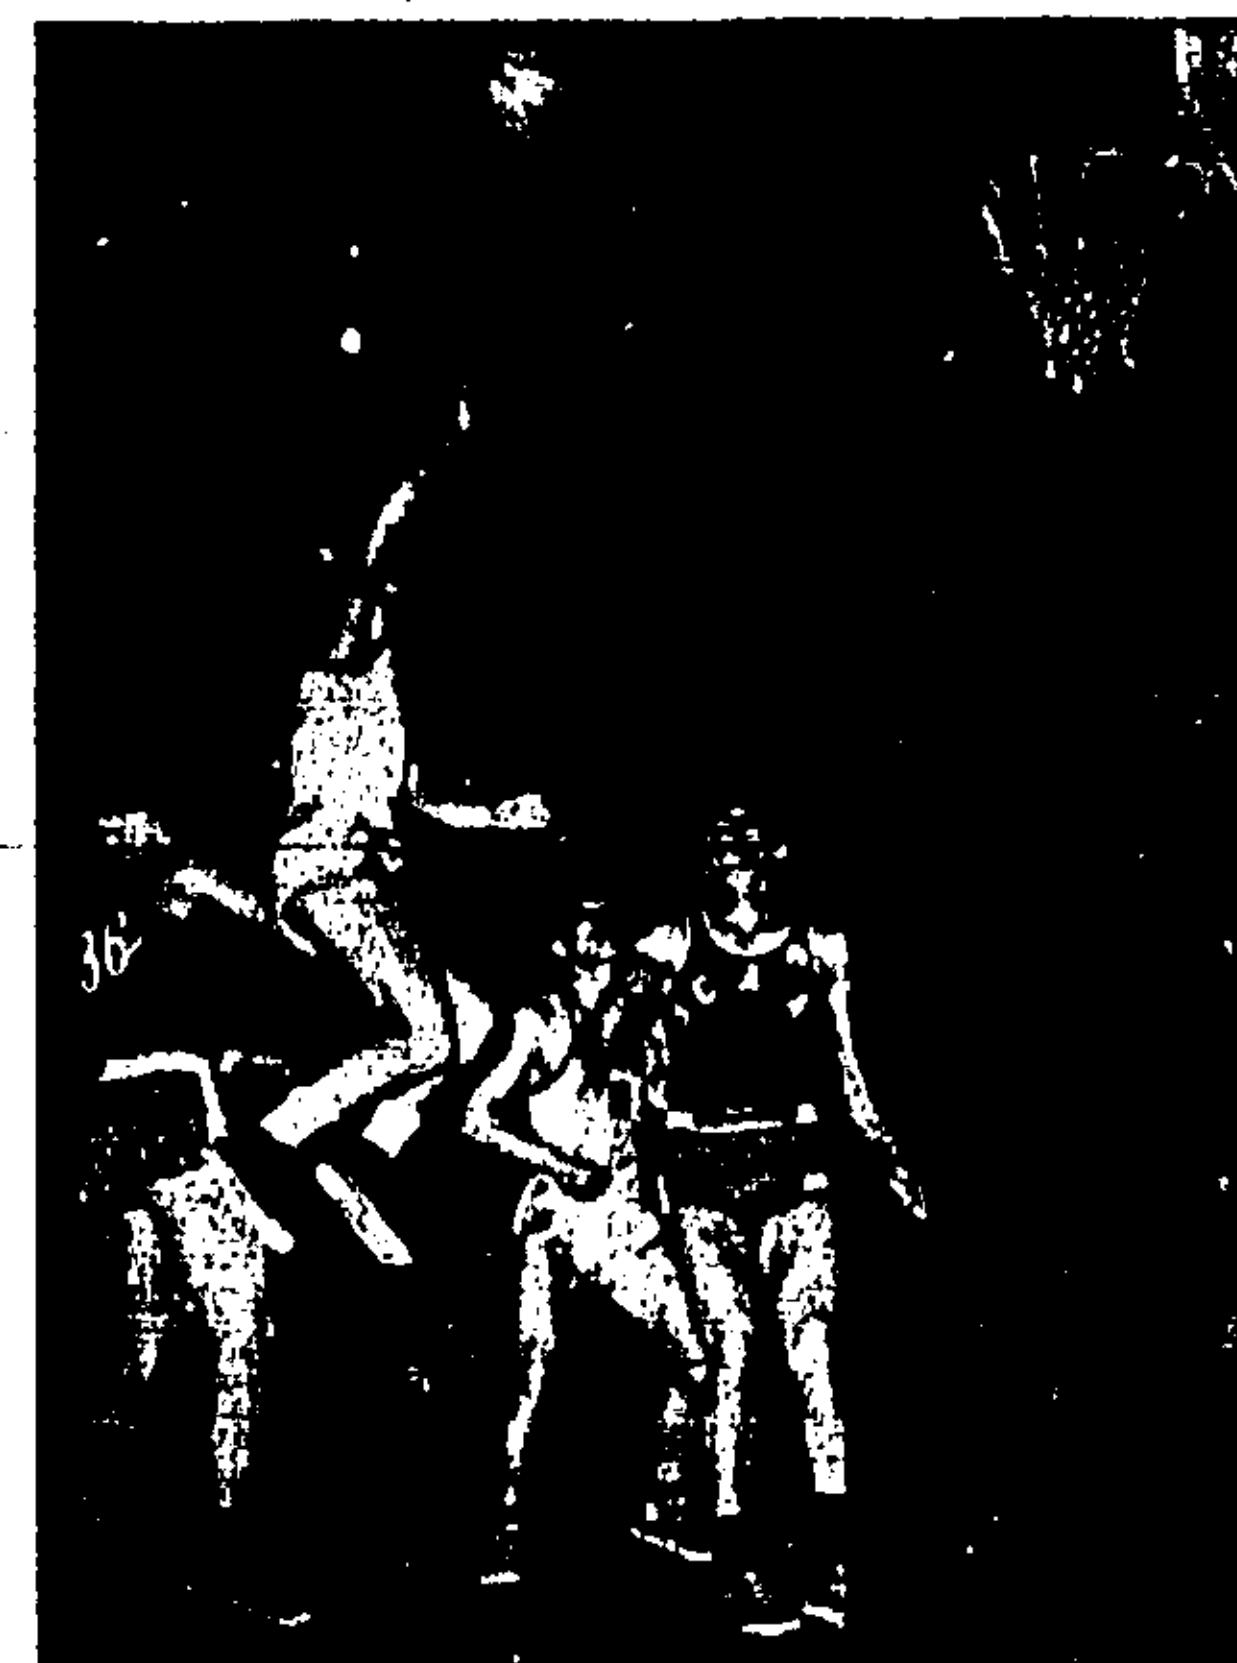

ABOVE left are Mr Chan Shuk-tung and Miss Phoebe Lai, who were married at the Registry recently. (Henry Mok)

MR Tao Yiu, chairman of the Inter-Varsity Alumni Tennis League, addressing the gathering at the prize distribution last week at the Bankers' Club. (Telegraph Staff Photographer)

MR Pang Kwok-tung, retiring after 42 years' service in the Civil Engineer-in-Chief's Department, H.M. Dockyard, being presented with a gold watch, a mark of esteem from his colleagues, by Commodore L. N. Brownfield at a ceremony last week. (Ming Yuen)

MEMBERS of the Hongkong Stage Club had an enjoyable time at the Club's annual dinner-dance, held in the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden. Picture shows only part of the large attendance. (Ming Yuen)

For Business or Pleasure

Q·E·A

Flies you fastest to,

AUSTRALIA

Passages are available every fortnight. Luxurious, modern Skymasters fly you to Sydney in less than 30 hours. Perfect food—attentive steward service. Ask Jardines or your Travel Agents.

NEXT
FLIGHT
APRIL 14

Qantas Empire Airways

In association with British Overseas Airways Corporation
Agents JARDINE, MATHESON & CO., LTD.

PICTURE taken at a farewell party in honour of Mr J. F. Lunny (extreme left) at the Hongkong Electric Club. Mr Lunny is leaving Hongkong on retirement after 30 years' service with the company. (Ming Yuen)

Week-end Soccer

KITCHEE MEET THE SAINTS THIS AFTERNOON IN THE CHALLENGE SHIELD FINAL

By "UNOMI"

The Easter Holiday week-end soccer programme has been carefully planned out by the HKFA and it contains something to suit all tastes.

The Challenge Shield Finals, both Senior and Junior, will be played this afternoon at the Club ground, Happy Valley. These should provide a perfect afternoon's treat for the huge crowd expected.

Kitchee, who have already won the First Division League Championship, meet that grand cup-fighting team, St Joseph's, in the Senior Shield. Little need be said of the prowess of Kitchee, who start off today's game as the favourites.

The team is strong in every department, especially the defence which has conceded the least amount of goals in the League this season. In the Shield matches they have scored seven goals and had two scored against them.

St. Joseph's have the knack of the Army team will be in for the English line-up.

China are the holders of this trophy and will no doubt field their strongest side in order to retain custody of it.

LAST WEEK'S FINAL

The Memorial Cup final last Sunday kept a capacity crowd on its toes for the full 90 minutes. The Chinese retained custody of the trophy for one more year, but the Army made them fight every inch of the way.

The winners, with the exception of the right-back position where "Flash Harry" was a notable absentee, put up the strongest team they could possibly play on the field and, thanks to their excellent combination and skill, finished the game with the score 5-3 in their favour.

Both teams possess strong forward lines and we are sure of plenty of goal-mouth thrills. It is anybody's game, but I think the first-time tackling of the Commandos may upset the Army.

On Monday, the final of the International Cup will take place at Sookkumpoo—England v. China.

This game is sure to draw a large crowd, especially after the display put up by the Army against China last week. A few

FIGHTING SPIRIT

Seldom has a team shown such fighting spirit as these Army lads. Brown, who started off at outside-right and then moved to centre-forward, collected a hat-trick, each goal a gem of opportunity.

Why did the Army inside-men not swing the ball about and make full use of their winners instead of trying too much dribbling?

Marsden was a winner in this respect. Fairbrother was shabby at times in goal and might have saved at least two of the counters.

At one stage of the game the Chinese were leading by 4-1 but a few positional changes by the opposition worked wonders and they managed to shake the jock-like defense and claim on another two goals to make the score 4-3.

Hongkong's Popular Ceylon Tea

RICKSHAW BRAND

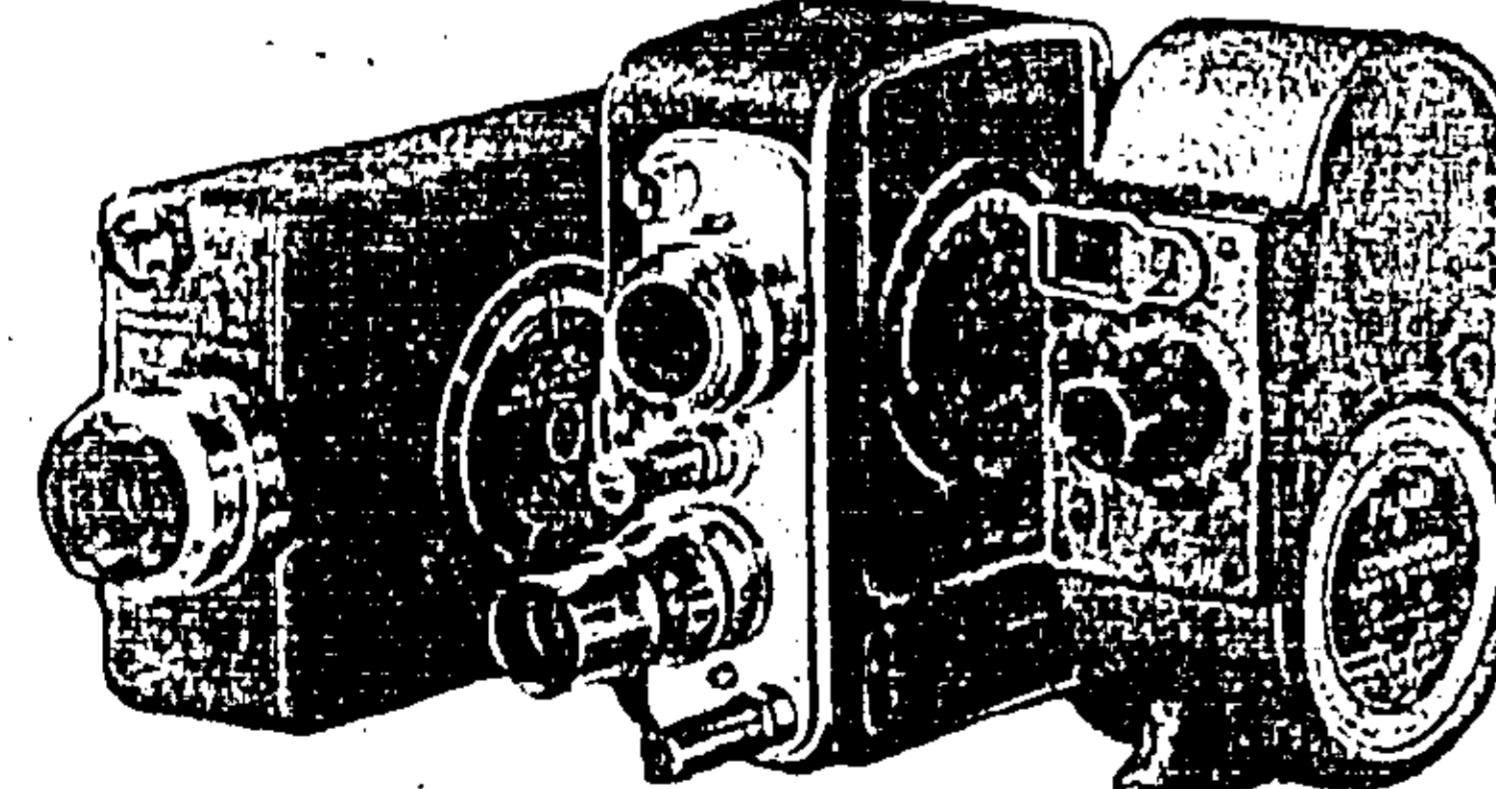

ON SALE EVERYWHERE

GIFTS THAT NEVER STOP GIVING !!

Filmo Movie Cameras

- ★ 16mm AUTOLOAD MAGAZINE CAMERA
- ★ AUTO-8 TURRET MAGAZINE CAMERA
- ★ 8mm SPORSTER CAMERA

Take your choice, they are all precision made by Bell & Howell

Agents

FILMO
3RD FL. MARINA HOUSE HONGKONG
NEXT TO H.K. HOTEL

DEPOT
17/19, QUEEN'S RD., C.
TELEPHONE 32153

BOOKMAKERS' MISFORTUNE

The horse that cost the bookmakers fortunes—Freehooter, won the Grand National Steeplechase by 15 lengths.—London Express

ONLY THE MUGS MUST HAVE A BIT ON EVERY RACE

SAYS CLIVE GRAHAM

London.—For the next eight months, the racehorse backer (homo-semi-sapiens) will happily make play with his theories, his systems, and his hunches.

A. P. Herbert once described the racehorse as "an instrument by God designed, to redistribute wealth among mankind." The fickleness, the fits of temperament, the vagaries of this beautiful creature are notorious.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

The game contained everything that one could desire: good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

They will have plenty of opportunity for a cup that should possess good, clever football, plenty of goals and thrilling incidents and a penalty kick thrown in for good luck. The match will be remembered.

WEEK-END SOFTBALL

International Finals Are The Main Attraction Of The Week-end

BY "STARDUST"

The finals of the International Softball series in both the men's and women's divisions will form the main attraction at King's Park during the Easter Holidays.

The men's section will see a strong Pakistan squad meeting Portugal, last year's winners, on Easter Monday at 2.30 p.m., while the British belles take the Lusitanian, two-time champions of the "Bill Woo International Shield", on the same day. This is the day when Portugal will defend both the men's and women's titles.

The two Senior League play-offs should also provide much excitement on Holy Saturday as the four teams fight for the top place. The draw is as follows:

AT CBA GROUND

11.30 a.m. Braves v. Jaguars
2.30 p.m. St. Joseph's v. Americans

With a wealth of talent to draw upon, the Lusitanian are a powerful contestants for the final of the Hongkong & Shanghai Hotels' Shield against Pakistan, last year's runners-up.

In the pitching department, the staff consists of Vic Pedruco (Jaguars), Kelly Silva-Netto (Madeiras), Jocy Franco (St. Teresa's), and Edo Almeida (Braves) with Franklin "Samba" Correa (Jaguars), Roy Silva-Netto (Madeiras), Pepi Malig (St. Teresa's), and Aviechi Yvanovich (Braves) as battery-mates.

Mentor Charlie Figueiredo is not yet certain of his infield, but it is more than likely that it will be a 100 per cent Braves outfit, with Carl Yvanovich, Tony "Pee-wee" Alves, Junior Remedios and Tony Osmund—unless Figueiredo is prepared to sacrifice close-knit team-work for power slugging, in which case Gerry Langenberg will probably guard the hot corner.

The outfield berths will be difficult to decide as most of the available fly-shafters are first-raters. If hitting power is to be taken as a criterion, the positions will be filled by Rennie Sequira, Spikes Gutierrez and Gerry Roza-Pereira, the first two named being among the Big Five of the Battling Averages.

Pakistan whipped Great Britain in the first round, and will have a good chance of taking the coveted shield from Portugal. They have a star-studded line-up, and with the Saints' combination of Sherry Bucks pitching to backstopper Capone Rummahn, have every chance of a victory over Portugal.

They will have plenty of support from a classy infield and a sure outfield. Under the management of Skelly Razack, Pakistan supporters need have no qualms of their representatives failing to live up to their best. The expected starting line-ups are:

Pakistan—Sherry Bucks (p) and Capone Rummahn (c) (St. Joseph's); Coffee Bakar (1b) (Pak S. C.); Barney Abbas (2b) (Pak Canadians); Junior Markar (rs) (Canadians); Denny Omar (3b) (St. Joseph's); Jindoo Hussain (1l) (St. Joseph's); "Tiger" Hussain (cf) (Canadians) and "Modest" Khan (rf) (Pak S. C.).

Portugal—Vic Pedruco (1b) and Franklin "Samba" Correa (c) (Jaguars); Carl Yvanovich (2b) (Braves); Artur "Mighty Atom" Ozorio (2b) (St. Joseph's); Junior Remedios (ss) (Braves); and Tony Osmund (3b) (Braves); Lionel "Jive King" Sequira (lf) (Jaguars); Spikes Gutierrez (cf) (Braves); and either Gerry Roza-Pereira (cf) (St. Teresa's) or George "Strawberry" Souza (rf) (St. Joseph's).

DISTAFF SIDE

In the Ladies' Section, Portugal, holders of "Bill Woo" Shield, should find the going easy against the red, white and blue belles.

Portugal have a first-class battery in Theresa "Gorgeous Terry" (as she is now known) Noronha and Patsy "Afl" Ribeiro, backed by several top performers drawn from the Wahsos, Wildcats, St. Teresa's and Squaws.

The British belles will have Dolly "Southpaw" Brown pitching to Thelma Coelho. Peggy "Peg o' my heart" Barros, Thelma Watson, Norm Bulleid, Joan Eager, Marlie Xavier, June Lee, Noelle Simmonds, Joyce Guest, Dorothy Park, Betty Park, Bobby Lee, Sheila Howard and Gilly Whingley will form the backbone of the team.

The Junior League Play-off will be another feature in this week-end's softball fixtures. Rexes will meet the winners of the Blackhawks-Jaguars game on Easter Monday as a curtain raiser for the International Series Final. The Blackhawks-Jaguars tussle will be played on Thursday.

The Inter-Hong Kong Leagues will see a full card of games as the Hong Kong swing into their fifth week and the latter into their fourth during the Easter Holidays.

BOOK EARLY!

Preparations are under way for the Annual Softball Presentation Dance to be held at

AT FIRST BASE

This is Beautiful Joyce Guest, a star attraction of the International Final on Monday when she will be at first base on Britain's team against Portugal.

Joyce, who is with the Squaws in the League, is the daughter of "Berlie" Guest, all-round sportsman and president of the Hongkong Hockey Association.

The Peninsula Hotel on April 29. Tickets are now on sale and table reservations may be made direct to the Hotel by telephone.

The Dance Committee, headed by Mrs. Carmen Molteni, wife of the President of the HK Softball Association, is working very hard to make it a big hit for the climax of the closing softball session.

Players and fans who desire tickets should obtain same through their team managers, who should advise the Dance Committee of their requirements.

The Souvenir Programme, which is being prepared, will comprise 48 pages and it is hoped to include as many group photographs as possible.

In the programme are featured four pages of general review of the softball season by scribes of the four papers. The President's foreword is another interesting item in the programme. Thanks must be given to Miss Gilly Wingless and Mrs. Thelma Watson for making this Souvenir programme a big hit.

Team managers are reminded that unless photographs are received within the next few days, they will not be included in the Souvenir Programme.

Arthur Peall says:

THESE SHORT-RANGE SHOTS ARE VITAL

A YOUNG gunner who hopes to make a century break must be able to hit a short range object accurately at short range.

Starting at the top of the table, play it is essential to drive the ball over the top.

It is important to hit the ball accurately at short range.

That means playing safety on the ball.

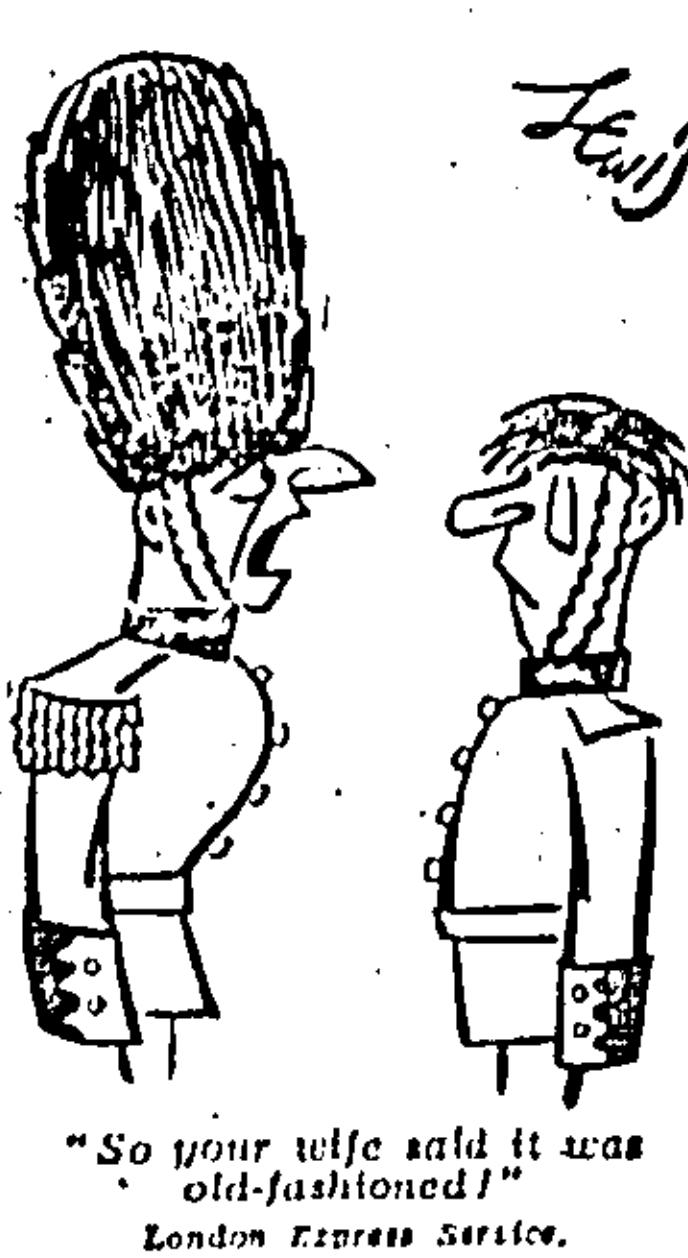

It is important to hit the ball accurately at short range.

It is important to hit the ball accurately at short range.

It is important to hit the ball accurately at short range.

It is important to hit the ball accurately at short range.

What makes a woman like the books men hate?

Daniel George ON BOOKS

TAMING the old tycoon — this sight is always ripe for conversion into another great American novel. The procedure is now familiar. You take a local boy—preferably of dubious parentage. You grow him up with a grievance and make him make good with a vengeance.

Luck, health, wealth, power—give him everything; everything but love. At the top of his success you shatter his stony heart. With a sprinkling of fears you then kill him off, and serve the concoction lukewarm in 500 pages.

Taylor Caldwell has profitably toyed with this theme before. In LET LOVE COME LAST (Collins, 10s. 6d.) it is played with variations contributed by fractious children and lumber interests.

William Prescott made his way from poverty to presidency—presidency of the Prescott Lumber Company. Like Ishmael, his hand had been against every man; some said in every man's pocket. Achieving affluence, he descended upon his home town.

There, marrying almost by storm, Ursula Wende, a gentle schoolmistress, he built a mansion, in size enormous, in taste execrable, and set about encompassing the ruin of his former employer, Chasney Arnold, an undoubted rogue but a weak reed.

New York is to have the climax of a 6,000-mile tour—about 62,000 concert-goers in 36 cities—of trial and thralldom.

Worst trial? Thanks to the coal strike the Wheaton, Illinois, hall was bright and heady on her concert night.

They brought in portable generators to make light. In a thin gown she sang to an audience in overalls.

Big thrill? Negro woman at a San Franishon cabaret said to her: "That was wonderful singing." It was Marian Anderson, America's great coloured contralto.

Dollar earning? Said Kathleen: "I pay all my accompanyist expenses. The management takes 20 percent. But my bank says I can worth more than a case of openers."

CRIME: Car-breaking is now a major criminal industry. One-third of all thefts are from parked cars. The police are teaching motorists how to protect themselves from "crooks with tongs."

BERT: "The young generations blame their parents for evils for which the parents once blamed the grandparents, and for which the young generations, in their turn, will be blamed by their own children."

Escape

TO get away from it all you can be transported (tomorrow) to HIGH VALLEY, by Charnian Clift and George Johnston (Faber, 12s. 6d.)—a tale of rough but romantic doings in the Tibetan Valley of the Dreaming Phoenix.

Satom, a roaming Chinese youth, falls in love there with Veshti, the headman's daughter. She is so responsive that, hating the community's ancient customs of not wedding, she submits, under Salom's supervision, to total immersion.

The arrival of Young, a White lama, causes trouble. He wants Veshti as a temporary gift to the gods. Salom disappears. At this point occurs a visitation by the Living Buddha, and the utterance of much Worldly Wisdom, which does nothing to prevent ructions all round, though it imparts much Tibetan folk lore to the plodding reader.

The story—told with scriptural simplicity—and in many ways dignified and beautiful, ends with Salom and Veshti, united at last and for ever, in the heart of a blizzard. Brrrr!

Soldiers

ALEXANDER BARON'S AT THERE'S NO HOME (Cape, 12s. 6d.), is a British novel.

With Alexander Baron, you will feel at home, though the scene is Sicily. It is about men you know—civilian turned soldiers and lapsing into civilians again as they enjoy a lull between two campaigns.

Before the war claims them again they have snatched some happiness—not all of them a few have suffered.

Sergeant Craddock and Grazella—if you can read their love story without compassion and understanding, if the quarrel between Privates Broom and Jobbing mystifies you, if, in short, what is credible, told in an unheated style with unforced humour and untaut patios, does not satisfy you, "There's No Home" is no book for you.

—London Express Service.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON DAB and FLOUNDER
—by Walter

NEW BOOKS by GEORGE MALCOLM THOMSON

A Fleet St. novel that is good

FINAL NIGHT. By Robert GAINES, Heinemann, 12s. 6d. 241 pages.

THERE will always be novels about Fleet Street, and most of them will be bad. Nobody knows why.

Perhaps it is because only journalists want to set their novels in London, E.C.4—and because journalists usually do not write good novels.

So let it be said right away that Final Night is a good novel, is by a journalist, and is about Fleet Street. About a smart evening paper which pulls off a double scoop. Something that does not happen every day.

Final Night is the latest attempt to put over the glamour, self-pity and reality of Fleet Street. An attempt in the modern manner, sardonic, misanthropic, prepared to believe the worst.

Gaines exhibits his cast of journalists in no mood of adolescent enthusiasm, but rather like a dentist taking an X-ray of a row of inferior teeth.

SCOOPS GALORE

GRANGER, for instance, the news-editor, Nobody will make a hero of him, least of all his wife, Susan, whose interest (after the gin-bottle) does not focus on her lord and master.

This explains why Granger is still morose at the end of a day of incredible professional triumph.

The story opens at the moment when Granger, casting his morning glance at the marble effigies of his proprietor, is whisked up in the lift to his duties.

Two stories as he puts it, "Stick out," Glenda Thorp and De Brukman. They do indeed.

At first they are shunned as foreigners. Then it turns out that Pava has an unparalleled gift for funeral oratory, an art in great local demand.

The family is drawn into the village life.

Before the day is done, Glenda has been sensationally acquitted

—

Rainy Sunday
By KEMP STARRETT

Better on a short course
GEORGES SIMENON

rivalries, divided by the firm social barriers.

Eating well and speaking of their neighbour, capable of the widest generosity and of the most disgraceful chicanery, the people of Fougalettes spring life before us, cynical, religious yet with the barricades of the Revolution always ready to be built themselves in the street.

• JEANNE SALEIL was born in the department of Aveyron in France and spent her girlhood summers in the mountain village of Fougalettes. Has also lived in England and in Mexico, now Professor of French, Massachusetts, U.S.A., and taught there since the mid-thirties.

• STRANGE INHERITANCE
By Georges Simenon
Routledge and Kegan Paul
9s. 6d. 222 pages.

SIMENON is one of the least showy of novelists, and one of the best. He has a limited objective, knows exactly what he wants to do and never tries for more.

He is the poet of small towns, local big-wigs, rainy weather, dockside cafes, ship chandler stores, the Chamber of Commerce, train journeys, money.

He achieves his effect, creates his atmosphere, puts his drama on the boards, with such speed that the job looks easy. In fact it has called for intimate knowledge and a real genius for the selection of details.

The latest Simenon is twice the usual length. That is to say, it is a full-length novel. Many will think Simenon is better over the shorter course.

It tells how Gilles Mauvoisin, weakling son of a no-good con-juer, returns to La Rochelle and is plunged into puzzling, frightening intrigues that follow the death of his rich uncle Octave, poisoned.

• GEORGES SIMENON, 46-year-old French author of more than 300 novels is France's greatest writer of psychological thrillers. He has worked under 16 pen-names.

—(London Express Service)

American column

She sings in $ key

From NEWELL ROGERS

NEW YORK.

One of Hambstead Heath's most musical dollar exports is queen of the moment in New York's concert halls.

Twice in two nights I have heard contralto Kathleen Ferrier to capacity audiences.

In a powder blue sequinned gown the crested the Royal Stair as Ofelia, in a concert version of Gluck's opera, Orpheus and Eurydice from Hades. With her Hollywood beat, fat conductor Bruno Walter, to lead conductor Bruno Walter, to lead Arnold, an undoubted rogue but a weak reed.

New York is to have the climax of a 6,000-mile tour—about 62,000 concert-goers in 36 cities—of trial and thralldom.

Worst trial? Thanks to the coal strike the Wheaton, Illinois, hall was bright and heady on her concert night.

They brought in portable generators to make light. In a thin gown she sang to an audience in overalls.

Big thrill? Negro woman at a San Franishon cabaret said to her: "That was wonderful singing." It was Marian Anderson, America's great coloured contralto.

Dollar earning? Said Kathleen: "I pay all my accompanyist expenses. The management takes 20 percent. But my bank says I can worth more than a case of openers."

THE ENGLISH GIRL AND NAPOLEON III'S SON

THERE is material for a literary mystery hunt in Princess Marthe Bilesco's forthcoming book, Prince Imperial.

She tells the story of Napoleon III's son and his love affair with an English girl. But who was the girl? The author says: "I have called her Betsy. That was not her name." She adds: "The intimate facts came to me from my grandmother, Princess George Bilesco, a distant cousin of the Empress Eugenie."

• GREY WALLS Press, which publish the book, are one of the Falcon Press's group. Why "Falcon"? It was the name of an armoured car commanded in the war by ex-Commando-patrouille Peter Baker, and he himself is running for Parliament as a Conservative.

• INTERESTING biography in next year's programme is A. J. A. Symons' His Life and Speculations, by his poet brother Julian. It should be good.

• DONT, in any event think that you can command their love and respect. 3. REMEMber eccentricities, former—he was an expert on calligraphy.

• ANOTHER publisher politician is Nigel Gom (of H. G. Gom) Nelson, 32, partner in the new firm of George Weidenfeld and Nicolson. He doesn't share his parents' Socialist politics—is pro-Conservative. Conservative candidate for a Midland constituency, his godmother is Victoria Sackville-West.

The list of first productions of the new firm wears an apologetic air. In Account Settled, Dr. Schatz, ex-German financial boor, defends his connection with the Hitler regime, and Charlotte (former wife of Professor) Haldane, in Truth VIII Out, explains her break with the Communist Party.

• ANTONIA WHITE reappears on the fiction programme after 16 years. This is welcome news; her debut in 1933 with Frost. In May was a notable event of the literary year. She will break her long silence in the spring with an important novel, The Lost Traveller (Eyre and Spottiswoode).

—London Express Service.

• AND Forger

• ... AND I THINK THE PIANO COULD GO OVER THERE ... THEN THERE'S ALL THAT BRASS TO BE POLISHED, AND ETC.

NEVER, NEVER WISH RIGHT OUT LOUD THAT YOU HAD SOMETHING TO DO BECAUSE, BROTHER, YOU'LL GET YOUR WISH ... BUT GOOD!

• SOME JUST STARE OUT THE WINDOW AT WHAT'S MAKING THEM MISERABLE.

• OTHERS GO IN FOR LITERATURE TO CHASE THE BLUES.

• THE SPROUTS WILL BE WANTING TO DO SOMETHING TO EACH OTHER.

• SOME GET SO DESPERATE THEY EVEN TRY TO BALANCE THE WIFE'S CHECK-BOOK.

• T'AIN'T 'SMINE!

• IT'S MINE!

• THE SHOW MUST GO ON

DAB and FLOUNDER

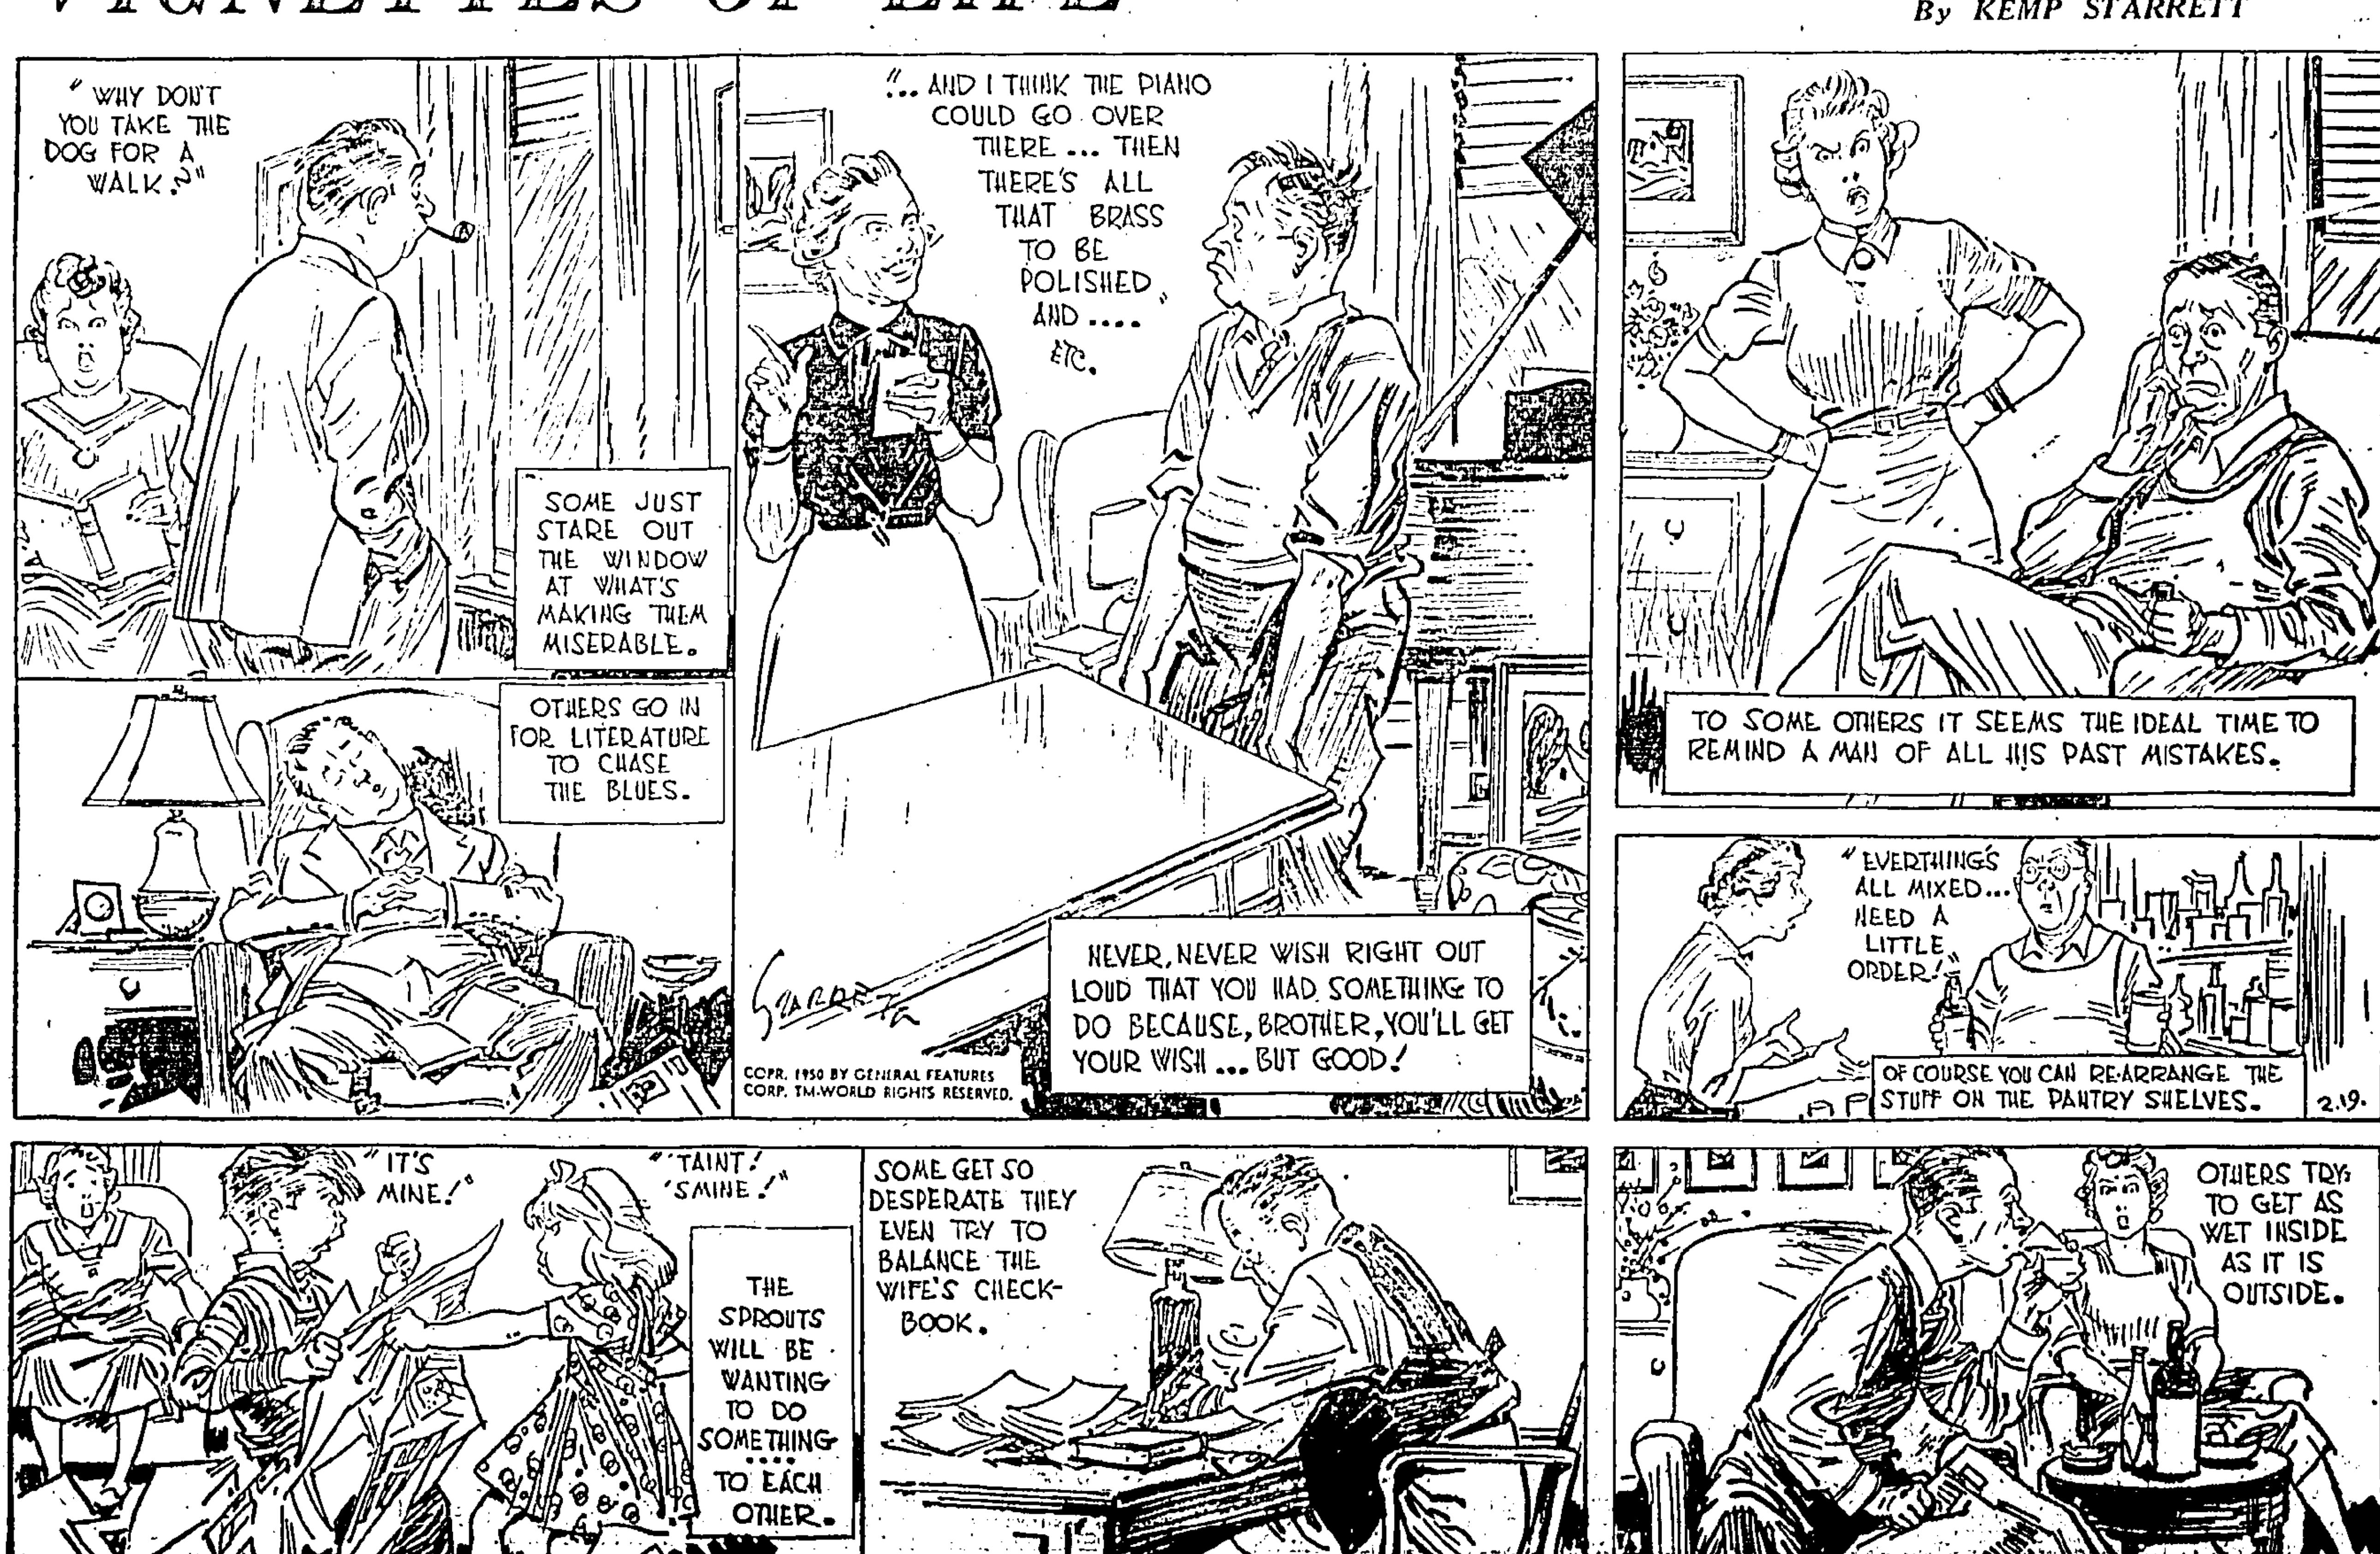

—by Walter

TO SOME OTHERS IT SEEMS THE IDEAL TIME TO REMIND A MAN OF ALL HIS PAST MISTAKES.

EVERYTHING ALL MIXED... NEED A LITTLE ORDER... OF COURSE YOU CAN REARRANGE THE STUFF ON THE PANTRY SHELVES.

OTHERS TRY TO GET AS WET INSIDE AS IT IS OUTSIDE.

VIGNETTES OF LIFE

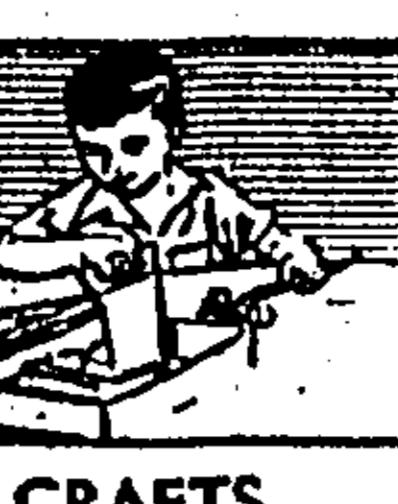

STORIES

HOBBIES

The BOYS and GIRLS PAGE

GAMES

CRAFTS

JOKES

ON THE TRACK OF THE KIDNAPPERS IN TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT OF THE CHILDREN'S SERIAL, Five Fall into Adventure

Sid's wonderful evening

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

SIDL, the paper-boy, was most amazed to find himself yanked quickly through the front door by Julian. He was even more amazed to find his very lurid check cap snatched off his head, and his bag of papers torn from his shoulder.

"Eire!" he said feebly. "What you doing?"

"It's all right, Sid," said Julian, holding him firmly. "Just a joke. We've got a little treat in store for you."

Sid didn't like jokes of this sort. He struggled, but soon gave it up. Julian was big and strong and very determined.

Sid turned and watched Dick stride out with his bright check cap sideways on his head and his paper-bag over his shoulder. He gaped when he saw Dick leap on the bicycle that he, Sid, had left by the gate, and go sailing off up the lane on it.

"What's he doing?" he asked Julian, amazed. "Funny sort of joke this."

"I know. Hope you don't mind," said Julian, leading him firmly into the sitting-room.

"Somebody betted him he wouldn't deliver the papers, maybe?" said Sid. "So he's taken the bet on?"

"You're clever, you are, Sid," said Julian, and Sid beamed all over his round, simple face.

"Well, I hope he'll deliver them all right," he said. "Any way, there's only two more up at the farm. You're the last house but one that I go to. When he's coming back?"

"Soon," said Julian. "Will you stay and have supper with us, Sid?"

Sid's eyes nearly fell out of his head. "Supper with your folks?" he said. "Cool! That'd be a rare treat!"

"All right. You sit and look at these books," said Julian, giving him two or three story books belonging to Anne. "I'll just go and tell our cook to make a specially nice supper for you."

Sid was all at sea about this unexpected treat, but quite willing to accept a free meal and a sit down. He sat beaming on the couch, turning over the pages of a fairy-story book. Cool! What would his mother say when she heard he'd had supper at Kirrin Cottage? She wouldn't half be surprised, thought Sid.

And now Julian had to tackle Joan, and get her to join in their little plot. He went into the kitchen and shut the door. He looked so grave that Joan was startled.

"What's the matter?" she said. Julian told her. He told her about the kidnapping of George, and the strange note. He gave it to her to read. She sat down, her knees beginning to shake.

"It's the kind of thing you read in the papers," Master Julian, she said, in rather a shaky voice. "But it's queer when it happens to you. I don't like it—that's that I don't."

"Nor do we," said Julian, and went on to tell Joan they had arranged to do. She smiled a watery smile when he told her how Dick had gone off as the paper-boy. In order to watch who took the notebook that night, and described how surprised Sid was.

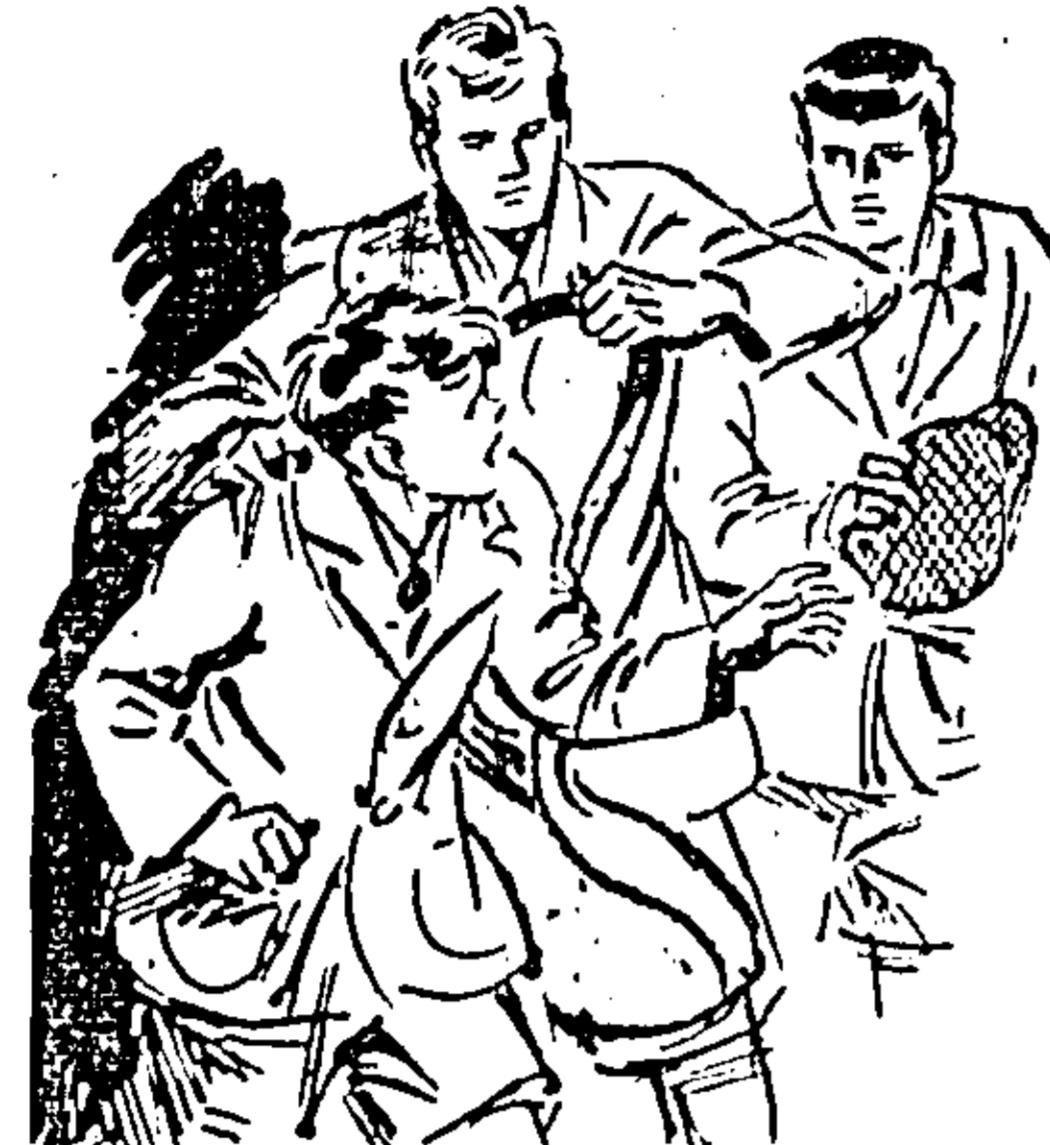

"That Sid!" she said. "We'll never hear the last of it, down in the village—he being invited here to supper. He's simple, that boy, but there's no harm in him."

"I'll get him a fine supper, don't you worry. And I'll come and sit with you tonight in the lighted room—we'll play a card game, see? One that Sid knows—he's never got much beyond Snap and Happy Families."

"That's a very good idea," said Julian who had been wondering how in the world they could amuse Sid all the evening. "We'll play Snap—and let him win!"

Sid was quite overcome at his wonderful evening. First there was what he called a "smasher of a supper," with ham and eggs and chip potatoes followed by jam tarts and a big chocolate mould of which Sid ate about three-quarters.

"I'm partial to chocolate mould," he explained to Anne. "Joan knows that she knows I'm partial to anything in the chocolate line."

Sid was amazed to find his lurid check cap snatched off his head and his bag of papers torn from his shoulders.

CHAPTER TEN

By I. R. Hegel

JUNIORS all over the world are starting a United Nations movement of their own and they are coming up with some surprising results.

The first surprise comes from Lake Success, N.Y., where a school is being conducted in a farmhouse for the children of the delegates of the United Nations.

In the beginning the venture was looked upon with doubts. How could children from such distant places as England, Buenos Aires, Sweden, Tokyo, Africa, China, Canada and other countries get along together?

The answer appeared during the first sessions. The children got along as well as if they had known one another all their lives. Languages might be different but they always found the point of contact in a sport, song, a book, a hero.

Not far from Lake Success is a Manhattan junior high school. The children of this school are as mixed in racial background as those in the United Nations' farmhouse. Their nationalities are Irish, Jewish, Swedish, German, Puerto Rican, Chinese, Negro, Italian, Turkish and Armenian.

These junior students decided they wanted to know one another better. So they inaugurated "open house" parties at their individual homes; a Chinese new year; a Puerto Rican fiesta; a Swedish smorgasbord; a Jewish candlelight spread.

Although the mothers and the teachers planned and helped with these programmes, yet it was the enthusiasm of the boys and girls of this section of Manhattan that made the parties so successful that will make you bug-eyed. The New York school system now includes these get-together parties of all nationalities as an official part of social study in three schools.

All over the United States we have citizens of many races, all degrees of colour and different in customs. That is where the junior United Nations is stepping in. They are not waiting for a conference. They are getting acquainted with those different races and customs right now. People you really understand you never can hate, these young people sincerely believe.

A Really Wonderful Secret —And Give Just Couldn't Keep It—

By MAX TRELL

IT WAS Kharf, the shadow-boy, who told it to Give the Snail. But he never thought Give would bother telling it to anyone else; or that anyone else would bother to do anything about it. But that isn't the way it happened.

As soon as Kharf went away, Give started gliding down the tiny path that wandered across the field among the blades of grass and the dandelion stems, around pebbles and across bridges made of twigs.

By and by Give came to a little flat stone, half-covered with moss. He walked around it—or rather slid slowly around it—several times until finally he found what he was looking for. It was a small opening under the stone. Give leaned out of his shell and called down into the opening. "Blackie! Blackie!"

A moment later a black beetle put his head out through the opening. "What's the matter?" he asked Give.

After Dinner

"Something wonderful is going to happen right after dinner tonight at the white house where the children live."

"You don't say! What's going to happen, Give?"

"The tablecloth is going to be shaken out," said Give.

"The—what is going to be shaken out?" asked Blackie in a puzzled voice.

"The tablecloth, Blackie; the big white cloth that the children have their dinner on. It's going to be shaken out at the kitchen door."

"But you won't be disappointed."

And in a few minutes it happened, just as Give said it would. Blackie and Give and all the others who had come to see it happened were standing in a group behind a thick tuft of grass. From inside the house, through the open window, they could hear voices. They were the children's voices, the tinkle of knives and forks and spoons.

Then suddenly, the kitchen door opened. It was Mother, holding the large white tablecloth, all bundled up. She shook it out!

And oh, what wonderful things came raining down: bread-crumbs, and cake crumbs, and all sorts of dinner crumbs. There was more than enough for everyone. And oh, how happy they all were, especially when Give told them about Blackie!

Kitchen Door

In fact, just as they reached the back steps and could see the kitchen door of the house very plainly, Blackie could no longer hold back his curiosity and impatience. "Please," he said to Give, "I know I shouldn't be asking so many questions, but what is going to happen, Give?"

"Deliciousness," answered Give; "all kinds of deliciousness."

"Like for instance what Give?"

"There's no telling exactly, Blackie. You'll just have to wait."

"Oh, dear,"

"But you won't be disappointed."

And in a few minutes it happened, just as Give said it would. Blackie and Give and all the others who had come to see it happened were standing in a group behind a thick tuft of grass. From inside the house, through the open window, they could hear voices. They were the children's voices, the tinkle of knives and forks and spoons.

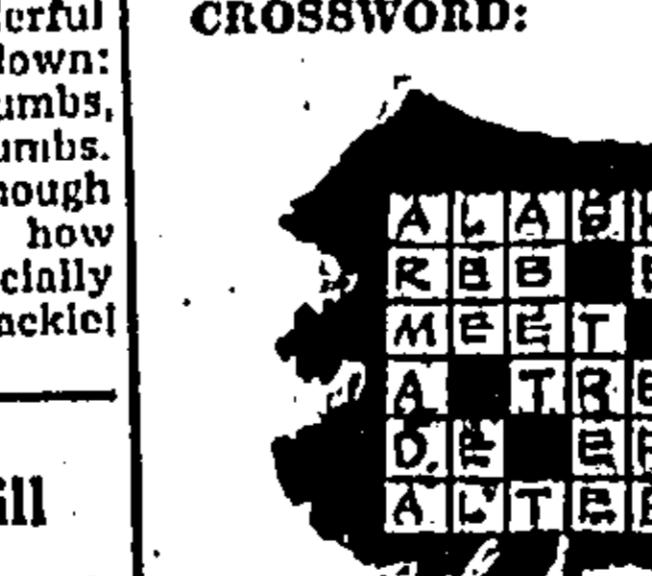

Then suddenly, the kitchen door opened. It was Mother, holding the large white tablecloth, all bundled up. She shook it out!

And oh, what wonderful things came raining down: bread-crumbs, and cake crumbs, and all sorts of dinner crumbs. There was more than enough for everyone. And oh, how happy they all were, especially when Give told them about Blackie!

"World citizenship," runs a library pamphlet, "is a state

Puzzle Answers

CROSSWORD

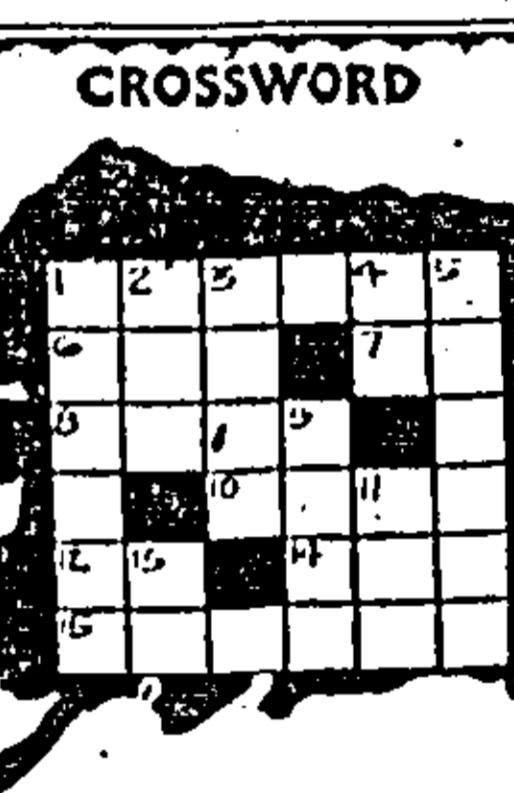

RIDDLES: 1—Because she appears in print. 2—Because it can't unfold. 3—Because it has had so many Christian kings. 4—Because it must always be a second-hand one. 5—One is 12, the other a dozen.

PIED SENTENCE: The for-get-me-not is the official flower of the Territory of Alaska.

MIX-UPS: Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes; Territory includes Aleutian Islands.

Puzzle Patch

RIDDLES

1. Why is a lady in a cotton dress like a book?

2. Why is a pig with a "curly continuation" like the ghost of Hamlet's father?

3. Why should Denmark be an eminently religious country?

4. Why can you never buy a new stop watch?

5. What is the difference between a boy "over whose head 12 summers have passed," and a man taking a nap?

PIED SENTENCE

The type was spilled in this sentence about Alaska. Can you straighten it out to make sense? It is of flower Alaska, forget-me-not of the the the the official Territory.

MIX-UPS

Rearrange the strange words in each line below to form two facts about Alaska:

VAST EN SANDY SLUM
LOOK SLID YE SUN AIR
LET'S RUN CLAD IN THE

CROSSWORD

1. This puzzle is on a silhouette of _____.

6. Rebel (ab.)

7. East River (ab.)

8. Encounter

10. Weight deduction

12. From

14. Before

15. Changes

DOWN

1. Spanish fleet

2. Sheltered side

3. Encourage

4. Knight of the Elephant (ab.)

5. Rugged mountain crests

9. Woody plant

11. Make a mistake

13. Measure of cloth

14. Measure

15. Measure

16. Measure

17. Measure

18. Measure

19. Measure

20. Measure

21. Measure

22. Measure

23. Measure

24. Measure

25. Measure

26. Measure

27. Measure

28. Measure

29. Measure

30. Measure

31. Measure

32. Measure

33. Measure

34. Measure

35. Measure

36. Measure

37. Measure

38. Measure

39. Measure

40. Measure

41. Measure

42. Measure

43. Measure

44. Measure

45. Measure

46. Measure

GOOD FRIDAY FOOTBALL: LIVERPOOL BACK IN THE LEAD

London, Apr. 7.—Although there was not a complete football programme today—most League teams were playing—nearly a million soccer fans saw the first matches of the busy Easter weekend period which may well settle promotion and relegation problems.

WEEK-END SPORT

TODAY

Basketball — Warriors v. Hongkong & Kowloon Combined at Caroline Hill, 8 p.m.

Cricket — I.C.C. (Second Division, Champs) v. The Rest of the Second Division XI at Cox's Ford, 1.45 p.m.

Prinsenbad v. Royal Army Pay Corps at Sookkunoo, 1.45 p.m.

Football — Junior and Senior Shield Final at Happy Valley, 2.30 p.m.

Kleinen v. St. Joseph's, 4.30 p.m.

Races—Easter Race Meeting (First Day) at Happy Valley, First Saddle, 10 a.m.

Softball—Men's Senior League Play-offs—Braves v. Jaguars at CBA ground, King's Park, 11.30 a.m.

Ladies' Senior League—Pirates v. Wildcats at CBA ground, 10 a.m.

Ladies' Junior League—McFiecreans v. White Fangs at CBA ground, 1 p.m.

Men's Junior League Final Play-offs—Blackhawks v. Jaguars at CBA ground, 4 p.m.

Midgels' League—Lions v. Blackarrows, 10 a.m.; Mohawks v. Aces, 11.30 a.m.; Falcons v. Saints, 1 p.m.; Dodgers v. Bluebirds, 2.30 p.m.; Delaware v. Blackbirds, 4 p.m.—all games at Recreco ground, King's Park.

TOMORROW

Basketball — Arcellano v. Hongkong & Kowloon Combined at Caroline Hill, 8 p.m.

Cricket — I.C.C. v. Commandos at Sookkunoo (First Division League), 1.45 p.m.

Football — First Division League—St. Joseph's v. Kowloon Motor Bus at Happy Valley, 5 p.m.

Second Division League—RAF v. University at Kai Tak, 5 p.m.; Police v. Dockyard at Boundary Street, 5 p.m.; Kitchee v. Navy at Happy Valley, 5.30 p.m.

Lawns Bowls — President's team v. Mr. Aitken's team at Kowloon Bowling Green Club, 3.30 p.m.

Softball — Men's Senior League Final Play-offs—Braves v. Americans at CBA ground, King's Park, 2.30 p.m.

Inter-Hong League—Shell v. San Miguel at CBA ground, 11.30 a.m.; Calix v. GBB at Livingston at CBA ground, 1 p.m.

Ladies' Junior League—Clowns v. Squaws at CBA ground, 4 p.m.

Midgels' League—Mohawks v. Falcons, 10 a.m.; Lions v. Aces, 11.30 a.m.; Blackhawks v. Saints, 1 p.m.; Dodgers v. Delaware, 2.30 p.m.; Blackarrows v. Bluebirds, 4 p.m.—all at Recreco ground.

GAMMANS ATTACK

(Continued from Page 1) of Communist China. Did the Government still contend that this recognition had had no effect on the situation?

No-one in Malaya was prepared to accept that view. Appointments of Chinese Communists could be much longer be evaded. Bandits would never be caught unless the Chinese population were prepared to give information.

The bandits could not survive a month in the jungle without the help of the Chinese. We were sure we could get that help if the Chinese could be sure the Government meant business.

He asked whether any approach had been made to Australia and New Zealand for help. If Singapore fell they would be in a deadly peril.

Time was getting short. There was a limit to what the rubber planters and the miners could stand. It was little good talking about closing the dollar gap and losing Malaya.

A CENTURY

Sir Patrick Sophs, Conservative, said we seemed to be dealing with the Malayan situation on our own. There was no general policy between all nations interested in that area. To try and raise the standard of living of millions of people in the Far East in an effort to eliminate the ground on which Communists flourished would take a century.

Mr. Walter Fletcher said we had taken it for granted that because the output of tin and rubber continued to rise in price, thus contributing towards the closing of the dollar gap, that it would continue to do so.

Mr. Griffiths said there was no rapid or easy solution and no magic formula for dealing with the situation. The possibility of getting troops from other parts of the Common-

Winnie's Horse Beaten

Salisbury, Wiltshire, Apr. 6.—Mr. Winston Churchill and his family saw his French-bred race horse, Colonist, beaten into fourth place in the Salisbury Spring Handicap, run over one mile, here today.

Colonist, winner of three of his six races

since arriving in England last summer, attempted to make all the running but was collared further from home, finishing fourth behind the 6 to 1 chance, Eulogy, owned by

Mr. G. Cooper, a Portsmouth butcher.

Crystal Link, a 20 to 1

shot, was second, two lengths behind Eulogy, with the 9 to 4 favourite, Signal-

man, a length away

third in a field of nine runners.

Colonist started second favourite at 7 to 2.—Reuter.

Ideal spring weather, with plenty of thrills, rewarded the spectators, some of whom saw some surprising upsets, although a real clarification of end-of-the-season problems concerned only top of the table riders.

The biggest upset occurred to Manchester United, who crashed at home to Birmingham City, though whom in the table was in only one team—the other Manchester side (City).

Liverpool, who lost the League lead to Manchester

United nearly a fortnight ago, returned to the top with a handsome win.

This improves Liverpool's prospects of the Cup and League double.

Blackpool's hopes of the Championship suffered a setback before the day's biggest crowd, more than 71,000 fans watching them fall at Everton.

With promotion certain, Tottenham Hotspur could afford the loss of a point when enter-ting the Hull, while convincing win by both Notts County and Doncaster Rovers, the leaders of the South and North Sections respectively of the Third Division, enhanced their prospects of appearing in the Second Division next season.—Reuter.

FIRST DIVISION

Burnley 0 Liverpool 1
Bury 1 Aston Villa 0
Charlton 1 West Brom 0
Derby County 3 Blackpool 0
Everton 1 Huddersfield 0
Manchester U 2 Hull 0
Portsmouth 0 Middlebrou-

ke 0 Sunderland 0

SECOND DIVISION

Blackburn R 2 Preston N. E. 1
Brentford 1 Sheffield W. 0
Chesterfield 1 Luton 0
Luton 1 Luton 0
Queens P. R. 0 Hull City 0

THIRD DIVISION
(SOUTHERN)

Brighton 2 Torquay U. 1
Histon City 1 Aldershot 0
Palace 1 Reading 0
Exeter City 1 Birkdale Rovers 0
Southend Orient 1 Millwall 0
Newport 1 Watford 0
Notts Forest 1 Port Vale 0
Southend U 1 Bognor Regis 0
Walton 0 Swindon 0

THIRD DIVISION
(NORTHERN)

Barrow 0 Crewe 0
Carlisle U 3 Oldham 1
Dundee 1 Accrington 0
Dover 1 Hartlepool 0
Hartlepool 1 Darlington 0
Lincoln 1 Tranmere 0
Middlesb. 1 Grimsby 0
Southport 1 Bradford 0
Stockport 0 Rotherham 0
York 0 Rotherham 0

(xx) result omitted.—Reuter.

FOLKESTONE HOCKEY

Folkestone, Kent, Apr. 7.—Folkestone's annual Easter Hockey Festival, traditionally the biggest and most international of the many such gatherings taking place at resorts in various parts of the country, opened today in brilliant weather with Continental teams concerned with each of the five matches playing.

The results were: Grasshoppers Zurich 1, Llanfair 7; Cheam 6, Victory Club, Antwerp 3; Hacchallians 3, Battalions of Dordrecht 3; Police Club de Roubaix 1, South Saxons 3; I.S.C. The Hague 1, Royal Engineers 4.—Reuter.

Hockey Team

The following will represent the Police v. YMCA Shambulio military ground at 10.30 a.m. tomorrow (Sunday), rendezvous at Shambulio Police Station at 10 a.m.:

Walker; Pebbitt and M. Singh; Soares, Leslie and Brown; Birch, Wilson, Yusef, Cox and Thong.

Reserves: D. Singh and Reynolds.

Wealth was not being overlooked.

He said that demands for marital law came from very few people indeed. The great majority felt that such action was not needed. The Malayan campaign was a big job and a tough one, but in the end we would prevail.

The Minister reiterated the recent statement by the Prime Minister that our intention to act through the armed forces if it were necessary and that it would remove any doubt in the minds of the gallant people in Malaya.

Winding up the debate, Mr. Oliver Stanley, former Conservative Colonial Secretary, said that this was a matter of national importance and would certainly be discussed again.

Polished Innings By Schoolboy

Lahore, Apr. 7.—A hard-hitting partnership of 114 runs between Kolaar and the 18-year-old schoolboy, Jayasinghe, enabled Ceylon to muster an impressive first innings total of 329 against a Pakistan Combined Universities team here today.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre. Eulogy, owned by Mr. G. Cooper, a Portsmouth butcher.

Crystal Link, a 20 to 1

shot, was second, two lengths behind Eulogy, with the 9 to 4 favourite, Signal-

man, a length away

third in a field of nine runners.

Young Jayasinghe's

polished innings of 125 included

18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour.

He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes,

which made the home team's attack look mediocre.

Eulogy, owned by Mr. G.

Cooper, a Portsmouth butcher.

Crystal Link, a 20 to 1

shot, was second, two lengths behind Eulogy, with the 9 to 4 favourite, Signal-

man, a length away

third in a field of nine runners.

Young Jayasinghe's

polished innings of 125 included

18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour.

He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes,

which made the home team's

Listen!

over REDIFFUSION
"THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES"
9.15 — 9.30 p.m.
MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, FRIDAYS
Sponsored by
THE AUTHORIZED BOTTLERS OF
Coca-Cola

VOL. V NO. 82

HONGKONG TELEGRAPH
Published on behalf of the
SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST, LTD.

Signature

The FINAL EDITION

Hongkong Telegraph.

SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1950.

Price 20 Cents

FRENCH GENERAL STAFF CALLS ON AMERICA URGENTLY FOR AID

Intensified Activity By Vietminh Forces

Saigon, Apr. 7.—Faced with intensified activity by the Vietminh Communist forces, the French General Staff in war-torn Indo-China has sent an urgent demand to Britain and the United States for military equipment, a usually reliable diplomatic source said here tonight.

The General Staff indicated, according to this source, that unless aid arrived swiftly France would be compelled to revise her military dispositions in Indo-China.

RIO TRAIN DISASTER

FORTY KILLED IN PLUNGE OVER BRIDGE

Rio de Janeiro, Apr. 7.—Forty-one people are so far known to have been killed when a train from Rio to Victoria plunged over a river bridge 90 miles north of here yesterday, a spokesman of the British-owned Leopoldina Railways said today.

He denied earlier reports that 120 people had lost their lives but said that some bodies had not yet been recovered from the wreckage.

Salvage work was continuing today and all traffic from the capital to Rio de Janeiro State was still suspended.

The police at Tanguara, where the accident occurred, last night said that 120 people were killed and 100 others injured.

Survivors reaching Rio said that the train was crowded with about 1,000 holiday makers in its 12 coaches. Many of them were sleeping when the train, travelling at high speed, was wrecked, they added. —Reuter.

Armed Robbery

A gang of four robbers armed with daggers broke into an inn numbered but 41 at Causeway Bay at 7 a.m. yesterday and robbed the inmates of gold jewellery and cash to the value of $200. —Reuter.

EDITORIAL

The Belgian Crisis

THIS decision of M. Van Zeeland to attempt to form a Government which is ready to back the return of King Leopold to the Belgian throne promises little to solve the crisis. The earlier position was this: the seventeen-member Cabinet contained nine Social-Christians (Catholic party), headed by the Premier M. Eyskens, and eight Liberals. The Liberals held this many posts—far out of proportion to their numerical strength—because their support was necessary in the lower house of Parliament, where the Catholics had two votes of a majority. On the crucial question of King Leopold, the Catholic party has favoured his restoration; the Socialists, led by M. Paul-Henri Spaak, have been opposed to it; and the Liberals stated they would approve his return if it was endorsed by a majority of the people—not in Belgium as a whole, but in each of the three general areas of the country. As it turned out, Leopold received a majority only in Flemish-speaking Flanders (which was heavy enough to give him a country-wide majority of 57.68 percent) but not in Brussels or in French-speaking Wallonia. After much hesitation, the Liberals apparently decided to stick to their position. The result is that the Eyskens Government, unable to control the lower house without Liberal support, resigned. Leopold cannot return until he is summoned by both houses of Parliament in

Princess Margaret In Manchester

Princess Margaret inspecting the Guard of Honour of the Manchester Regiment (TA) at the beginning of her Lancashire tour. The Princess laid the foundation stone of Manchester's new Free Trade Hall.

Clonfeckle Wins 1950 Hongkong Derby

Clonfeckle won the 1950 Hongkong Derby at Happy Valley this afternoon. The pony was ridden to victory by Mr Kenneth Kwok. Clonfeckle drew ticket No. 1112370 in the big sweep, which carries a prize of $675,861.

Kentucky Lady (V. V. Needa up) came in second, and won $193,103 for the holder of ticket No. 1152860. Prestwood (H. R. Holgate up) was third, winning $96,552 for owner of ticket No. 340,695.

There were nine starters.

Unplaced were Bambi (H. C. Pib), Ben More (D. Black), Dante (F. Noodl), Googirl (H. Maithland), Tiny Grey (B. L. Tao) and Xerxes (J. W. Pote-Hunt).

In the pari-mutuel, Clonfeckle paid $23.50 for a win.

Place dividends were $8.90, $8.40 and $8.20. Time was 2:54-1/2.

Unplaced and non-starters in the big sweep each paid $9,752.70. Names and ticket numbers are:

Acquisition 1242309

Aima 163203

Apple Pie 658316

Argus III 693070

Ben Cruachan 661076

Ben Lawers 1227298

Ben More 713117

Boniface 1182886

Bonnie Eyes 1443278

Cleopatra 794626

Collin 1006019

Corrib 871079

Courageous 1399282

Damia 1365250

Dante 810937

Debutante 1097183

Desert Gold 187443

Diamond Queen 1303414

Eleanor 665599

Emerald 702366

Flag Day 73781

Forward View 475936

Gill Edge 512036

Glamour Butterfly 154000

Goldfield 1308813

Gold Leaf 1454974

Good Luck 1190552

Googirl 756354

Gypsy Diamond 72152

Hellzapoppin 1119382

Henleets 1036322

Hopper 1128848

Hung Fa 1442370

Ironmaster 4069646

Ironside 131607

Kil'y 491503

Lawrence 399334

Lowlander 1053161

My Darling 556209

National Income 802796

Ninety Nine 1012358

Noelle Lady 1049123

Overdale 376121

Oswat 405951

Portia 552373

Pure Gold 730682

Ringwood 791080

Robin Hood 2323013

Silver Fox 981647

Strathpesser 29306

Statoocruiser 379874

Strawberry Fool 880076

Sunglo 314822

Super Boy 854432

Sycamore 1270377

Tarzan 42504

Thunderjet 662357

Tiny Grey 404953

True Love 493403

Uncle Willie 1104355

Winged 1185852

Wonderful Coin 105348

Wonderful Girl 1232007

Wonderful Mare 941564

Xerxes 633126

RACE 1—Shamshuppa Handicap. Distance: 1 mile.

1. Diamondfield (W. F. M. Cook)

2. American Clipper (T. L. Tseng)

151 lbs.

3. Araby (Chanson Feng) 150 lbs.

Iron Starter. Won by 2 lengths; three-quarter lengths; three-quarter lengths; three-quarter lengths.

Parimutuel: Winner $17.10. Places: $8.10, $10.30, $10.30.

RACE 2—Pokfulam Handicap. Distance: about half mile and 170 yards.

1. National Glory (K. Kwok) 149 lbs.

2. Happy Boy (H. Maithland) 148 lbs.

3. Fairy Diamond (K. F. Chiu) 145 lbs.

Seven starters. Won by 21/2 lengths; 2 lengths.

Time: 1:01.10. Parimutuel: Winner, $10.00. Places: $5.40, $4.00, $4.00.

RACE 3—Montkoktsui Handicap. Distance: about one mile and 170 yards.

1. Flag Day (H. P. Chanton) 146 lbs.

2. Hol Wong (K. Kwok) 145 lbs.

3. Bonnie Eyes (C. F. Chiu) 145 lbs.

14 starters. Won by 5 lengths; 1 length.

Time: 1:54.10. Parimutuel: Winner, $12.00. Places: $11.50, $10.50, $10.50.

RACE 4—Talktoak Stakes. Distance: 1 mile.

1. High Stride (A. Ostromoff) 150 lbs.

2. Uncle Willie (Y. K. Tu) 150 lbs.

3. Mr. Head (H. R. Holgate) 150 lbs.

15 lbs.

Six starters. Won by 5 lengths; 1 length.

Time: 1:54.35. Parimutuel: Winner, $23.00. Places: $18.00, $14.40, $9.20.

RACE 5—Tallang Handicap. Distance: 1/2 mile.

1. Oakland Bridge (H. R. Holgate)

154 lbs.

2. Bonnie Eyes (W. K. Shieh)

155 lbs.

3. Blau Sung (K. Kwok) 152 lbs.

Nine starters. Won by 1 length; 2 lengths.

Time: 1:54.35. Parimutuel: Winner, $14.00. Places: $12.00, $8.00, $8.00.

RACE 6—Tallang Handicap. Distance: 1/2 mile.

1. Oakland Bridge (H. R. Holgate)

154 lbs.

2. Bonnie Eyes (W. K. Shieh)

155 lbs.

3. Blau Sung (K. Kwok) 152 lbs.

Nine starters. Won by 1 length; 2 lengths.

Time: 1:54.35. Parimutuel: Winner, $14.00. Places: $12.00, $8.00, $8.00.

RACE 7—Tallang Handicap. Distance: 1/2 mile.

1. Oakland Bridge (H. R. Holgate)

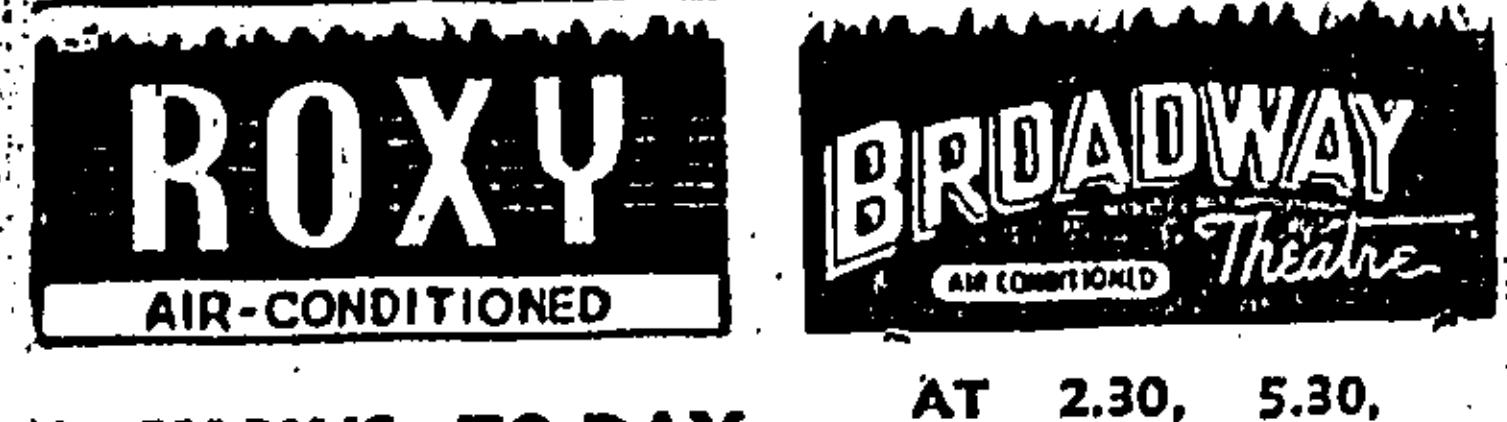

154 lbs.

2. Bonnie Eyes (W. K. Shieh)

155 lbs.

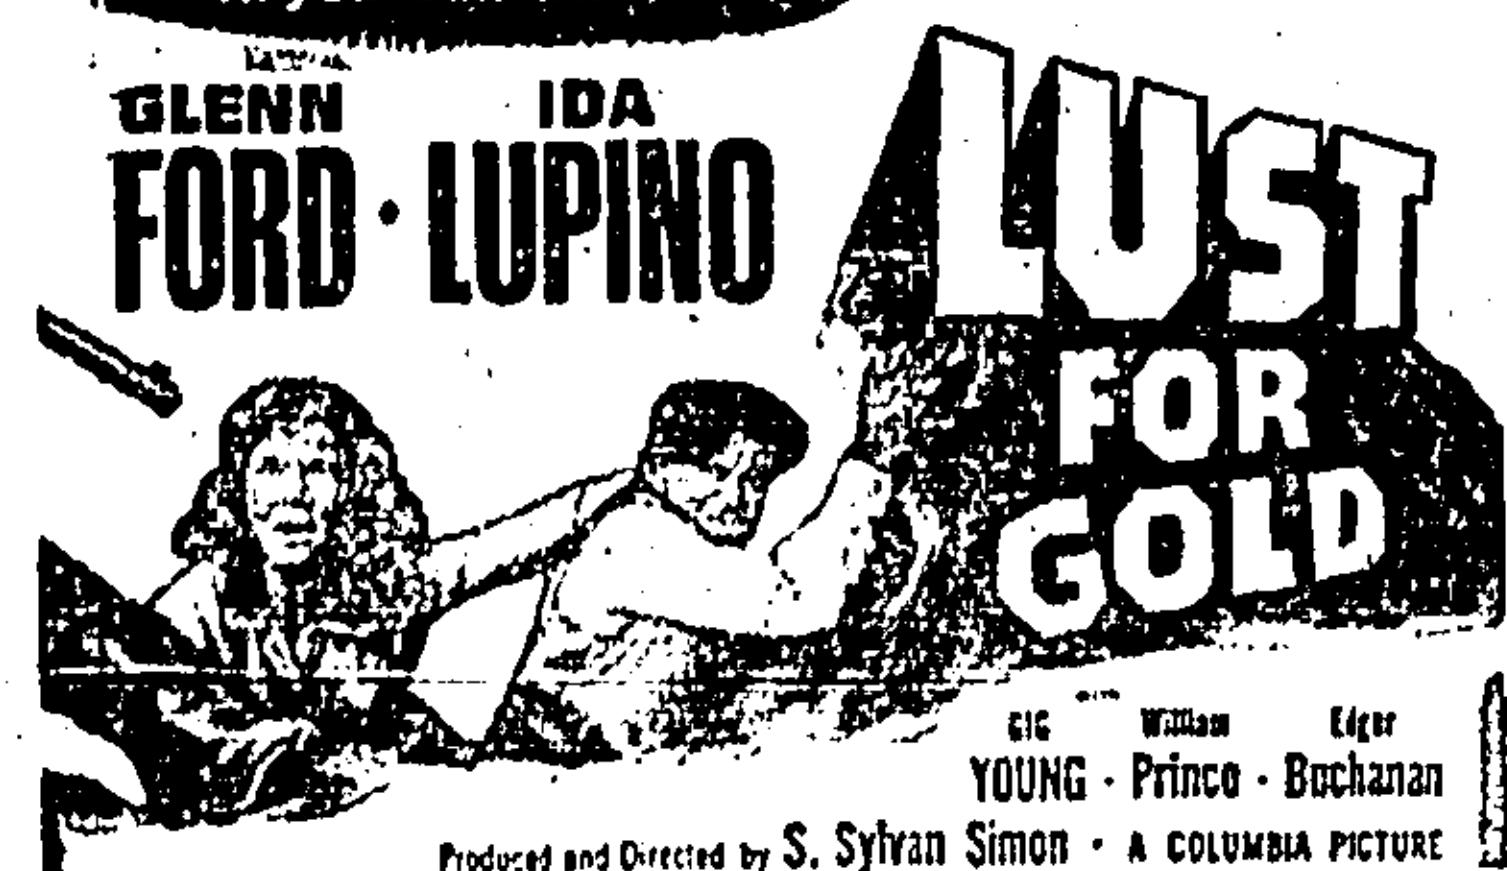

3. Blau Sung (K. Kwok) 152 lbs.

Nine starters. Won by 1 length; 2 lengths.

4 SHOWS TO-DAY AT 2.30, 5.30,
7.30 & 9.30 p.m.

TRUE STORY OF $20,000,000 IN GOLD
... yours for the taking...
if you can find it!

Produced and Directed by S. Sylvan Simon - A COLUMBIA PICTURE

BROADWAY ADDED: Latest Fox Movietone News
ROXY ADDED: THE MARCH OF TIME'S

light, entertaining film about vacations
"WISH YOU WERE HERE"

SUNDAY MORNING SHOW

ROXY at 11.30 a.m. Broadway at 12 noon
A Brand New PARAMOUNT Programme
"TECHNICOLOR CARTOONS, ETC."
EXCLUSIVE First Showing in HONGKONG
At Reduced Prices.

TO-DAY ONLY MAJESTIC At 2.30, 5.20,
7.20 & 9.20 p.m.

Holiday Extra Show At 12.00 Noon

To-day, 8th: Johnny Weissmuller "Tarzan and His Mate" in

Sunday, 9th: "The Kissing Bandit" Frank Sinatra in

Monday, 10th: "Luxury Liner" Jane Powell in

COMMENCING TO-MORROW

SAMUEL GOLDWYN presents
"ROSEANNA McCLOY"

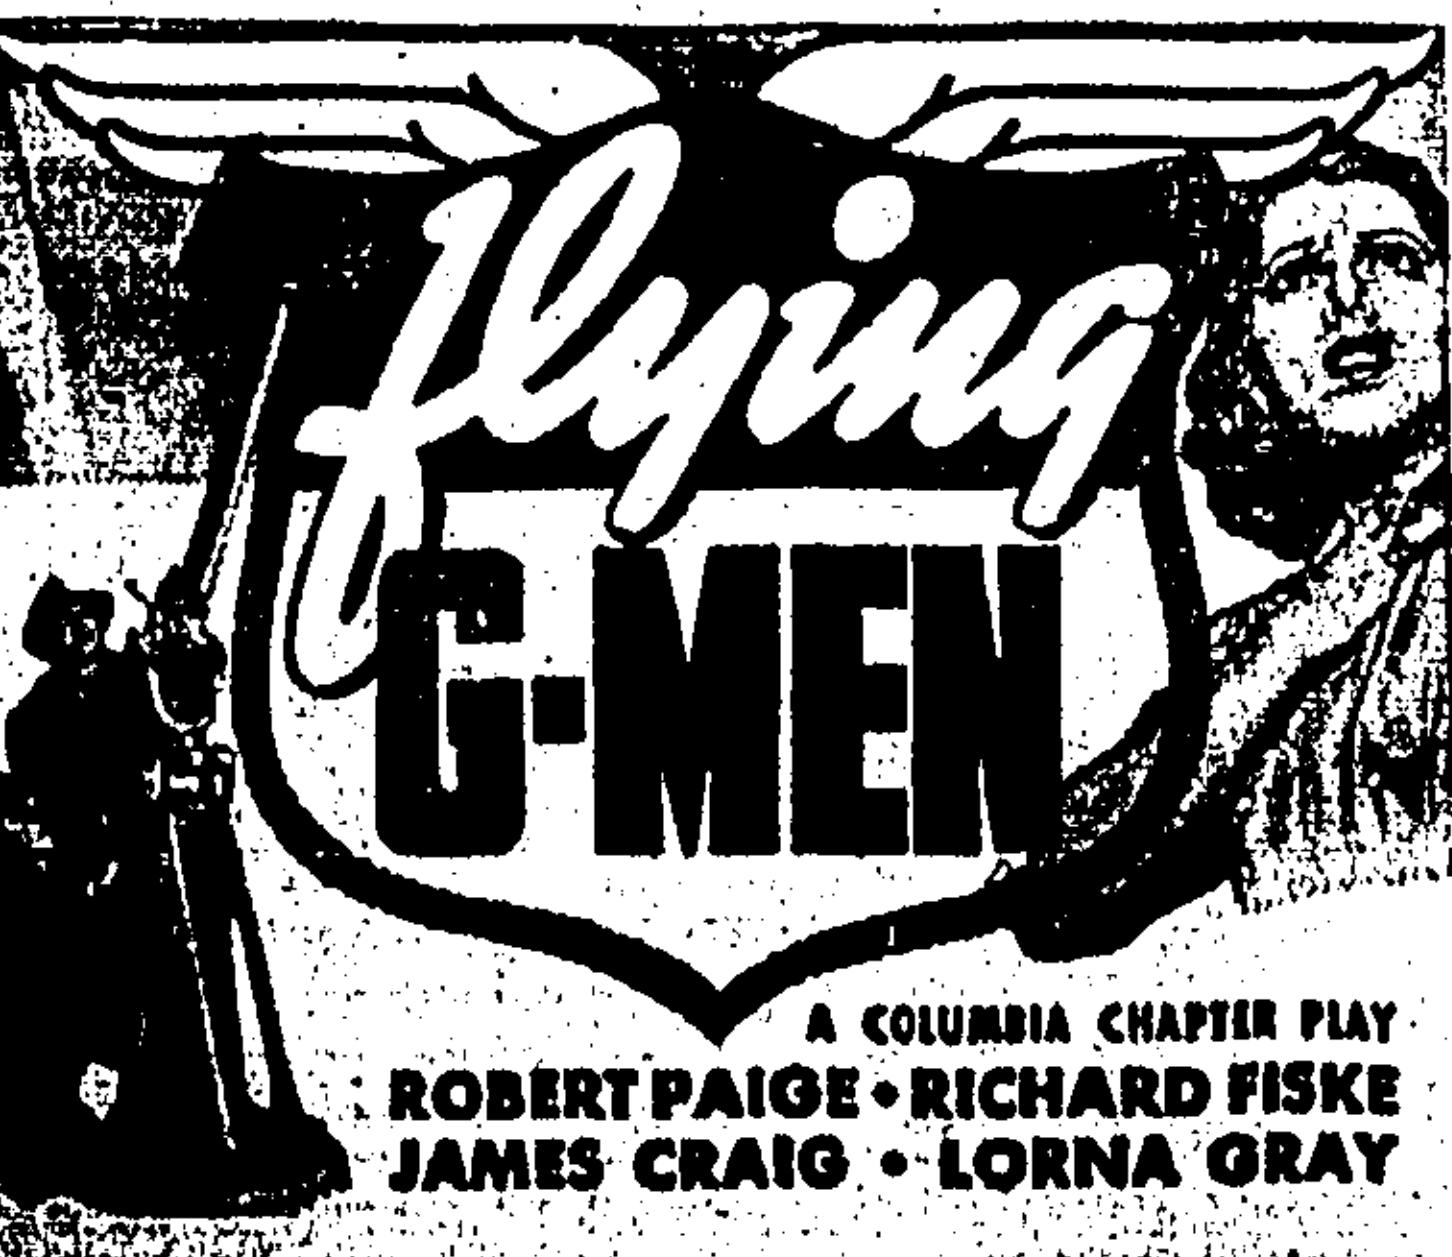

Starring: Farley GRANGER • Charles BICKFORD

270, QUEEN'S RD. CENTRAL. PHONE 25720

5 SHOWS DAILY
AT 12.30, 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

FINAL EPISODE

A COLUMBIA CHAPTER PLAY
ROBERT PAIGE • RICHARD FISKE
JAMES CRAIG • LORNA GRAY

WALT DISNEY CAN'T HELP LOVING MICE

Introduction of a new group of irresistible animal characters in Walt Disney's all-cartoon animation feature, "Cinderella," once more will stir audience speculation as to how and why he selects these little folk which form such a large proportion of his creative output.

Gus-Gus and Jaq and their cronies who dwell in the great chateau where Cinderella is an abused servant of her cruel kind. Women are certain to be rated among Disney's most comical and endearing creatures. They come from the mouse clan, although, like all other Disney folk, they are not strictly

SPECIAL DESIGN

Walt's preference for mouse characters links right up with his special design of cartoon comedy—with his whole scheme of popular entertainment in the medium where he stands supreme. In his recipe for movie fun, the timid, browbeaten, oppressed little creatures always eventually defeat the big, bad, oppressive bullies in a galore of surprising action and laughter. Remember? The pudgy pigs and the big, bad wolf, Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox, Little Bongo and the ferocious gigantic bear. Mickey and the great ogre of the beanstalk, Bomb and the big star, Sacha and the wolf, Timothy Mouse frightening the big elephants in "Dumbo." Mickey and the violent eagle in the Alpine adventure. And, of course, Donald, champion of all little folk, battling every kind of menace.

Mickey Mouse is perhaps the most potent reason for Walt's selection of mouse heroes in so many of his productions—Mickey who won phenomenal world fame and first made the Disney name celebrated as a creative showman and entertainer genius.

Walt doesn't forget the "luck" Mickey brought him, since the time when, in a critical hour in his career, the little fellow was created from the image of a timid mouse who made himself at home in Walt's Hollywood garage studio.

CREDIT TO THE CLAN

Gus-Gus and Jaq do credit to the clan as the knightly little heroes in the "Cinderella" tale where they battle and outwit one of Disney's most sinister villains, Lucifer, the big fat house cat who reflects the meanness of the girl's cruel step-mother.

In the mouse band too, are other helpful characters and their coy little girl friends. The feminine contingent help make a gorgeous dress for ragged Cinderella before the fairy godmother intervenes in her fortunes and provides the glass slippers and the golden pumpkin coach for the palace ball and the meeting with Prince Charming.

The songs they sing and their cheery, excited chatter will long be a happy memory of the fabled mice in the romantic musical version of the timeless legend and the wondrous love story, soon to be released.

RKO Radio distributes the elaborate, music-saturated feature, in colour by Technicolor.

FORGOTTEN SCIENCE

"In this life of ease which so many Americans live in, a land of luxury, he invents," fending is slowly becoming a forgotten science. The only medium that now seems to keep it alive is the motion picture that calls for dexterous swordplay."

Cavens is one of the few technical advisers and teachers who is almost without competition in his chosen field. How highly he is regarded by his fellow fencers may be judged from a letter written some years back to Basil Rathbone by Robert H. Grasso, coach of the United States Olympic fencing squad, head fencing coach at Yale for 20 years and secretary of the American Fencing Coaches' Association. Grasso wrote:

"Allow me to congratulate you on your fine acting in 'The Mark of Zorro'! I must in all fairness to the master who trained you give him my great admiration for the fine technique and execution of every fencing movement. If I am not mistaken, the gentleman is Professor Fred Cavens, one of the youngest and top honour men of his graduation class from the Royal Fencing College of Brussels. You were indeed fortunate to have a man of his great ability on your staff."

"En garde, M'sieur!"

Lending parts in this story of an Englishman and an American who go through the war together are played by Edward Underdown and Ralph Clanton.

Made almost entirely on location in England and on the Continent, "They Were Not Divided" tells of the D-Day landings, the chase across France and Belgium to Brussels and the winter campaign on the Dutch border.

Loudest voice in the whole British Army

"They Were Not Divided," Two Cities' tribute to the Guards Armoured Division, which opened in London on March 30, does not have ordinary credit titles. Instead, the cast will be named at the end of the film.

This will list twenty names, of whom have never appeared in film before. Among them is Regimental Sergeant-Major Ronald Brittan, Coldstream Guards, who is reputed to have the loudest voice in the British Army.

Lending parts in this story of an Englishman and an American who go through the war together are played by Edward Underdown and Ralph Clanton.

Made almost entirely on location in England and on the Continent, "They Were Not Divided" tells of the D-Day landings, the chase across France and Belgium to Brussels and the winter campaign on the Dutch border.

Another similar scene brought to mind was Clark Gable's rugged manhandling of Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul."

Now Victor Mature has devised a new method of brutality towards women in RKO Radio's "Gang's Living." Portraying a professional football hero in the film, Vic is married to Elizabeth Scott, who co-stars with him, Lucille Ball, Sonny Tufts and Lloyd Nolan.

Lizbeth is a selfish, ambitious, power-hungry woman

who loves Mature only for his glamour and money.

When he finally sees her for what she is, he tells her off in no uncertain terms and slaps her hard across the face.

Then in a final gesture of complete contempt, Vic places

his thumb on her lips and slowly, deliberately smears her lipstick over her face.

Nice trick, but we wouldn't advise you husbands to try it out on your wives—at least not without a big smile on your face.

Gertrude Lawrence makes her Hollywood debut

Gertrude Lawrence has finished her first venture in Hollywood (although she had previously appeared before cameras in New York and London) and charmingly, pronounced herself happy about the whole thing.

She even spoke glowingly of Jack Warner, the production chief at Warner Brothers and her employer, who is usually the bête noire of actors who work for him.

"Perhaps we got along so well because neither of us is committed to any further projects," Miss Lawrence suggested.

There have been, she added, some extremely tentative discussions of future pictures for her, but nothing she could put her finger on, and certainly nothing to create any tension.

Miss Lawrence made her Hollywood debut as a drab mother in the Jerry Wald-Charles K. Feldman production of "The Glass Menagerie."

The picture, she believes, ought to do justice to the play, particularly since Tennessee Williams, the author, adopted it to the screen.

Even her famous comments on "gay deivers" were "filmed and now await the opinion of the production code administrators."

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE

added to the total effect of the photoplay.

"I would hate to have anyone think it was inserted just to give Lawrence a chance to look glamorous," she said.

THEY WON OSCARS

British-born Olivia de Havilland has won Hollywood's most coveted award—an "Oscar"—for the second time.

The award, given by the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences, was made to her for the best acting by a woman in 1949—for her performance in "The Heiress." She won the 1949 "Oscar" for the film "To Each His Own."

The award for the best film of 1949 was made to "All the King's Men," a film about the rise and fall of an American politician.

Broderick Crawford, the star, won an "Oscar" for the best male performance of the year. In "All the King's Men" he portrayed the tough power-seeking politician character said to have been based on the late Senator Huey Long...

When you do that—smile!

No film fan can ever forget that moment in "Public Enemy" when Jimmy Cagney squashed half a grapefruit in Mae Clark's face.

That was a bit of business which aroused the envy of male moviegoers and a mixture of horror and admiration in the women.

Another similar scene brought to mind was Clark Gable's rugged manhandling of Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul."

Now Victor Mature has devised a new method of brutality towards women in RKO Radio's "Gang's Living." Portraying a professional football hero in the film, Vic is married to Elizabeth Scott, who co-stars with him, Lucille Ball, Sonny Tufts and Lloyd Nolan.

Lizbeth is a selfish, ambitious, power-hungry woman

who loves Mature only for his glamour and money.

When he finally sees her for what she is, he tells her off in no uncertain terms and slaps her hard across the face.

Then in a final gesture of

complete contempt, Vic places

his thumb on her lips and slowly, deliberately smears her lipstick over her face.

Nice trick, but we wouldn't advise you husbands to try it out on your wives—at least not without a big smile on your face.

Gigi's on the go

Gigi Perreau, seven-year-old actress who won fame in "Enchanted" and "Roseanna McCoy," is the busiest little tyke in Hollywood. Just as soon as she finished her present role of Susan Hayward's daughter in Samuel Goldwyn's "My Foolish Heart," she'll jump to RKO Radio for a big supporting role in "Irene Dunne" and Fred MacMurray in "Come Share My Love."

QUEENS & ALHAMBRA

AIR-CONDITIONED AIR-FRESHENED

SHOWING TO-DAY AT 2.30, 5.15, 7.20 & 9.30 P.M.

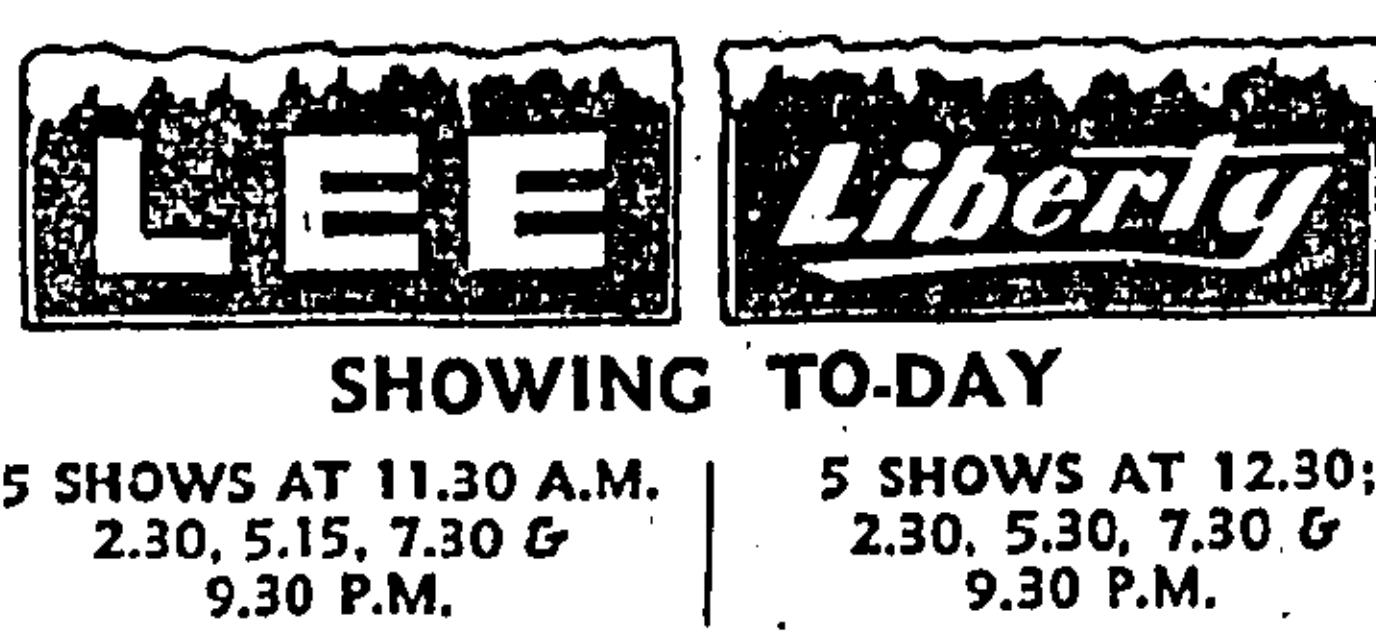

ALHAMBRA: TO-DAY, TO-MORROW & MONDAY
EXTRA SHOWS AT 12.00 NOON

Want to know what the Inspector General inspects?

DANNY KAYE is the
Inspector General
The All-time Comedy KAYE from WARNER BROS.
in color Technicolor

QUEEN'S —
TO-MORROW MORNING SHOW
AT 11.30 A.M. ONLY
VARIETY PROGRAM
(From RKO & MGM)
AT REDUCED PRICES

SHOWING TO-DAY
5 SHOWS AT 11.30 A.M.
2.30, 5.15, 7.30 &
9.30 P.M.

PEAK FILM PRESENTS

"ADVENTURES OF
THE BOY
WITH THREE HAIR?"

DIALOGUE IN MANDARIN

ORIENTAL

AIR CONDITIONED

Take Any Eastern Tram Car or Happy Valley Bus

POSITIVELY LAST FOUR TIMES TO-DAY!

Final Showing: 2.30—5.30—7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

ONE OF THE MOST AMAZING SPECTACLES OF BEAST AGAINST MAN IN ALL JUNGLE LOVE!

JOHNNY HURD GORILLA ARMY AGAINST WHITE
CAPTORS OF JUNGLE DIAMOND BEAUTY

WEISSMULLER
JUNGLE JIM
The LOST TRIBE

A COLUMBIA PICTURE
Based on "Jungle Jim" the famous King Features Syndicate newspaper comic

Open To-Morrow: Universal's Exciting Film

"Bud & Lou Meet the Killer Boris Karloff"

SPECIAL MORNING SHOW TO-MORROW AT 12.30

A Complete New Programme of Cartoons

5 SHOWS TO-DAY

Cochay At 12.30, 2.30,
5.30, 7.30, &
9.30 P.M.

ANOTHER MAN HWA SUPER PRODUCTION!

"MISS FENG'S LOVE ADVENTURE"

DIALOGUE IN MANDARIN

Starring: Miss PAT KWONG • SHECK FAI

SPARE MOMENTS PAGE

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Treat Slam Bids With Some Caution

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

THERE were quite a few pairs at the national tournament last year who used the Gobert slam convention. This convention is practically the same as the Blackwood convention, except that the first bid asking for aces instead of being four no trump is four clubs.

When the four club bid is made it asks the partner to bid four diamonds if he does not have an ace, four hearts with one ace, four spades with two aces and four no trump with threeces.

In today's hand over North's four club bid, South responded with four no trump, showing three aces. North's bid of five clubs asked his partner to show kings in the same manner. South's bid of five hearts showed one king. North's jump to seven diamonds was really too optimistic as he did not know which king South held. The king of clubs, of hearts, was of no value to him—only the king of diamonds.

However, at one table I think the declarer handled the play of

AKD
V7
♦ QJ876532
♦ 6
♦ 104	N	♦ 32
♦ 508543	W E	♦ Q102
♦ K
♦ Q053	Dealer	♦ KJ7
2
♦ Q5
♦ VAKJ0
♦ A104
♦ A104
♦ A104
Lesser Hand—N-S vul.
South	West	North	East
1N.T.	Pens	4♦	Past
4N.T.	Pens	5♦	Past
5♦	Pens	7♦	Past
Opening—A 4

the hand very well. He won the opening lead of the four of spades in his own hand with the king of spades.

He knew he was going to be on a terrible guess unless the singleton king of diamonds dropped from the East hand. He decided to prolong the guess as long as possible. He led a small club to the ace and ruffed a club. East's king dropped.

The nine of spades was led and overtaken in dummy, with the queen and another club ruffed. East played the king of clubs.

Declarer now led the queen of diamonds. When East played the nine spot declarer reasoned that as long as East held the king of clubs he would play West for the singleton king of diamonds. In other words he was going to play the king's split.

The ace of diamonds was played and when the king dropped that was all there was to worry about, and the grand slam was made.

SIDE GLANCES By Galbraith

"Here's some meat loaf left over from last Easter! How does that appeal to you?"

BY THE WAY

by Beachcomber

THE Informers' Union has issued a statement complaining of the "low rate of remuneration" offered to its members.

The self-respecting mark," says the statement, "runs increasing personal risks, owing to the non-co-operative attitude of the public. Only by paying good wages will the Government get the best men." The case is quoted of a spy who reported a woman for taking the wrong place in a queue, and was swindled out of his pay by a senior official of the Department.

A prominent swine said: "We cannot afford a strike of informers at this crisis in the Nation's affairs."

The tin rush

TEXAS BELLE could shoot a parting in a man's hair at 50 yards, but she much preferred to shoot the man himself. Once a stranger from the south came into the saloon and tried to trade a bit of falspar for a drink, saying it was in from the Bandon Valley. The burman was touchy, so the stranger tossed four guns into the air, but before he could catch them by the handles, Belle had put a bullet through each of them, shot the lights out, vaulted on to the stranger's horse, vaulted off it (spilling all the mess out of her corseage), shot the lights on again, and called for drinks all round. The stranger was so surprised that he moved out of town that night.

Book review

I HAVE received a copy of "The Sib-Sib: Art of Onset Correlation Among Individuals Suffering From A Hereditary Syndrome." Produced By More Than One Gen, with a reminder that I promised to review it some time ago.

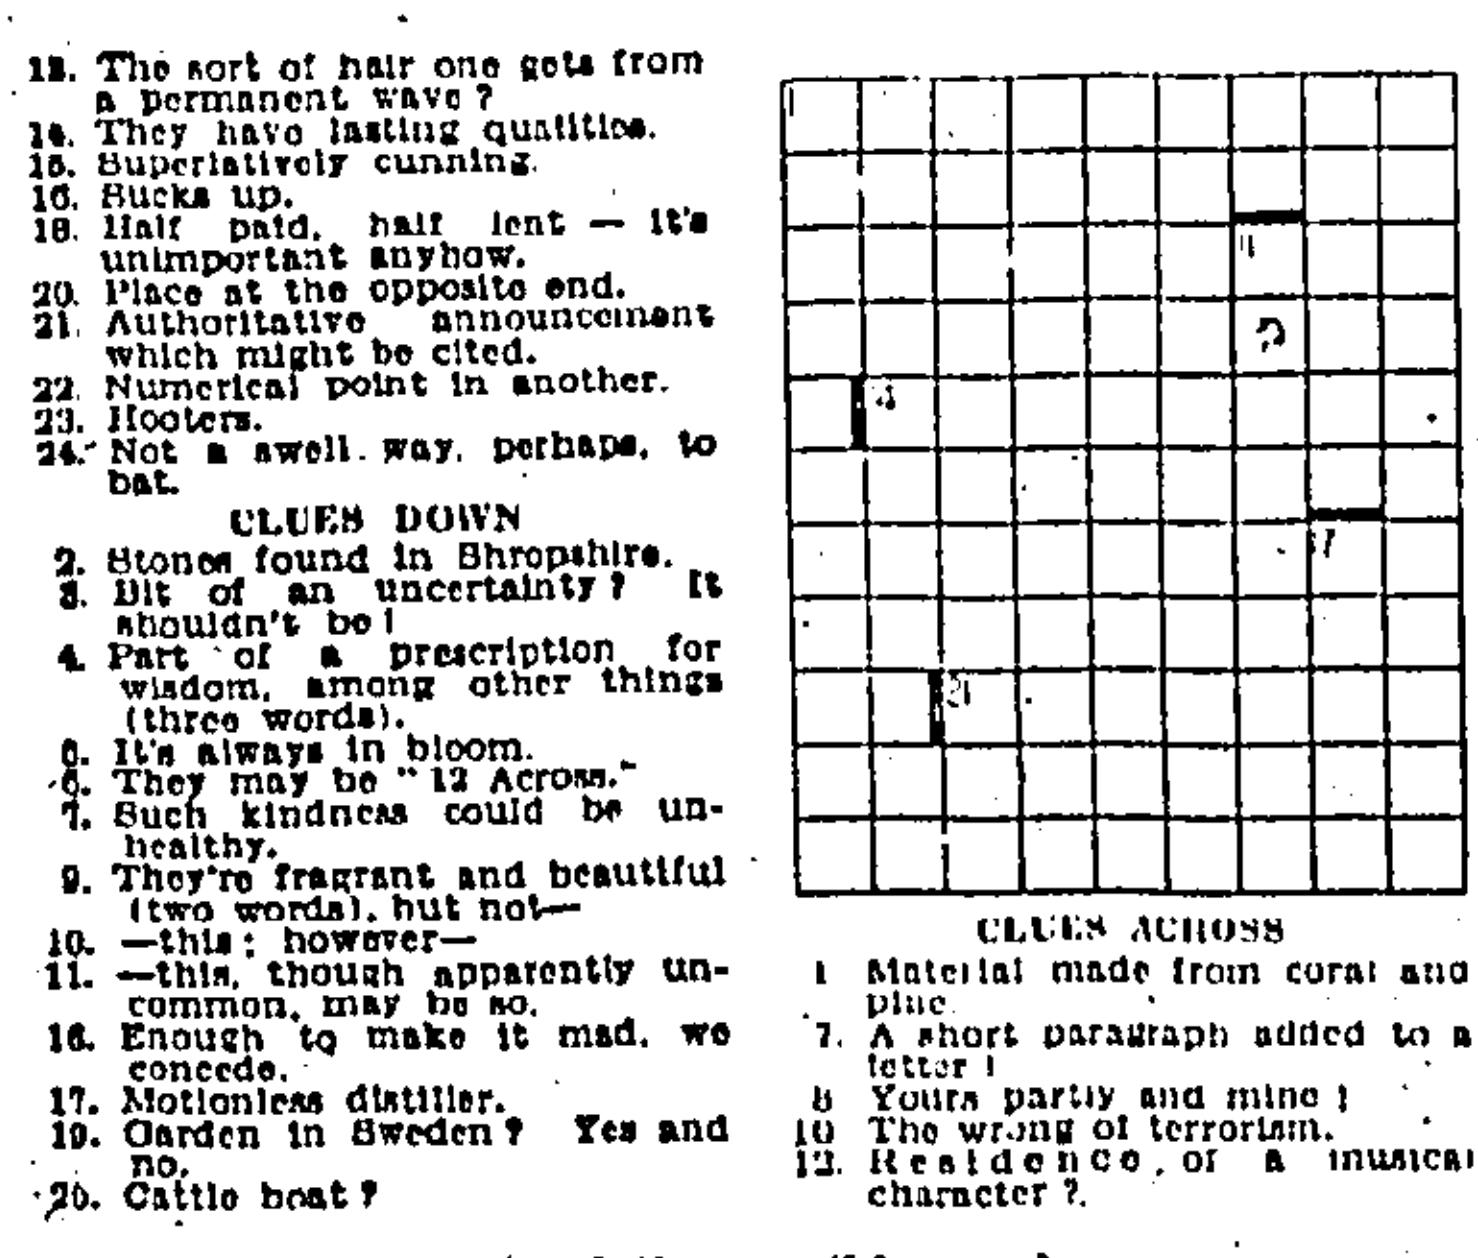

For those who do not believe in the Sib-Sib, this work will seem to take too much for granted. But the evidence for multimodality of the art of the syndrome's onset distribution is skillfully marshaled, the cubic equations are adequately set out and the formula for binomial distribution is as lucid as that for continuous derivatives. Extraordinary, however, though it may seem, the authors cling to the Gaussian concept of curves of variance. Have they not read Deleuze's exposure of Gauß?

All three reached the South Gate simultaneously. John averaged 35 miles per hour. John had averaged 4 miles per hour.

What was John's average speed?

(Solution on this page)

SKELETON CROSSWORD

(Solution on this page)

NANCY Watered Stock

YOUR BIRTHDAY..... By STELLA

SATURDAY, APRIL 8

IF you are born today, you have a great deal of personal charm. This is of great assistance to you in making important friends who can help further your success. The stars have given you a variety of talents as well as the energy and ability to make good use of them.

You have a great deal of tenacity and once you have decided upon some course of endeavour nothing can divert you until you have successfully reached your goal. Your judgment is excellent and your intuitions keen. This combination is almost "sure fire" when it comes to wooing fame and success. You must realize, however, that you will need to work just as hard after the first bit of triumph, if you want to make consistent and continual

You have a sense of humour and a sharp tongue which often can turn a word or a phrase which is long remembered. You must guard against being sarcastic at the expense of others. This is not a happy habit and one you should break. Even close friendships can be threatened by its indiscriminate use.

You women are charming, vivacious, full of fun and excellent hostesses. You have good mental powers and are very practical underneath your seemingly happy-go-lucky exterior. It is likely you are pretty—but definitely not dumb.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

SUNDAY, APRIL 9

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—Hear your intuitions today and all should go well. Start the day right. Be wise in making any important decisions.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Early hours are disturbing. Seek spiritual guidance if necessary. Improvement develops later.

GEMINI (May 22-June 22)—Be cautious in all morning activities. Later on, devote time to your usual Sunday activities. Follow intuitions.

CANCER (June 23-July 23)—Not a good morning. Curb impulses. Afternoon and evening, however, show a definite improvement.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Don't let pessimistic thoughts mar your day. The morning hours can be trying, but conditions improve later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22)—Go slowly early today. Make sure your judgment is clear. When afternoon comes things brighten up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)—Emotionalism and impulsiveness have no place in today's schedule. Be practical and wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Imagination may have full play this morning, but afternoon will prove if your scheme is practical.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—If you can avoid confusion this morning by tact and calmness, the balance of the day goes well.

Dear Friend in Hong Kong:

It hardly seems possible that a year has passed since we began our meetings at Bible Auditorium. And now we have only eight weeks more before the closing service. A marvellous attendance continues and I hate to come to the last night.

We are living in awfully solemn times. I believe with all of my heart that the prophecies are almost all fulfilled and that soon, very soon, our earth will be rocked by war and chaos.

But it seems so few are preparing for the last solemn events just ahead. Few seem to care what is coming. Few pay any attention to the solemn prophecies for these solemn hours. They will stand unceasingly before God in the day of Judgment.

Sunday night, April 9 is a stirring prophecy subject that needs to be heard by two million people in Hong Kong—including YOU—"A thousand years of Tyranny or Peace predicted for our earth in the Bible." How I wish this prophetic message could reach the ear of every person in the Empire. The hour is very late. My heart is very full as I see events fast shaping up for the grand finale of earth's history. I appeal to you to lend one evening of your busy life to this solemn message. I beg you to come and listen to one service on Bible prophecy if you have not been out before.

7:30 P.M. Sunday, Hongkong, 17 Ventris Road
9:00 P.M. Sunday, Kowloon, Chatham & Mody Rds.

Most sincerely your friend in Christ.

Columbia Pictures

AND

ROXY

&

BROADWAY

proudly announce that

"ALL THE KING'S

MEN"

The pulitzer prize winning Novel

THE BEST

PICTURE OF

THE YEAR

is Horst!

It Has:

BRODERICK CRAWFORD

The Star Of

"ALL THE KING'S

MEN"

THE BEST

ACTOR OF

THE YEAR

AND

MERCEDES McCAMBRIDGE

Supporting Star Of

"ALL THE KING'S

MEN"

THE BEST

Supporting

Actress

of the Year

SELF-POLISHING
SIMONIZ
GIVES YOU...
LOVELIER
FLOORS!

SELF-POLISHING
SIMONIZ GIVES FLOORS
the same lasting beauty that makes SIMONIZ so famous for automobiles.
And it's so easy to use. Just spread it on and let it dry. To clean, simply wipe with a dry cloth.
Get some today!

SELF-POLISHING
SIMONIZ
FOR FLOORS

GLASS CLEANING that stays gleaming!

GLASS WAX'
A Product of Gold Seal
NEW way to clean glass faster... to clean longer. Protects windows, mirrors with an invisible, dirt-resistant
wax coat.

Sole Agents:
SHEWAN TOLES & CO. LTD.
Chung Tin Bldg. Tel: 27781.

ALL

IN

ONE

VITAL

GREAT

PICTURE

Directed By Robert Rossen
The Best Director Of
The Year

DON'T MISS IT!
WATCH FOR THE OPENING DATE.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE BRIGADE
HONG KONG DISTRICT.

WANTED

Books, papers and magazines
for distribution to service
camps in the New Territories.

Please communicate with
MRS HOLMES-BROWN,
2 Tai Hang Road.

MR K. C. WONG,
Room 606, Bank of East Asia.

WE WILL ARRANGE
TO COLLECT

Additional collecting centres—

Hongkong Cricket Club
South China Morning Post
China Mail Office.

Lower Peak Tramway Office

ORDERS BOOKED.

Books, papers and magazines
for distribution to service
camps in the New Territories.

Please communicate with
MRS HOLMES-BROWN,
2 Tai Hang Road.

MR K. C. WONG,
Room 606, Bank of East Asia.

WE WILL ARRANGE
TO COLLECT

Additional collecting centres—

Hongkong Cricket Club
South China Morning Post
China Mail Office.

Lower Peak Tramway Office

Books, papers and magazines
for distribution to service
camps in the New Territories.

Please communicate with
MRS HOLMES-BROWN,
2 Tai Hang Road.

MR K. C. WONG,
Room 606, Bank of East Asia.

WE WILL ARRANGE
TO COLLECT

Additional collecting centres—

Hongkong Cricket Club
South China Morning Post
China Mail Office.

<p

GOOD FRIDAY FOOTBALL: LIVERPOOL BACK IN THE LEAD

London, Apr. 7.—Although there was not a complete football programme today—most League teams were playing—nearly a million soccer fans saw the first matches of the busy Easter week-end period which may well settle promotion and relegation problems.

WEEK-END SPORT

TODAY

Basketball—Warriors v. Hongkong & Kowloon Combined at Caroline Hill, 8 p.m.

Cricket—KCC (Second Division) v. The Rest of the Second Division XI at Cox's Road, 1.45 p.m.

Football—Junior and Senior Shield Finals at Happy Valley.

Army v. Commandos, 2.30 p.m.

Kitchen v. St. Joseph's, 4.30 p.m.

Motor—Easter Race Meeting (First Day) at Happy Valley.

First Saddle Bell at 11.30 a.m.

Softball—Men's Senior League

League Play-offs—Braves v. Jaguars at CBA ground, King's Park, 11.30 a.m.

Ladies' Senior League

Pirates v. Wildcats at CBA ground, 10 a.m.

Ladies' Junior League

McTeebreath v. White Fangs at CBA ground, 1 p.m.

Men's Junior League

Final Play-offs—Black Hawks v. Jaguars at CBA ground, 4 p.m.

Midgels' League

Lions v. Blackarrows, 10 a.m.; Mohawks

Acres, 11.30 a.m.; Falcons v.

Saints, 1 p.m.; Dodgers v. Bluebirds, 2.30 p.m.; Delawareans v. Blackhawks, 4 p.m.—all games at Crocoo ground, King's Park.

TOMORROW

Basketball—Arellano v. Hongkong & Kowloon Combined at Caroline Hill, 8 p.m.

Cricket—IRC v. Commandos at Sookunpoo (First Division League), 1.45 p.m.

Football—First Division League: St. Joseph's v. Kowloon Motor Bus at Happy Valley, 5 p.m.

Second Division League

RAF v. University at Kai Tak, 5 p.m.; Police v. Dockyard at Boundary Street, 5 p.m.; KTC v. Navy at Happy Valley, 5.30 p.m.

Lawn Bowls—President's team v. Mr. Aitken's team at Kowloon Bowling Green Club, 3.30 p.m.

Softball—Men's Senior League

Final Play-offs—Braves v. Americans at CBA ground, King's Park, 2.30 p.m.

Inter-Hong Kong League

Shell v. San Miguel at CBA ground, 11.30 a.m.; Caltex v. Gibson Livingston at CBA ground, 1 p.m.

Ladies' Junior League

Clovers v. Squaws at CBA ground, 4 p.m.

Midgels' League

Mohawks v. Falcons, 10 a.m.; Lions v. Acres, 11.30 a.m.; Blackhawks v. Saints, 1 p.m.; Dodgers v. Delawareans, 2.30 p.m.; Blackarrows v. Bluebirds, 4 p.m.—all at Recreational ground.

GAMMANS ATTACK

(Continued from Page 1) of Communist China. Did the Government still contend that this recognition had had no effect on the situation?

No-one in Malaya was prepared to accept that view. Appointments of Chinese Communists could not longer be evaded. Bandits would never be caught unless the Chinese population were prepared to give information.

The bandits could not survive a month in the jungle without the help of the Chinese. No one was sure who could get that help if the Chinese could be sure the Government meant business.

He asked whether any approach had been made to Australia and New Zealand for help. If Singapore fell they would be in a deadly peril.

Time was getting short. There was a limit to what the rubber planters and the miners could stand. It was little good talking about closing the dollar gap and losing Malaya.

A CENTURY

Sir Patrick Spens, Conservative, said we seemed to be dealing with the Malayan situation on our own. There was no general policy between all nations interested in that area. To try and raise the standard of living of millions of people in the Far East in an effort to eliminate the grounds on which Communism flourished would take a century.

Mr. Walter Fletcher said we had taken it for granted that because the output of tin and rubber continued, and rose in price, thus contributing towards the closing of the dollar gap, that it would continue to do so.

Mr. Grima said there was no ground or easy solution, and no formula for dealing with the situation. The possibility of closing the gap from the Communists

Winnie's Horse Beaten

Salford, Wilts., Apr. 6.—Mr. Winston Churchill and his family saw his French-bred race horse, Colonist, beaten into fourth place in the Salford Spring Handicap, run over one mile, here today. Colonist, winner of three of his six races since arriving in England, last summer, attempted to make all the running but was collared a furlong from home, flattening fourth behind the 6 to 1 chance Eulogy, owned by Mr. G. Cooper, a Portsmouth butcher.

Colonist, Link, a 20 to 1 shot, was second, two lengths behind Eulogy, with the 6 to 4 favourite, Signalman, half a length away third in a field of nine runners.

Colonist started second favourite at 7 to 2.—Reuter.

RUGBY UNION TEAM OFF ON TOUR

London, Apr. 7.—The Rugby Union team, which left over the weekend to tour New Zealand and Australia this summer, will have ample opportunities for getting to know each other during the six weeks' sea trip.

That is one of the main reasons why the sea route is always preferred to travel by air on such occasions.

The weeks on board ship are to be useful in giving members of the party a chance to meet each other socially and to enable the technical aspects of the tour to be discussed.

Moreover, the players are able to enjoy an adequate real period after the tiring British season, which for most of them has meant continuous Rugby for seven months.

YOUNGEST CAPTAIN

Karl Muller, the Old Belvedere and Ireland hooker, is the youngest of all International Rugby captains at 23. His selection is considered sound as it is popular, for he has led his side for the past three seasons with outstanding success.

When the team left, the vice-captain was not known, but a cable was received from the ship stating that Bleddy Williams, the Cardiff and Wales centre-half-quarter, had been given the honour.

All the 39 players in the party are internationals—13 from Wales, nine from Ireland, five from Scotland and three from England—and includes two full-backs, four wings, three-quarters, four centres, three-quarters, two stand-off halves, three scrummen, half-backs and 15 forwards.

This is the first British side to visit the Antipodes since 1930.—Reuter.

RUGBY RESULTS

London, Apr. 6.—The following were the results of Rugby Union games played today: Birkenhead Park 18, Manchester 3; Telgarneath 9, Old Merchant Taylors 11.—Reuter.

FOLKESTONE HOCKEY

Folkestone, Kent, Apr. 7.—Folkestone's annual Easter Hockey Festival, traditionally the biggest and most international of the many such gatherings taking place at resorts in various parts of the country, opened today in brilliant weather with Continental teams concerned with each of the five matches playing.

The results were: Grasshoppers 2, Zulah 1, Liang 7; Cheam 6, Victory Club, Antwerp 3; Hacchianians 3, Battavieren of Dordrecht 3; Pole Club de Roubaix 1, South Saxons 3; H.S.C. The Hague 1, Royal Engineers 4.—Reuter.

Hockey Team

The following will represent the Police v. YMCA Shambusham-pai military ground at 10.30 a.m. tomorrow (Sunday), rendezvous at Shambusham Police Station at 10 a.m.:

Walker, Pebbutt and M. Singh; Soares, Leslie and Brown; Birch, Wilson, Yusof, Cox and Thong.

Reserves: D. Singh and Reynolds.

Wealth was not being overlooked.

He said that demands for martial law came from very few people indeed. The great majority felt that such action was not needed. The Malayan campaign was a big job and a tough one, but in the end we would prevail.

The Minister reiterated the recent statement by the Prime Minister on our intention to see it through and said it would remove any doubt in the minds of the gallant people in Malaya.

Winding up the debate, Mr. Oliver Stanley, former Conservative, Colonial Secretary, said that this was a matter of national importance and would certainly be discussed again.

ADDED:—WEDDING BELLE—Comedy: VITAMAN C MAN—Cartoon

Special MORNING SHOWS on 9th & 10th

at 12.30 p.m. at reduced prices

An Entirely New Programme of Popeye & Pupeteers in Technicolor.

EXCLUSIVE FIRST SHOWING IN THE COLONY!

Presented by PARAMOUNT FILMS.

Polished Innings By Schoolboy

Lahore, Apr. 7.—A hard-hitting partnership of 114 runs between Kalra and the 18-year-old schoolboy, Jayasinghe, enabled Ceylon to muster an impressive first innings total of 329 against a Pakistan Combined Universities team here today.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators with a wide repertoire of strokes, which made the home team's attack look mediocre, and he was cheered long and loud when the innings ended with the fall of his wicket.

Young Jayasinghe's polished innings of 125 included 18 fours and is the highest recorded so far this tour. He delighted spectators